THE LAST REQUIEM.

To-day the final honors are being paid over the remains of the nation's great captain. The funeral cortege, which with solemn pomp has wound from the little mountain where Grant died, across the great state where he made his last home, is approaching the grave where he is to be laid to rest.

The universality and sincerity of this mourning is almost long to be remembered by the people of the country. That it is something more than sentiment who can doubt. It proves the falsity of the charge that republics are ungrateful.

While it is conceded that the business center of Omaha is in a very clean condition, we cannot say as much for some sections of the residence portion of Omaha. People are too apt to allow garbage and filth of all kinds to be dumped in the alleys.

OMAHA is suffering incalculable damage by reason of the failure to have a proper building inspection ordinance. The present ordinance only covers the fire limits, and the inspectors are officers whose time is entirely occupied with other business.

The puzzling question of grades, of storm sewerage, of low brick blocks on valuable lots which would pay a handsome percentage on five and six-story structures, the problem of boulevards and parks—all these will have come nearly, if not quite, to a solution, when Omaha has a hundred thousand population.

OTHER LANDS THAN OURS.

The course of events during the week in England has been devoid of more than passing comment. The Churchill episode continues to attract attention with Lord Randolph still holding the trump hand despite the attacks of his fellows.

King John, of Abyssinia, is perfectly willing to relieve Kassala, as he has been for the last year and a half. But he thinks that his services in this matter are worth exactly half a million, which the English government is now preparing to pay.

The debate over the naturalization of Prince Henry of Battenberg shows that the English have of common sense as ready as critics the queen as the Atlantic congress is the president. The accusation was sharply made against her that she wished her own son-in-law made a British subject only that she might pass him over the heads of British veterans in the army.

The failure of the Munster bank has had a very serious effect upon trade throughout Ireland. That unfortunate island does not share in the commercial prosperity of other countries when times are good.

While English politics is embroiled by inter-party strife, Germany seems to be exciting herself or else to be endeavoring to excite the French into symptoms of the old time war fever.

BY THE WAY.

"By the way, I wish you would state in the Bee, in behalf of a suffering neighborhood, that the people living in the vicinity of Trinity cathedral would like those bells to give us a rest."

"I saw a paragraph the other day to the effect that the sexton of a cemetery in an old Massachusetts town had buried over 3,000 persons. How many have you buried, Mr. Madelock?"

"The recent appointment of ex-Senator Tipton as receiver of the land office at Bloomington led a well-known Omaha politician to give the Bee a little reminiscence of Mr. Tipton, whom the Chicago Tribune recently termed an ex-republican senator."

"Talking about McGillivuddy recalls to mind how he became the Indian agent at Pine Ridge," said an army officer the other day.

At the circus the other evening a woman and a girl about sixteen years of age, with a boy about five years old, handed the door-keeper two tickets, but they were stopped a few feet further on by an assistant ticket-taker, who demanded twenty-five cents for the boy's admission.

MUSICAL AND DRAMATIC.

Herr Bandmann, tragedian, called for Europe Saturday.

"Jama" is to be done in grand style in San Francisco in September.

Prof. Anderson, the wizard, has been doing well in the North American.

The number of theaters in Vienna is on the decline; in 1880 there were twelve, and in 1884 only seven.

George Mills was once a scene-painter and actor in the early days of the Old Boy theater. He retired from the stage and became a minister of the gospel.

CONNUBIAL IDEAS.

There is always one positive advantage in marrying a Chicago girl. She comes in handy for stretching the old man's shoes.

Miss Alice Costa, who is to marry young Freinberg, is a great hit at the cottage of the Freinbergs at Long Beach.
