THE WYOMING TROUBLE.

President Cleveland Telegraphs Gen. Breck, "Protect the Chinese from Lawless Violence."

The Situation at the Coal Mines—Something About the Life of the Miners—The Tyranny of the Union Pacific.

General Breck, assistant adjutant-general, received yesterday a telegram from President Cleveland, telling him to do everything to protect the Chinese laborers from the lawless violence of the Wyoming coal miners.

"You can say that we shall do it, too," said he to a reporter yesterday, in speaking of the matter. No, I can't tell yet how we shall act.

"I can tell you something about the anti-Chinese riots at Rock Springs," said a gentleman of this city to a reporter, yesterday, "which will clearly show to the unprejudiced that the white miners are almost to be justified in their course, and that the Union Pacific railroad is criminally responsible for the terrible scenes enacted last week."

The speaker was a man of intelligence and rare powers of discernment, who has spent a number of years at Rock Springs and is fully acquainted with the history of the coal mines and the troubles there. Being invited to express himself fully on the matter thus broached, he yielded to an interview which cannot be given in full to those who have become so familiar with the subject of the anti-Mongolian riots.

"In the first place understand that these mines are owned and operated by the Union Pacific railroad company, under cover of the name of Beckwith, Quinn & Co., Omaha, Neb., & Co., contract to furnish coal to the company at so much per ton, and supply all the necessary labor and machinery. But they do not do this. The miners are all of them paid by the Union Pacific road, the machinery is furnished by the Union Pacific road, while the same corporation stands entirely responsible for all the run-down expenses of the mines.

"The life of a Rock Springs white miner is that of a slave. The Union Pacific road is his master. Let me tell you some of the facts which bear me out in making this statement. Politics at Rock Springs are virtually controlled by the Union Pacific. The U. P. boss, the sheriff and the justice of the peace all belong to one clique—all working in the interests of the great corporation. How are they elected? The Union Pacific road sends its vote-broker among the miners to tell them—'You vote for this man or you vote for that man. If you don't vote for this man you are compelled to do just as he bids, and the consequence is that the Union Pacific has no trouble in putting its tools into office, thus securing control of the town or county government. I know it to be a fact that the justice of the peace at Rock Springs is under the pay of the Union Pacific road. When the justice of the peace is under the U. P. road has a debt to collect from one of the miners, they simply procure a writ of garnishment from the justice of the peace, without allowing a trial, and serve it upon their victim, who has had no chance to defend himself. The miner is compelled either to satisfy the writ or contest in the higher courts. The latter course would cost him his position, and entail upon him a burden of expense which he could not bear. He is therefore compelled to submit to the outrage without a murmur."
