

THE OMAHA DAILY BEE. COUNCIL BLUFFS. SATURDAY MORNING, OCTOBER 3, 1885. OFFICE: No. 12 Pearl Street.

Delivered by carrier in any part of the city at twenty cents per week. H. W. TILGNER, Manager.

MINOR MENTION.

Water rents are now due. Call on Reiter, the tailor, for fall goods.

Full and winter clothing to order. Norene & Landstrom, 205 Main street.

It is expected that work will commence on the new government building on the 15th.

A. Overton & Co., of this city, are furnishing the piles for the Belt railway in Omaha.

The ladies of the Baptist church gave a social at the residence of Mrs. Wright, on Bluff street, last evening.

Rev. G. W. Crofts, pastor of the Congregational church, is expected to preach in Pacific Junction Sunday evening.

Miss Della Hopper, who died in Leavenworth Tuesday, has relatives here, and will be laid at rest in Fairview cemetery.

The Acme club gave its social in Beno's hall last evening. It was quite a drowsy affair, and was evidently heartily enjoyed by all who participated.

Henry Leffort has raised his house on Ninth avenue, between Sixth and Seventh streets, preparatory to having the grounds filled to grade.

Constable Story, of Panama, was here yesterday after young Pratt, who is wanted there for arson, as told in yesterday's Bee.

Mayor Cole, of Pacific Junction, on receiving word with his bride, was given a public reception, and the event was duly celebrated by nearly all the residents of the place.

In the United States court the jury in the case of Horsler vs. the Kansas City railway has returned a verdict in favor of the plaintiff for $500, the plaintiff claiming damages for right of way.

The Athletics, who got so badly beaten by the Fremont club, purpose going to Omaha Sunday to witness the game between the Fremont club and the Omahas, hoping to get some consolation out of the game.

Constable Wesley has openly announced that he is not and will not be a candidate for any position. This statement is made on account of the report that he was expected to run for sheriff on a track of his own.

The letter carriers are preparing to give their annual ball in Beno's hall on the evening of October 20. The affair will no doubt be an enjoyable one, and the carriers certainly merit a liberal support and generous encouragement in making it a financial success.

The injunction cases from this city in the United States circuit court are to be heard on a motion to remand to the state court at the coming term at Des Moines on the 15th inst. The term opens the third week in this month.

Constable Wesley recently took away from a man who was traveling through here a mule which it was deemed was unfit for travel and which was being cruelly treated. The mule has since been sent by order of the authorities.

James L. Wesley celebrated his twenty-seventh birthday Thursday, and a large number of his friends took him by surprise in the evening, the party being no less enjoyable, however, and all seeming to have a merry time. Among the friends present were Mr. and Mrs. W. Winn, of Omaha.

John Beno & Co., last night removed the balance of their stock to their new store, No. 32 and 34 Main and No. 33 and 35 Pearl streets, next door to the post-office, where they are now located, and would be pleased to have their friends, patrons and the public in general call and inspect their new goods, prices and new store.

Joseph Kintz, who has been traveling in the West, Gronoweg & Schenck, at J. W. Kleeb, also a traveling man, will shortly open up a fine grocery store, opposite the Ogden house under the firm style of Kintz & Kleeb. The firm is composed of enterprising young men who thoroughly understand their business, and they will no doubt make a success.

The Young Men's Christian association but little more than cleared expenses on the McGilbey concert, the expenses being necessarily high, and although there was a large audience, yet many of the tickets sold at a low price.

The association is to be thanked for giving Council Bluffs such an entertainment, and it is to be hoped that its next venture in the amusement line will prove more profitable. The association merits a hearty and liberal financial support.

Even the Nonpareil, which in the past fought the idea of another bridge connecting the two cities, and which could not say too bitter things about the Bee for even suggesting such an enterprise, has been thinking over the matter, and now comes out as an enthusiastic advocate of the bridge.

Council Bluffs seems almost unanimously in favor of the enterprise, and the Nonpareil wisely stops his talk about it being an Omaha scheme, sprung by the Bee, and joins in hurrahing for it.

N. E. Tyson, the janitor of the high school building, yesterday met with quite a serious accident. While using a pocket knife, by a slip, the blade entered his forearm, completely severing the radial artery. The blood fairly gushed from the wound, but wrapping a piece of cloth about it he walked all the way down town, leaving a bloody track over almost every inch of the ground over which he passed, and on reaching Foster's drug store, Dr. Cook was called in, and with the assistance of Dr. Green, the wound was cared for, and the bleeding stopped.

The citizens' meeting, which has been called by the mayor for the purpose of selecting a ticket to suit him, has been postponed another week. This gives a little longer time for the candidates nominated in the regular convention to make up their minds whether they want the mayor to support them or not, and if so, how much. The mayor's democratic convention has dwindled down to a little free-for-all gathering of citizens, and this will soon die of frequent postponement.

None of the candidates on either ticket seem to be very anxious as to whether he supports or abuses them.

Last night a woman named Ladis was brought to this city from Red Oak under arrest. She was charged with raising silver certificates. She worked the business men of Red Oak by raising ten dollar silver certificates to twenty dollars.

From there she went to Villisca, and there succeeded in passing ten more of her raised bills, when, in answer to a notice sent by telegraph, an officer from Red Oak went down and arrested her. How she could have succeeded so well is a mystery, for the raising of a silver certificate from ten to twenty dollars is a hard and bold piece of work, there being no twenty dollar certificates issued by the government. She was found over by commissioner Strawn, and to-day she will be taken before the grand jury here.

If you wish to make legitimately from ten to fifty dollars per day write to Judd & Smith, No. 34 Fourth street, Council Bluffs.

DEPARTED HOG HOLE NEEDED

An Existing Darning Sleeve That Might be Removed by Flames.

BOUNCING A DOOZY INTRUDER.

A Valuable Acquisition to Council Bluffs Business Interests—Pratt Takes French Leave—Items About the City.

A Hog Cemetery Needed.

Hon. Joseph Sampson, of Storm Lake, having his attention called to the fact that farmers have been carelessly disposing of the bodies of hogs, which have died of the cholera, or fever, which is so prevalent, has been investigating the matter, and gives the following as the result of his observations:

Since P. McTigue, of Sac county, complained of farmers throwing dead hogs into the Coon river, as well as into the outlet from the lake, I have been looking up the dead hog business and find that many of the hogs, existing in nearly every township surrounding Storm Lake, I find that farmers whose hogs are dying from cholera or fever are simply hauling out the carcasses and piling them up, on the open prairie to rot and scatter the disease broadcast over many adjoining farms.

What can people be thinking about that will do such a thing? Where are the township trustees? Why do they not meet and appoint an officer or agent to enforce the law in regard to dead animals? Bury or burn at once and disinfect the hog pens or troughs, using carbolic acid, etc., is this not what the law says? One farmer just now tells me he hauled out nearly one hundred dead hogs and some old pigs and left them to decay on the open prairie not far from his house. He said he would have buried his if his neighbors had not done the same thing as himself. He said the law did not call for burying or burning.

If hog cholera, or swine fever, as our English friends call it, does not sweep like a prairie fire over thousands of farms in this part of the state, I will be greatly surprised. If the teachings of science are worth anything to us, on one point they are very clear. It is this: That this swine disease is the result of the growth of a very minute germ or worm that multiplies and breeds in the organs of the pig. That it can be transmitted by dogs, by birds, rats and mice, and some go so far as to say by flies. A Mr. Stahl, of Illinois, makes the further startling statement that cholera and diphtheria will be found to prevail after an outbreak of hog cholera.

So much has been written upon this matter of late that I only want to put a pin in it so that people will wake up and look at what a business and fire will be on the breezes of heaven from farm to farm this autumn, if we don't bury or burn our dead hogs. We must not think of selling them to that propagator of disease—the dead hog man. Some of the lard tried out by these men finds its way back into the food we eat, and the soap we wash our bodies and clothes with—uncooked germs again returning to plague us.

I don't want this letter of complaint, suggestion or warning to be too long, but I want to be clearly and emphatically understood before closing as to the necessity for burying. Allow me to suggest a simple and easy plan for burying dead pigs. It is to take a plow and scraper and open a good deep trench in some secluded spot on the farm, far away from any house. Make it deep enough so that the hogs, if they are dropped side by side, the loose dirt can be shoveled or scraped back easily until at least four feet of dirt shall cover each animal. The trench can be made long enough in any direction, and the dirt once gets into a herd. If it should not be filled, so much the better for the farmer. Lard is still cheap—a pig cemetery need not cost $5 in land and labor, and it may save thousands of dollars to others by prevention of the spread of disease. Should all our pigs be taken out of this country we will sustain, as a people, a loss of nearly half a million dollars the present year, besides crippling our hog industry for a long time to come, through fear of a fresh outbreak which may occur any time, if we let the dead animals lie around to pollute the surface of the soil for coming years.

A Drunken Intruder.

At an early hour yesterday morning there was a scene in the upper part of the city, which was most sensational in some of its particulars. A gentleman who has occasion to leave his house about 4 o'clock every morning to attend to his work, returning home about breakfast time, left the house as usual yesterday morning, leaving the door unlocked as he went out. His wife, a most worthy young woman, was fast asleep, and a drunken fellow from Omaha, named Hawser, came along the street trying, as he had at several other places to get in. He had failed to get into the Weston house, and had tried one or two other places, and by some chance found the door of this private residence, and finding it open, he entered, and proceeded to turn into the first bed which he found, with apparent little care or attention to his whereabouts. The woman awakening found the fellow fast asleep in her bed, and she was naturally frightened almost into fainting, but like a brave little woman dealt him two or three blows in the face as her strength would permit, and jumping out she ran screaming out of the house calling for help. The neighbors rallied, and before the fellow had hardly aroused to a realization of where he was, they had him arrested and on the way to police headquarters. There seemed no law to punish him, he having attempted no violence, but seemingly having wandered in there in a maudlin condition. On account of the high standing of the family and the unfortunate notoriety which might otherwise be given the innocent woman, the names are not made public. The affair caused a lively sensation in the vicinity of the scene and there was enough indignation felt against the intruder to have made his situation extremely hazardous for him, had some one only started any move toward violence, but after being retained at police headquarters for a time, while the county attorney was looking up the law, he was released and made good use of his legs to get out of town.

Pratt Skips Out.

Charles E. Pratt, an account of whose arrest for arson at Panama appeared in the Bee yesterday, has escaped. It seems that Constable R. H. Story, of Panama, who came to Council Bluffs after Pratt, started home with the prisoner yesterday, and when the train was about fifteen miles from this city young Pratt jumped off and escaped. The city authorities telephoned along the line of the Rock Island railroad yesterday, and the young man will most likely be captured to-day, as he was handcuffed when he leaped from the train.

A Wholesale Fruit House.

For several seasons Mr. O. W. Butts has been in Council Bluffs attending to the distribution of California fruit, which has been shipped here by the carload. A short time ago the Bee made public his views as to this being the natural point for distributing this fruit, and in that interview he expressed the belief that Council Bluffs would be the center of the largest trade in that line in the west. He is now showing his confidence in that judgment by entering into a large wholesale fruit house here, and has secured for present quarters, No. 512 Broadway. He intends to enlarge as necessary, and this addition to the wholesale interests of the city is one which calls for congratulations. It is to be hoped that other enterprises will soon be ready for public announcement.

Kickers in Council.

The special meeting of the board of health and common council was held last evening, a large number of citizens and members of the council being present.

Mary Kelley died last winter of the small-pox, and was buried at the pest house. Her friends asked permission to take up her body and bury it in a Catholic cemetery. Permission was granted.

Dr. Seybert asked for the payment of his bill for attending smallpox cases nearly a year ago. The city attorney gave it as his opinion that the county and not the city was liable. A committee was appointed to present the matter to the county board.

The question of a union slaughter house was discussed by the board and cussed by the butchers. A committee was appointed to harmonize matters and decide the question.

Madison street was exempted from building a house sewer.
