Frightful Case of a Colored Man.

I contracted a fearful case of blood poison in 1883. I was treated by some of the best physicians in Atlanta. They used the old remedies of mercury and potash, which brought on rheumatism and impaired my digestive organs. Every joint in me was swollen and full of pain. When I was given up to die, my physicians thought it would be a good time to test the virtues of Swift's Specific. When I commenced taking S. S. S. the physician said I could not live two weeks under the ordinary treatment. He commenced to give me the medicine strictly according to directions, which I continued for several months. I took nothing else and commenced to improve from the very first. Soon the rheumatism left me, my appetite became all right, and the ulcers, which the doctor said were the most frightful he had ever seen, began to heal, and by the 1st of October, 1884, I was a well man again. I am stronger now than I ever was before, and weigh more.

LEM MCCLENDON.

Lem McClendon has been in the employ of the Chess Culley Company for some years, and I know the above statement to be true. At the time he began taking Swift's Specific he was in a horrible condition. I regard his cure as almost miraculous.

The Towns and Cities of Norway and Sweden as Seen by an Omaha Man.

HONESTY, SOBRIETY HAPPINESS.

Glimpses of Gottenberg, Christiana and Stockholm, Where the Almighty Kroner is a Secondary Deity—An Interesting Letter.

STOCKHOLM, Sept. 5.—[Correspondence of the BEE.]—My impression of Norway and Sweden as an agricultural country does not compare favorably with Nebraska. It might, however, compare with some portions of Oregon, Washington territory and the Puget Sound country. About four-fifths is timber and water, leaving but little for farm purposes. The harvest in the southern portion has just begun and farther north in the vicinity of Christiania everything is green, and I question whether they will harvest it. I notice the potatoes are just in blossom, and a frost a few days ago nipped them. The people are feeling quite blue and say this is a very late wet and cold season. I agree with them, for it requires all the clothing we can get on to keep us warm. This, however, has been the case ever since we left New York August 1. The scenery is not grand but picturesque, in consequence of the numerous lakes, gorges and waterfalls skirted with heavy timber, principally spruce and Scotch firs. The latter are most valuable for commercial purposes and are exported in large quantities to other countries. The lumber business seems to be one of their greatest industries, although the Norwegian and Swedish iron has gained a world wide reputation. I did not see as many furnaces and rolling mills as I expected. There are no Pittsburgs or Wheelings in either of these countries. We came into this country by way of Denmark, took steamer at Copenhagen for Gottenberg, about twelve hours ride over a beautiful sheet of water from two to ten miles wide, and enter one of the finest harbors in Sweden. Gottenberg has a population of 75,000. It is the first commercial and second largest city in Sweden, and third largest in the Scandinavian peninsula.

The streets are all well paved. It has fine botanical and other gardens, museums, picture galleries, theatres, etc. The only affection I have for the place is a very bad cold which I brought away with me, and have not been able to get rid of it yet. Here we take the cars for Trollhatton falls. The scenery about the falls is very fine. The falls themselves are not so much, but the surroundings make it a delightful resort. Quite a number of factories utilize a portion of the power in making pulp out of wood to be used in the manufacture of paper. These falls are said to be the largest in this country. They will not compare with Niagara or Shoshone. We go from here by rail to Christiania, the capital of Norway. The population is about ninety thousand. The city occupies a picturesque situation at the northern extremity of the Christiana Fjord, eighty miles from the sea. This country is full of these Fjords or inlets from the sea. The largest vessels go all through the mountain country. One can visit the North Cape and all the grand scenery of the north and mountain country by steamers. It reminds me very much of the Puget Sound country; in fact, it is very similar, and when I come to think of it we must be very nearly opposite to that country on the globe. While at Christiana we had a chance to see the most learned men, both old and young. The university turns out, or did turn out on the 2d of September, about one thousand students, old and young. This is the time of their annual meeting. There were twenty-five persons present who graduated fifty years ago. They took their dinner at our hotel. The grand class of about 100 who were students twenty-five years ago, took dinner at Free Mason Hall. A finer looking or more intelligent set of men I never saw anywhere. All wore the conventional evening dress, including white cravat. They are all required to learn at least three language, including the English, consequently English is frequently heard in Christiania. Nearly all the shop keepers speak it.

The streets are very broad and one beautiful avenue in particular leading up to the palace suggested to me what Capitol avenue might be if our citizens would turn their attention to parking the centers of our wide streets and having only a road way of fifteen feet on either side, or thirty feet in the centers with parking sides. Sod is much cheaper than paving and a well kept lawn is certainly more beautiful. When I compare this city with ours in public improvements and things that really adorn and make a city beautiful and attractive, I feel as though we had nothing, yet we have ten times the trade, commerce, business snap and get up that they have. But they are away ahead of us in that which makes life pleasant and desirable. When we left home we expected to have gone up to North Cape, but this idea we abandoned as it was too late for the midnight sun and too late in the season for comfort, May, June and July are the best months. So we leave that for some future time perhaps. Last year some thirty thousand tourists visited this north country. This year there were not nearly so many. When one has the time and a good, congenial party I would regard it a much finer trip for the summer than Switzerland. The scenery as you go north is much finer.

So we leave Norway and two days by rail brings us through the heart of Sweden to its capital, Stockholm. The population is about 200,000. It is built upon nine islands and two semi-islands, and is called the Venice of the North. It is a beautiful situated city, clean and healthful. In fact the cities in this country are all healthy and the grave yards will bear witness to this fact.

The city as we see it to-night from our third story in the Grand hotel, is particularly beautiful. It is illuminated in honor of the Prince of Wales, who has just arrived from the regatta down the bay. A large number of small steam vessels went out to meet him and the king of Sweden. It required about twenty-five state carriages to convey the party from the island below the hotel to the palace immediately opposite our hotel. The outriders with their torches, the various colored lights on the vessels, electric lights, fire works flags, including the stars and stripes, the people shouting—all this has a tendency to make me say it is one of the most beautifully located cities in the world. The royal palace, which is an immense quadrangular granite and brick edifice, plastered on the outside, as is most of the buildings, to represent stone, covers about one block of ground. It has a majestic appearance, from whatever point it is viewed. It stands on the highest point of the central island, and the view from the platform on the northwestern side, over Lake Malar, is the finest in Stockholm. The palace contains 516 rooms, thirty-two kitchens, and 104 cellars. I will not attempt to describe the interior or what it contains, suffice it to say that it is filled from garret to cellar with fine arts and precious things. The library contains seventy thousand volumes.

Stockholm has many fine public and private buildings, and still more are being built. One of the things that I do not understand is why these old cities in Europe should grow so rapidly. I notice a great change in the past five years in those that I visited then. London, for instance, has improved more in proportion than any city I know of in America. Antwerp, Amsterdam, Hamburg and Copenhagen are all very much improved. Whole streets are being built up with fine seven and eight-story buildings. In this city I notice a large number of fine and eight seven-story buildings. The material used is brick and stone, while in the country the houses are of wood, something rarely seen in other parts of Europe. The people all seem well satisfied with their lot. They love their king, their country, their homes, and upon the whole enjoy life much more than we do in America. Life can be spent much easier here. There is not that rush and excitement in business, not that desire to gain riches, not so much interfering with other people's business, not so much gossip. In fact, take the whole Scandinavian country and they are the most honest, sober and quiet people I ever met. They are also very intelligent and industrious, and it is rarely that you find a well-to-do one leaving his country. On the contrary, I find many that have emigrated to America and have returned better satisfied. We find but little or no drunkenness, no fights, no rows, consequently but little use for police and but few soldiers. Law and order seems to prevail. It is not an expensive country to live in or travel in. We do find some trouble in the interior with the language in order to see the country well. We do no night traveling, consequently we stopped over night a Carlstadt, a beautiful little city of seven thousand inhabitants and two fine hotels. We selected the best and they gave us the parlor bedroom, but not a word of English or German could they understand. So we resorted to pantomime, went into the dining-room, walked around, helped ourselves. Seeing others eating beef stake and eggs, we indicated that we would take the same and pretty soon it came with bread and butter, and two bottles of native ale, also the bill, two kroners or fifty cents for two persons. I thought that they made a mistake, but in the morning breakfast came and it was the same. I held out a handful of money. The servant picked out the exact amount. Our room was seventy-five cents but it makes one's feel a little queer to get into a city of that size and not find any one to converse with. The natives seem to look upon us poor foreigners with pity. We are sometimes stared at as though we were curiosities to them, notwithstanding we wear about the same style of dress, yet there is a peculiarity about each nationality that is impossible to throw off. But enough for this time. I fear I have written more now than will be read with interest. I may make some memoranda as we go on our journey and send them back.

This Sunday, September 6th happens to be a rainy day, we are housed up, reading a large mail received here, including the BEE's for one week, the latest date being the 14th.

I agree with you in your article on manufacturers. If Omaha ever expects to be a large city she must devise some plan to induce manufacturers to come there and locate. If necessary we must spend some money to get them to come, and now is the time to do it. The best cities in Europe are backed up with manufactories. I could cite hundreds of cases had I time. I hope you will keep the matter stirred up and organize for that express purpose. We leave here in a few days for Finland and expect by next Sunday to be in St. Petersburg, Russia, then Moscow and south to Turkey.

Truly yours,
G. W. LININGAR.

After Diphtheria.

Diphtheria is a terrible disease, requiring the greatest medical skill to effect a complete cure. Even when its power is broken, it clings to the patient with great persistency, and often leaves the system poisoned and prostrated. Just here Sarsaparilla does a vast amount of good, expelling impurities from the blood, giving it richness and vitality, while it renovates and strengthens the system.

HAWKEYE HAPPENINGS.

The candle light question is the line which divides the high and low church people of the Episcopal church in Davenport.

Lou Warren rifled the landlady's bureau in Des Moines and cleaned up $150. He was taken in.

The Eclipse house at Pacific Junction, worth $1,000, was destroyed by fire Thursday night.

Ichabod McCord, of Dunlap, hoarded $150 in his bureau, and thus invited the festive house breaker. He lost a haystack, but saved the roll.

The seven-year-old girl of M. Guerdt, of Dubuque, was attacked by a vicious dog Tuesday, and but for bystanders would have been killed. As it is she is disfigured for life, and her face presents a ghastly appearance. The dog was ordered shot.

A twelve-year-old son of A. C. Scott, of Cresco township, near Algona, fell in front of a reaper and had both his hands cut off.

Miss Minnie Knudson, a school teacher at Pomeroy, committed suicide with arsenic.

The potato rot prevails in Hardin county.

The female base ball club which starred in the river towns, collapsed for want of pin money at Keokuk. They bustled around and secured free transportation to their mammas.

Rock Island railroad employes are forbidden to indulge in the bowl that cheers and shouts, on pain of discharge.

Mrs. Herman Berkholtz, of Rock Rapids, drew $3,500 from the bank the other day. That night five masked men called at the house and demanded admittance, saying they wanted the money. Mrs. Berkholtz opened fire on them with a revolver and drove them away.

A couple of young ladies at Keokuk got into a fight about a young man, the lover of one of the participants, whom it seems had imprudently taken the other young lady buggy riding. They were arrested and each fined $8 and costs for their racket.

It now appears that Miss Ada Fairchild, the young lady who jumped out of the third-story window of a hotel at Cedar Rapids, was frightened into the act by a man who knocked at her door and threatened to force the door and kill her if she didn't admit him. Her only thought was to escape, and she jumped from the window, not thinking of the result. Thomas Lowrey, a hotel porter, has been arrested for the threatened assault, and the evidence against him is said to be convincing. Miss Fairchild, the physicians say, will recover.

The coal miners of Colfax and Altoona are out on a strike for an advance of wages.

A Keokuk boy held another over a log fire until his shins were toasted, and was fined $100 for the sport.

There were 107 arrests for drunkenness in Ottumwa during August and September.

When Baby was sick, we gave her Castoria,
When she was a Child, she cried for Castoria,
When she became Miss, she clung to Castoria,
When she had Children, she gave them Castoria.

CIVIL SERVICE REFORM.

Mr. Flurewalker's Experience With Civil Service Examiners.

New York Telegraph: Mr. James Flurewalker having become tired of machine politics aspires to a permanent official position under the federal government and having had several years experience as a sugar expert he applies for the office of sugar inspector in the customs service. In due time he is summoned before the civil service examining board. Feeling confident of his general intelligence and of his special qualifications for the position he presents himself for examination wearing an easy and benignant smile.

While the members of the board are preparing to examine him he examines them and is vastly impressed with their dignified, not to say austere manners and air of profound learning. Mr. Flurewalker rapidly collects his thoughts together and tries to concentrate all the faculties of his mind in readiness for the first question which he is a little fearful may be a poser.

THE FIRST QUESTION.

"In sailing from Mozambique to the Straits of Malabar, what are the variations in the magnetic needle, and what is the cause of these variations?"

Mr. Flurewalker requests a repetition of the question. It is repeated twice—three times—but Mr. F. is too flurried to reply.

"Perhaps you can tell us where Mozambique is?" says one of the examiners.

"Oh, yes! Of course. Why, it is off to the eastward somewhere—an archipelago or a peninsula, or something. It is somewhere near Mesopotamia."

"That will do, sir."

SECOND QUESTION.

"What is the rule in Shelly's case?"

"Eh! in Shelly's case?"

"Yes, sir."

"Well, I suppose it's the same rule as with any other man. If he is squarely elected, count him in. I never heard that Shelly had any particular pull."

"That will do, sir."

THIRD QUESTION.

"Describe the process of germination in a seed."

"In a seed?"

"Yes, sir."

"The process of what?"

"Germination."

"Oh! the progress of the German nation! Well, since the battle of Koeniggratz and the war with France there ——"

"That will do."

FOURTH QUESTION.

"What is meant by the precession of the equinoxes?"

"The equinoxes?"

"Yes."

"The procession of the equinoxes?"

"No, the precession of the equinoxes."

"Never heard of it. What does it relate to?"

"Cosmogony."

"What?"

"Well, astronomy."

"O! I see, now, gentlemen; you must have made a mistake. I am not an applicant for an astronomical position. I only want to be a sugar inspector."

"That will do sir. We are quite aware of that. Now pay attention and answer our questions."

FIFTH QUESTION.

"Explain the relation of the molecular theory to the nebular hypothesis!"

"No, I thank you, I had rather not. Perhaps you had better put some of your civil service questions to the president and his cabinet. When they pass I will call again."

"Sir, you may go."

And Mr. Flurewalker goes—yes, he goes back to machine politics.

Indian Agent Gasmann.

Springfield (Mass.) Republican: There is an effort making for the removal of Agent Gasmann, of the Crow Creek Indian reservation in Dakota, which has been so prominently before the public attention during the past seven or eight months. The attempt can only be made by enemies of the Indian, out of spite at Maj. Gasmann's course in maintaining the Indian's rights, and it ought not to have the ghost of a chance of success. A strong representation in his favor has been sent to Secretary Lamar, bearing the signatures of Bishop W. H. Hare, Herbert Welsh and Robert Frazer, of the Indian Rights association, and Elaine Goodale and Florence Bascom, of Hampton institute. The character of the work Agent Gasmann has carried on at the reservation is in their opinion "of very high order, both in its relation to the government and the Indians," and they believe his continuance is very important in every respect, for the advancement of the Indians in civilization, for the protection of their interests, and for the good of the service generally. His conduct during the recent difficulties was "marked by a courage, prudence and ability which justly entitle him to the respect and gratitude of all good citizens and the firm support of your honorable office." For these reasons the memorialists ask that Agent Gasmann be retained; and there is no doubt but that he and every good agent should be, for a change of Indian agents means a good deal more than a change of clerks in a department office.

It always gives us pleasure to speak well of a good article. The "Garland Stoves and Ranges" are acknowledged to embody all that is best in that line. They have the reputation of being the best made. Though imitated by many they are equalled by none.

A CURIOUS LAKE.

An Iowa Mystery That Puzzles Old Settlers.

As we emerged from behind the row of trees a large, irregular body of water appeared, which the guide told us was the far-famed Wall lake, writes an Atlanta, Iowa, correspondent of the St. Louis Globe-Democrat. And we must confess to a sense of disappointment at first sight. A very large pond, which washed over mud banks on the opposite side, and over which the odor of harvests and dead fish came faintly, did not strike us with the wonder which we had expected. The guide seemed to expect this look of disgust, for he pointed out the exceedingly high banks on the side nearest to us, and said nothing else. Indeed, the banks were very high, and from our side we could see nothing of the lake except a fringe of water nearest the other shore.

We approached the lake very impatiently, for we knew that the mystery, if there was any, was hidden behind the high bank, but the guide, who had seen the lake for years—and I began to think for centuries, if his growth was as slow as his motion—purposely delayed, and it was not till we had time to get our expectations aroused to a high pitch that he led us down a curving road to the beach, and the great wall stood before us in all its greatness.

From the beach to the summit of the bank, twenty-five feet or more and extending for over a mile in length, huge boulders, of herculean proportions, were piled upon and around each other. Here and there some of the smaller rocks were missing, taken away by man for building purposes, but enough remained to show what its former magnificence must have been. While we stood looking up at the summit of the wall I could not help thinking how small even the largest of man's works were compared to this work of nature.

How those huge bowlders were piled up in such regular order, and even how they should come into a place naturally so devoid of rocks, is the wonder of scientists. Of course the glacial theory, evolved especially for ignorant scientists in difficult places, is the one most commonly advanced. But how those rocks should cross a wide lake, and proceed to place themselves in regular order, is not explained; unless, indeed, some huge glacier, becoming weary of continued travel, had suddenly plowed a deep hole in the ground, fixed itself, and, melting under the rays of a tropical sun, had formed Wall Lake; and the rocks carried along with it, not relishing a wetting, had piled themselves upon each other in their anxiety to get out of the lake, and thus formed the wonderful wall.

WE CALL YOUR ATTENTION TO

Our Ground Oil Cake.

It is the best and cheapest food for stock of any kind. One pound is equal to three pounds of corn. Stock fed with Ground Oil Cake in the Fall and Winter, instead of running down, will increase in weight and be in good marketable condition in the spring. Dairymen as well as others, who use it, can testify to its merits. Try it and judge for yourselves. Price $24 per ton. No charge for sacks. Address WOODMAN LINSEED OIL WORKS, Omaha, Nebraska.
