A COMSTOCK ROCKET. From Poverty to Affluence and Back to the Gutter.

The Career of Johnny Skae and His Three Millions--A Typical Millionaire. John Skae, a prominent mining speculator, who accumulated immense wealth in the Comstock mines and afterward lost it, died in San Francisco on the 17th.

It is an established fact, however, that, like the majority of men who have acquired great wealth on the Pacific coast, he started in the race for fame from an humble position. He was a telegraph operator of uncommon ability, which was utilized in the business of transmitting between the Comstock and the San Francisco stock market.

He served for some time as bookkeeper of that institution, and then disappeared from public view until the police found him in a helpless condition on the street, and looked him up in default of $5 bail.

Those who watched the stock market and the figures revolving around it knew that Johnny Skae was still interested in the securities, but it took a practiced eye to detect his presence. His reckless system of "doubling up" until his "margin" were too thin to support his air castles had made a sad broad on his three million "clean up" and left him to hang his hopes on a few speculative properties.

Later developments in the Johnson and murder and suicide cases at Eldora give the impression that Johnson did not cut his own throat as soon as he had killed Miss Rand, but waited until the neighbors began to gather at the house and then took his own life.

Scott county has 24 patients in the insane asylum at Mt. Pleasant, and the expense of keeping them there is $900 per quarter. Des Moines county has 24, Manicure 15, Johnson 17, Wagelle 17, and the other counties, 44 in number, in the Mt. Pleasant institution, have from 3 to 15 patients each in the hospital.

When Italy was sick, we gave her Castoria. When she was a Child, she cried for Castoria. When she became a Man, she clung to Castoria. When she had Children, she gave them Castoria.
