The Avoca Delta gives the coroner, Connell, a great turning over, claiming that at the time of the killing of Jack Mayne he came down there and acted in a very rowdylah manner. One of the troubles about Avoca and the coroner is that Avoca acts as if it was not a part of this county, and never thinks of recognizing Connell as the coroner of the whole county, including Avocs, but goes ahead with its inquests as though there was no such officer in existence. Coroner Connell, on the other hand, is very appreciative of the fact that he is the coroner, and a failure to recognize him hurts him more than it would many men. Hence the ill-feeling which has arisen.

On reaching this side they started on a run through the bottom lands, and were given a lively chase by the officers, a large number of citisens joining in the hunt. The fellows were captured, and word sent to the city police headquarters to come down to the transfer and get them, but the chief said it was no use, for they would only be turned loose sgain, and the city would be out the cost of the express wagon hire in bringing them up. It is high time that some arrangement was made by which these fellows could be given a chance to work for the benefit of the city and themselves.
