MINOR MENTION.

Reiter, merchant tailor, for fine goods. You can't afford to miss the Falk organ concert.

Secure your seats at Dushnell's for the Falk organ concert. Louis Falk, the celebrated Chicago organist, at the Presbyterian church Saturday evening.

Charles Allen was taken in charge by the police yesterday for getting too much under his vest.

Capt. Overton, who has been confined to his house with malaria fever for some weeks, is slightly improving.

Mrs. Linkey while milking a cow a rat jumped up and frightened the cow, which severely kicked Mrs. Linkey in the head.

Haverly's minstrel to-morrow night will have a house more than full if half of those who are talking of going really go.

The Falk concert Saturday night promises to be a grand one. Those who have heard him on the organ need no urging to attend.

Amy Grimmelman complains that Harry Howard has stolen a number of her silk dresses, and skipped out for parts unknown.

If there could be anything done in the way of cleaning up the alleys it would be more profitable expenditure of time than trying to break up the cemetery.

A number of Council Bluffs sportsmen expect to go to Neola in the course of a week, to take part in a shooting match there, the exact date of which has not been fixed.

The petition of Mrs. Batchelor for an injunction restraining Lanzendorfer from using a slaughter near her house has been presented to Judge Connor, argued, and taken under advisement.

In connection with the teachers' institute Miss Kate Oray will lecture in the Bloomer building this evening, her subject being "Iowa at the Exposition." The lecture is to be illustrated by the use of the calcium light.

The old Statesman street school property, which was sold to Mr. Natio Williams for the low price of $2,000, has been sold now by him to J. R. Ball for $3,000. It is being transferred into a residence and greatly improved.

Rebecca Lemasters now asks for a divorce from her husband, Jacob, to whom she was married in 1874. She claims that he has been very cruel to her, and has got the deplorable habit of choking her on the slightest provocation.

Can there be anything more ridiculous than for a man to attempt to advertise Council Bluffs as being a terribly unhealthy place, when the facts show to the contrary, and then turn about and insist that he is "the true friend of the city?"

The city weighmaster, William Galvin, finds his new business hardly less troublesome than his old one, for an injunction is now asked for to restrain him from selling liquor in Weston. The case is to be heard by Judge Connor in Denison.

A little child of William Wyke, who lives at the corner of Tenth and 5th streets, died yesterday morning of a malarial fever. The whole family have been suffering from the same ailment, and several of them are seriously ill.

The entertainment prepared by the Young Men's Christian association, and which was to have taken place Tuesday evening has been postponed until Tuesday evening next. From what the Bee man has seen in the rehearsal, he feels satisfied that the entertainment will be a very creditable and enjoyable one.

Some of the boys employed in Louie & Metzger's restaurant have rooms in the upper part of the brick building opposite the opera house, on Broadway. Yesterday morning, Ed McDonald, who does not rise so early as the others, neglected a fellow named Henry Brown prowling about the rooms in a suspicious manner, and as Brown had been discharged from the employ of the firm, and was not supposed to have any business there, McDonald at once concluded that something was wrong, and as Brown hurried out, he slipped on his clothes, and went down to inform the other boys. Investigation showed that some clothing had been taken from the trunk of Charles Shipman, one of the employes, and suspicion pointing to Brown as the thief, the police were notified, and started out after him. They failed to find him here, and at last accounts it was supposed that he had gone to Omaha.

Grau's opera company did not make a very great financial success here, and had some difficulty in adjusting matters so as to get their baggage out of the city, they being booked for Omaha the rest of the week. They will probably do better there. This is a hard season for shows, and with a special heating up of the heated term it is enough to break up almost any sort of a show.

Dr. West, Dentist, No. 12 Pearl Street. DISTURBING THE DEAD.

The Cemetery Controversy Not to be Settled in a Hurry.

It does not seem probable that the attempt to prevent the city from burying its dead will succeed as quickly and easily as its projectors expected. The matter was brought up before Judge Connor Tuesday night on the application for a writ of injunction, and after being argued at length on some technical law points it was decided that the case should go over until Wednesday morning of next week, with the understanding that if the cemetery association was not ready it could make a showing at that time and secure the time necessary to get such evidence as is desired. It is said that the association will not be content with the local witnesses but will send to New York and Boston and get the testimony of experts, showing that the cemetery is no such death and disease spreader as has been represented. It will necessarily take time to get this testimony from such a distance, and the matter will doubtless be postponed to allow for this. Those who are seeking to get the injunction now claim that they do not want to prevent those who already have lots there from using them, and from burying in them, but they simply want to prevent the sale and occupation of any more lots. This statement, they hope, will do away with much of the present feeling and opposition against the proposed injunction. The attempt to interfere with the cemetery will be strongly resisted, however, no matter what pretenses or excuses or promises are made.

GAS ABOUT GASSES.

It Seems Hard Work for Some Doctors to Agree with Themselves.

It seems hard not only for doctors to agree among themselves, but sometimes for a doctor to agree with himself. An apparent instance of this arises in the courts, as shown by papers filed in different cases. In the attempt to do away with the further use of Fairview cemetery, the claim is made that certain noxious gasses arise, thereby endangering the health of the city. A number of physicians sign an affidavit in which it is stated: "That poisonous gasses escape from said graves into the atmosphere, and are then carried over into the city. This is deleterious to the health of the citizens."

One of the physicians who thus deems the cemetery dangerous to the health of the city, sees no danger in a slaughter house, and in a case pending to restrain the further use of one of these slaughter houses, the claim being set up that "noxious vapors and noxious exhalations arise, and that low grades of fever are caused to residents in that vicinity by the effect of these gasses," the doctor states in another affidavit: "It is impossible to introduce into the human system through the atmosphere any poison or disease through decaying animal matter, but it must come in if at all, through the water or food supply."

It seems that when a cemetery is to be attacked, the statement goes forth that gasses arising from decaying animal matter are dangerous to health, but when a slaughter house is to be defended that gasses arising from decaying animal matter are not dangerous to health. Which is it?

CASEY'S PLEA.

He Claims to Have Been Scared Into Being a Highwayman.

Marshal Gunnell has brought back from Neola the two men charged with robbing the German, named Caster. The two prisoners gave their names as Peter Norton and Tom Casey. Casey, who is only a boy, admitted his guilt, and claimed that Norton got Caster's revolver, under the pretext that he wanted to look at it, and then suddenly turning it upon him, demanded that Casey should go through Caster's pockets. Casey said he was afraid Norton would shoot him if he refused and Caster thought so also. Norton had little to say for himself, but waived examination and was sent to jail to await the action of the grand jury next December, being unable to furnish the $500 bail required. It has not been decided what to do with the youthful Casey, and his part in the transaction is being further considered, it appearing that he may have been frightened into his acts. There was found on Norton, when arrested, about $17, which is supposed to be a part of the stolen $20.

A Correction.

A report has been circulated by some of the papers that Billy Smith and myself have gone into partnership. I wish to contradict the above statement.

Dr. Thomas Fuller, of Cape Cod, claims 100 acres of land in the heart of Philadelphia, alleged to have been willfully by William Ferguson to the doctor's ancestor, Sally Mercer Fuller.

Only an Organ. Keth has given his pencil a fresh sharpening to thus reply to the Globe.

A brief paragraph in last week's Bulletin calls forth frothy half columns from the Council Bluffs Globe. While absolutely gorging the democracy with advice, from Cleveland down, our esteemed cotemporary is in too high a state of chronic irritation to accept any—even when given for value received and in sugar-coated doses. Our jocular allusion to position made the Globe prance up and down the Missouri bottoms like a mad bull after a red rag. We didn't know its postoffice end was so sensitive to the touch of a newspaper paragraph. Most democratic papers are philosophical enough to wait the hand of Providence good-naturedly whether it holds a pill or a plum. It's all in a life time, and in the long run things are very apt to level themselves into an equilibrium. It is just as well to laugh and grow fat, and we advise the Globe to get a pull at the test of good nature and get a little milk of human kindness in its stomach as a substitute for postoffice fodder. It will make it feel better and won't hurt the test.

It may be well for the Globe to wrap its political orthodoxy in saw dust and stow it away in a refrigerator during the hot months. It is less liable to melt away into abuse of the administration and of prominent Iowa gentlemen whom it has accused of conspiring to farm out the patronage of the state. If the Globe be the victim of local dirty work, as it avers, it ought to turn the hose on the Augean stables. The right to self-defense is a sacred one, even if a man is running a newspaper. The Globe has yet to learn, however, that its prerogative rights do not cover the pretzel of political opinions and patronage in the "back counties." After it has moulded Pottawattami county into some sort of political symmetry it can squirt its soap suds upon the local linen of other counties. If it tries to swing on our gate it must look out for itself. Crawford county has but one blot on her district record and that stain was tattooed into her body politic largely by the encouragement of the Globe. The Globe degenerates into silliness when it talks about the conditions of friendship! It has had no warmer friend than the Bulletin; but while we admire it as an organ we don't like to see it strain its key-board trying to make people believe it is a piano.

Tremendous Success.
