NORTHERN NEBRASKA.

A dealer from the north writes us to know what Omaha merchants are doing to control the trade of northern Nebraska and what they propose to do in view of the rapid railroad extension along the northern boundary of our state.

This is a pertinent and timely question. Omaha has occupied well the trade territory along the Union Pacific and Burlington roads in Nebraska. Her merchants are now and have been for some time supplying a large portion of western Iowa as cheaply as is done by Chicago houses.

That northern Nebraska has not been as thoroughly occupied by our wholesalers has been chiefly due to two causes. Northern Nebraska has not been as thoroughly occupied by railroads as southern Nebraska, and the railroads that have supplied her have found it to their interest to offer special inducements to the merchants along their lines to deal elsewhere than with Omaha.

Increased correspondence on account of the Grant obsequies is the latest excuse from Washington to pacify the hungry office seekers. But even this fails to bring satisfaction to twenty thousand applicants for vacant country postmaster-ships.

Col. Seth Mabry, of Kansas City, thinks that as all the cattlemen in the Indian territory are enthusiastic democrats the president's order for the removal of their herds will be cheerfully obeyed. At last reports it would take a large sized telescope to discover the cheerfulness of the southwestern cattlemen, who rarely allow politics to interfere with business.

Another grief of scandal comes from England. This time it is among the young bloods of famous old Eton school, within sight of Windsor castle and park. About three hundred of the students have been detected in immoral conduct, and they will not be allowed to return to the school next term.

The plea of insanity in the case of Riel was unsuccessful. He has been convicted and sentenced to be hanged on the 18th of September. The prisoner addressed the jury at great length, prefacing his speech with an earnest and affecting prayer.

OMAHA, no less than Trinity parish, is to be congratulated upon the arrival of the new and beautiful chime of bells, which were heard for the first time last evening as they rang out their notes from the church on Capital avenue and Eighteenth street.

one, however, furnished a copy to one of the newspapers which published it. Hence the suit for libel. This list, however, is nothing new, it having been the custom for six years to annually publish such a circular, which was in every instance marked "confidential."

There is some talk of consolidating land offices in the western states. According to a recent despatch from Washington the first state to be redistricted, if the plan is carried out, will be Wisconsin, and Nebraska will follow.

The editor of the Republican accuses the editor of the Herald of being "a reckless libeller." In the face of that late verdict of the district court against the Republican gang, the old proverb of pots calling kettles black seems to have a local application.

PERSONALITIES. Samuel J. Tilden is a confirmed pleaser. The sultan of Turkey is taking music lessons. John Roach, the ship-builder, is 77 years of age.

SWEET BILL MAHONE, of Virginia, has once more girded on his claymore and is collecting statistics of the number of his Virginia followers who have been removed for "offensive partisanship."

As an effort is being made by the enterprising citizens of St. Joe to induce Rev. Sam Jones, the magnetic revivalist, to hold a series of meetings in that city. The expense of the proposed revival will be $5,000, and a committee is now raising the money.

THE five ocean steamship companies, acting under the leadership of the Pacific Mail, having failed to force the distribution of the $400,000 by refusing to transport the mails unless this money was handed over to them in bulk at once, have found out that the mails can be carried without their aid.

FERRAN, the Spanish doctor, is making a fortune out of his system of inoculation, which he claims to be a preventive of cholera. No matter what the real merits of his discovery may be, the people of Spain seem to have great confidence in it, notwithstanding the dubious shakes of the head on the part of other physicians and scientists.

GRANT'S CHARACTER. His Most Prominent Traits, as Depicted by the Hon. Hamilton Fish.

The Hon. Hamilton Fish in the New York Independent: His knowledge of men was generally accurate; but he was apt in this respect, as in others, to reach his conclusions rapidly, and was thus not infrequently led to give his confidence where it was not deserved, and it was from the abuse of his confidence thus reposed that arose most of the errors which, after the close of the war, was visited upon him.

NEW YORK is now preparing over the proposition for a Grant monument. It may not be amiss to mention that more than a thousand dollars is lacking to complete the World's Bartholdi pedestal fund which the New York citizens committee on that monument failed to begin to raise.

THE HERO'S FATAL CIGAR. Dr. Shady Gives His Opinion That the Cancer Came from Smoking.

The Medical Record of Saturday contained a long article by Dr. George F. Shady on the history of General Grant's case. It states that, so far as known, the first symptoms of throat trouble appeared in June, 1884, when the general complained of soreness near the right tonsil.

THE FAVORED REVOLVER. Whenever a shooting affair is reported great pains are taken to give the size of the bullet, the name of the maker and the number of barrels in the weapon.

Correct. To your issue of the BEE of this date you publish extracts from the Chicago Herald describing a paper published in Vicksburg, Miss., during the siege of that city, called the Citizen.

See her husband for half an hour on the day set apart for her semi-annual visit, the wife of a convict at Portsmouth, England, undid all the way from Birmingham, wheeling her trunk and suitcase in a sedan chair.
