is only a part of beauty; but it is a part. Every lady may have it; at least, what looks like it. Magnolia Balm both freshens and beautifies.

A MAINE BEAR HUNTER.

Amid His Bear Traps He Describes His Pursuit.

Lewiston (Me.) Journal.

I found myself hobnobbing with a bear hunter in the midst of his traps the other day. The hunter was Enoch R. Knapp, who lives on Bear river, in the town of Newry. Bear river is a small stream that runs down from a spur of the White Mountain chain, and empties into the Androscoggin at Newry. The bear hunter's house is a neat cottage at the base of the mountain, around which the river winds. The road winds among steep hills and thickly wooded mountains till it seems to lose itself and lose you in the bargain.

This mountain has long been known as a favorite resort for bears. The farmers in the vicinity do not try to keep many sheep. One of them went up on the mountain with a yoke of oxen to haul some lumber a long ago. A very large and hungry bear appeared on the scene, and rushed at the cattle with mouth open and eyes full of fury. The oxen snorted and started on a wild gallop down the steep mountain. The farmer's judgment was as good as his cattle's. He had nothing with which to defend himself, and he had to try to devise a way of escape. He hid an amusing but brilliant thing. Running between the oxen he caught hold of the ring in the yoke, and dangled there until the bear had carried him to the foot of the mountain and out of reach of the bear. The old growler jumped and snarled around the oxen's flanks and tore their hides, but could not reach the man between them holding on to dear life.

Mr. Knapp has a blacksmith shop opposite his house, where he makes bear traps and shoe horns. His traps are ingeniously made of iron and steel, and one of them looks like two stout wagon springs with a pair of jaws in the middle. These jaws are bands of wrought iron with great steel teeth riveted into them. When the jaws are opened, you see a trencher in the middle of the machine. The object of the bear hunter is to induce the bear to step his foot on that trencher. The least pressure lifts the catch and the jaws fly together with crushing force. The teeth in the jaws make this kind of a trap a bear-killer as well as a bear-catcher.

Your bear hunter must use considerable craft. Said Mr. Knapp: "I usually build a cubby-house in the woods of old stumps and decayed branches. I sorter pile 'em up around, you know, and leave a little opening for the bear to go in, after he sees the oxen and his curiosity is excited. I catch some suckers or other kind of fish in the river and hang 'em up in the cubby. Then I try to get the bear to step on the trap. A bear never steps on a log, in his path, but always steps over it. I usually fix the trap on the other side of a log or branch, so he will be pretty sure to step over the log and into the trap. A knowing old bear won't go into one of these cubbies. Sometimes after trying to catch an old bear in this way I get him and not getting him, I have caught the old fellow by hanging a string of fish in a cawless way on a tree, as if left there accidentally by some sportsman, and putting the trap underneath. Sometimes I find a track where a bear has a habit of fording a brook. I take away the stone in the brook which the bear steps on when he crosses, and put the trap in its place. When the bear feels after the old and familiar stone, his forepaw is caught in the trap. Some bears have learned to smell a trap, so we have to kill the smell. We do that by daubing it over with lard and beeswax. I have 12 traps and visit 'em twice a week. The bear is usually caught by the fore paw. He don't live more than 24 hours after the jaw closes on him, as a general thing. In warm weather the pelt would spoil if I did not get it pretty quick after the critter died. The fur is in the best condition when the bears are hanging late in the fall. Then it is as nice as a Merino sheep's wool. I get $5 to $15 apiece for my pelts. The bears spend the winter in the ledges about the mountain, and come out in the spring, as if they had been buried that long. There are many trees there have been a lot of oaky places for bears around here."

"The play's the thing, wherein I'll reach the conscience of the king."

And equally true is it that Dr. Pierce's "Pleasant Purgative Pellets" (the original Little Liver Pills) are the most effective means that can be used to reach the seat of disease, cleaning the bowels and restoring the assimilating nature in her recuperative way. By drugs, etc.

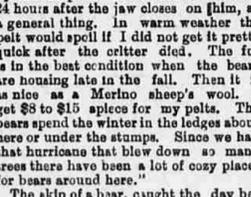

A New Torpedo.

Gen. Borden has been for some months perfecting a new torpedo in Constantinople. The invention is devoted to an important feature of torpedo warfare. The risks run by powerful and costly warships have caused the adoption of strong nettings, intended to arrest the torpedo and cause its explosion before reaching the hull. Robert F. Borden, an American inventor, has devised a new torpedo, which he has named the "Borden Torpedo." It is a small torpedo, which can be used in the same manner as the ordinary torpedo, but it is designed to be used in a different way. It is a small torpedo, which can be used in the same manner as the ordinary torpedo, but it is designed to be used in a different way. The Terrible Drain

Which siphons has upon the system must be arrested, and the blood must be purified, or serious consequences will ensue. For purifying and vitalizing effects, Hood's Sarsaparilla has been found superior to any other preparation. It expels every trace of impurity from the blood, and bestows new life and vigor upon every function of the body, and brings it to entirely overgrown disease.
