An Interview with a Delegate to the Water Ways Convention.

Fraud in Connection With the City's Property Exposed.

AT THE CAPITAL.

THE WATER WAYS CONVENTION. Gen. J. C. McBride and A. J. Sawyer, Esq., left yesterday for St. Paul to attend the northwestern water ways convention to be held in that city. There is considerable interest manifested in the subject, and a reporter called upon Hon. O. P. Mason, one of the Nebraska delegates appointed by the governor to represent the state. Mr. Mason bylieves in the improvement of western rivers, and more especially the Missouri. The river should be made perfectly navigable from St. Louis to Fort Pierre. Communication by water should be made from the west to Chicago, and thus give an outlet to the Atlantic ocean. In reply to a question as to the character of the delegates for ability, Judge Mason thought there were some able men in it. Heretofore there had been nothing done in improving western water ways because of a lack of concerted action. Organization looking towards congressional aid was what was needed more than anything else. The government could well afford to help such a project and it should command the at-tention of all congressmen and senators in the western states.

If one half of the money were given to the improvement of rivers that had been donated to railroads, every water course of any size would float boats capable of carrying the grain of the northwestern area there would be a sufficient saving to producers there would be a sufficient saving to producers to pay for the work in two years. There is so t-evident truth in the proposition that wheels can never compute with water in the carriage of freight. The government had paid the Union Pacific $65,000,000. One half of this amount would create a good channel in the Missouri from St. Louis to Sioux City and equip it with a line of steam barges sufficient to carry all the freight of that secfrom the point of shipment to New Orleans. Now the carrying cost was treble that sum. In 1881 an experiment was made at Kansas City. Four hundred brahals.

For example, look at the tennage of the For example, look at the tonnage of the Ohio river, it is simply enormous. What is true of the Ohio could be made true of the Missouri. Some people think that waterways would conflict with the railways. Mr. Mason believes that there would be plenty of room for both. Of course, there were certain articles of perishable freight which could never be conveyed by water. As the country grows this business will become much greater and afford ample business for railroads. The boats could carry the grain and coal and in Mr. Mason's opinion it was only a matter of time when this would be done. The railroads have fought any scheme only a matter of time when this would be done. The railroads have fought any scheme looking to the improvement of our rivers, but they will find that they must submit to the inevitable. Judge Mason is unable to attend the convention, but he believes that something will result from it. "There is a certain editor in the state I would like to have seen the governor appoint," said Mr. Mason, "but his na-row-midded policy prevented him from doing so."

SHOULD NOT BE SOLD. There is a proposition now before the votors of this city to sell the present engine house and city jail and devote the proceeds towards paying for the new engine house and city hall on Marketsquare. There are some very peculiar things about this matter. The new building is a two-story brick building and will accommodate the city officers, besides having a jail. There is no perceptible difference between the size of the new house and the old one, and why the change should be the old one, and why the change should be made is more than can be found out.

A certain former official of the city charges that there is somsting not entirely above board in the transaction. He says there is no particular need for selling the old house, and he believes that a job will be put up to about give the property away. The special election to be sheld September 5 is to empower the mayor and council to sell, and this power should not be delegated. Property on Eleventh street is rapidly enhancing in value, and that of the engine he use is just as valuable for the city to hold as a private in dividual. The appreciation in value will be at least 10 per cent a year, possibly more. The danger too of its sale for less than its real value is too great. The property should not be sold for another resson. Lincoln is not be sold for another reason. Lincoln is plenty large enough now to have two engine houses, and the new one is far enough removed from that one now in use to based the second removed from the control of the control

Some time since an article appeared in the Chicago Tribune, supposed to have been written by Milt Hoffman, concerning the alleged photographing of a human soul by some alleged scientist here, whom the writer calls Holland. Of course the whole story was into the Courier-Journal, Boston Herald and other eastern papers, and seems to have found some believers; at least Postmaster McBride received three lotters yesterday from eastern points inquiring after the facts. The post-master anticipates a storm of inquiries as the received three letters yesterday from eastern points inquiring after the facts. The post-master anticipates a storm of inquiries as the atory travels the rounds, and threatens to have alot of circular denials printed, and the bill sent to Hoffman for liquidation.

Here Marshal Cumings who was stand-ing by, dropped his head and blushed like a school girl. He is displaying considerable energy in the work of making the ball a success, having already distinguished in the triplicate NEVER IN THE WAR.

For years it has been understood that Capt. Stewart, of this city, had a horse that had been ridden by Gen. Grant during the war. The animal was drapped in mourning and figured in the Grant obsequies in this city, by being led at the head of the procession. Ex-Mayor Whitcomb, of Saward, states positively that the horse never was in the war. Captain Stewart bought the horse from Captain Honderson some years age, and it is understood thought he was getting a historic prize. This dream is now for the first time dispelled and the truth made known. Major J. D. Kleutch, of this city, vouches for the above.

LCCAL JOTS.

There is quite a lot of counterfelt money being circulated in Lincoln, presumably by the crooks who have taken up a temporary residence here until after the fair. People should be careful about taking any of it.

The new street car company is building its track at the rate of one block a day. The objective point for the present is the home for the friendless, which is two miles from the Burlington and Missouri depot.

The Burlington and Missuri company is still buying land around its depot. Well informed persons say the object is to baild a large transfer freight depot which will be used in transfering freight from the branches to the main line east and west.

Professor Edgren, instructor in modern lan-

Ex-Lieutenant Governor Ages is in the city, and he says that corn never looked finar than at present all through Hamilton county. A number of Lincoln people are visiting the Cass county fair at Plattemouth and the Dadge county fair at Fremont.

A. H. Swart, Esq., editor of the Tecumseh Chleftain, has been in the city for a day or two. Mr. Swart is a clever gentleman and a competent newspaper man, and his efforts seem to be appreciated in Johnson county.

Three wagon loads of tents were shipped from the capitol building yesterday for use during the G. A. R. reunion next week at Beatrice.

A COUTERFEITER CAGED. Charles F. Clark was arrested late yesterday afternoon for making and uttering counterfeit silver dollars. Sheriff Melick made the capture after long and patient efforts tyfind the guilty parties. The man was found in an old shanty, No. 1442 O street, by the sheriff and two deputies. The work was very good. Clark was given-away by a companion named William Duvali, with whose wife Clark is said to have been intimate, thus exciting the husband's jealousy. Dies, metal, ground glass and chemicals, together with a number of false coins, were discovered on the premises. The man was making counterfeits

Caldwell got the horses off in a fine bunch, and of course they raised an immense cloud of dust, in which those out of the front rana could not see whare they were riding to. At the half mile post Moran, who was riding Miss Daly, and as well as could be seen with the dust, was in an outside third place, having Jos. Howell a little in front, and closely followed by Garrison on Blizzard, and Lane on Bonnie Lee, He was seen to suddenly pitch high into the air, and was quickly followed by the other two falling also. Moran's neck was broken and death was almost instantaneous. The other riders, Garrison and Lane, are all right.

The Marriage of Mr. Ike New and Miss Rachel Newman Last Night -A Brilliant Event.

Mr. Ike New, of the firm of Chian & New, and Miss Rachel T. Newman, daughter of B. Newman, both local residents, were married at 7 o'clock last night, at the Temple of Israel.

The chancel of the church was decorated with flowers and bright leaves and the audience was large and brilliantly dressed, forming thus within the interior of the sacred edifice a picture in harmony their carriages, and to the inspiring livering his decision in strains from the organ of Mendelssohn's Thirteenth street paving tuary, while their attending friends enlined within the rall of the sanctuary. The beautiful rites of the church were plemnized by Rabb! Banson, the new pastor, who prefaced the ritual with a few well selected words of admonitio and counsel. The text in the Hebrew tongue pronounced by the rabbi, and the passing of the cup of betrothal, added be suty and solemnity to the ceremonial.

The bride was attired in a white satin dress, cut princess en train, trimmed with Oriental lace ruffles, while from a head crest of flowers flowed a fall length tulie veil. The ornaments constated altogether of orange blossom, no item of jewlry being worn by her.

The groom wore the black broadcloth which is the custom 'de rigeur." After the services the party

Ex Marshal Guthrie, of omaha, Yesterday morning the prison doors of the Nobraska penitentiary opened and Royal C. Guthrie, formerly city marshal of Omaha, walked forth a free mar. He came to the city and took breakfast and dinner at the Windsor hotel. Guthrie looks very different than he did when sent from Omaha a year and a half ago. His face is pale and divested of the full beard the gentleman used to wear. His health is good and outside of a lack of sunlight he looks better than when sent to the penitentiary. Alas, for the theory of a system of Pallmen robberies, the occarrence of Saturday night loses the proper complexion. The local representatives of the Pullman company era satisfied that Penny and Clark, the two men claiming to have been robbed, have some rascally purpose in circulating such a report. The evidence is sgainst them; their stories failed in so many points to harmonize that they are believed to be falsehoods. W. W. Cloon, the Cincinnati commercial agent, sgainst whem the BER yesterday said suspicton had been directed, is worthy of the most complete exoneration. None but the scamps themselves claimed to have had such suspicion. Mr. Cloon is a most estimable gentleman of time family, high attainments and advanced business qualifications. The Injunction Denied.

Judge Neville held a short session in chambers yesterday for the purpose of de livering his decision in the Thirteenth street paving case. After briefly reviewing the case, he remarked that he believed that the city had taken the proper course in awarding the contract, and that the court had no power to delay the paving until next year. If the city council wanted to grant the time asked for by some of the property owners, it had the power to do so.
