Trade Review.

Signs of improvement multiply rather than diminish, and there is greater confidence that trade has entered upon a process of recovery from the depression that has so long weighed down all interests; that the gradual renewal of activity is something more than the periodical revival looked for at this time of the year. The recovery is apparent in a better demand for products of every class, and in the beginning of a gradual but evidently genuine advance in prices. The volume of business that jobbers transact continues to increase. To such an extent is this the case that in nearly all the great commercial centers the forces employed heretofore are no longer sufficient to cope with the demand. In a great many large houses extra help is being taken on, and the capacity of the house pressed to its full limit. The decline in prices on goods during the past two years requires the handling of a much greater amount of stock to aggregate the same value. Present indications are that the demand will increase the tonnage to such an extent as will net a much better business, though margins for profit remain the same.
During the past week there has been very little to note in this city excepting a steady upward and onward move in all kinds of business. Business men do not expect or hope for a boom, but they do expect that, inasmuch as the decline has been regular and steady for the past two or three years, so there will be a corresponding and gradual rise in prices. When the merchant balances up his books at the end of each week it is gratifying to find that the week's business is in excess of the previous week and looks forward to the same increase the week to come. There has never been a time when the farmers of Nebraska were better able to pay cash for what they buy than the present, and as a result country merchants are better able to make collections and meet their obligations with the wholesalers.
The past week we have seen sugars which have been going up steadily, on account of the canning season, reach the limit and start back. Despite the raise in prices the demand has been such as to render the market in this city almost bare of sugar. The iron market is stronger and the supply of nails is becoming very short and there are very few tens and twenties in the market. Rates on nails are advancing and unless indications are very deceptive they will advance to $3.00. The nailers have a very strong combination and have been on a strike since June, which has cut off the supply. The Omaha nail works are running to full capacity and help to supply the local market. The sales of lumber are fully up to last season, which was the best in this locality for years. Coal will advance about the first of the month, but will not effect dealers to any extent, so far as purchasing, as the majority of them have already laid in their stock, but will enable them to sell at greater advantage. The produce markets have been very quiet the past week, but prices are stronger. The market is very nearly cleaned out and the present week will bring forth a demand that must force prices up. The grain market has been very steady in this city the past week. Corn, which has remained at 32c for some time, went up to 34c, and dropped again to 32c in carload lots. Corn, by the wagon load, sold for 35c to 40c.
Taken as a whole the business done during the week has been very satisfactory, and the volume of trade for the present week will be even greater.

OMAHA LIVE STOCK.

UNION STOCK YARDS, S. OMAHA,
Saturday Evening, September 28, 18—.
Buyers were backward to-day, and the market was dull. There is a good demand for butchers stock, such as good cows and heifers. The receipts of hogs were fair, and while there was a feeling that the market was a shade lower, sales were made at about yesterday's prices.
