

PURITY APOTHECAL DELUSION

The Operations of the Civil Service Law a Comedians Failure.

TEE CASTOR OIL OF POLITICS, And an Infringement of the President's Constitutional Powers—Nebraska Reformers and Postal Crooks.

[WRITERS FOR THE BEE.] In this letter I propose to give my views on the much mooted question of civil service reform. It will be understood, of course, that they are the views of myself only and do not represent the Bee on the views of any other person.

A POLITICAL DELUSION palpable on the people, as well as its purpose known as civil service reform. Its advocates cry aloud as to its merits, and the blessings it has conferred upon the people.

It is amusing to read the resolutions adopted by the democratic convention at Lincoln, which endorsed the election of the president in making removals and appointments. The record of the mental anathemas uttered by those same demagogues is a record of the number of times they have consigned Cleveland to hell.

Whether the civil service law includes the inspectors in the number of times department or not, I do not know, but if that department desires to ferret out frauds upon the government, it had better take hold of that branch of the public service.

I am utterly and unchangeably opposed to any policy that tends toward the establishment of a merit system.

In all cases except United States judges, the president holds for four years, and when he retires, his cabinet officers are expected to retire with him.

Persons who know they are subject to removal in four or six years, or so, or at will, are much more likely to set themselves firmly against temptation than those who feel that they are permanent in their positions.

For a senator or member to have anything to do with appointments, it is a gross violation of the constitution.

When he makes one friend, he leaves a dozen enemies. Under a truly democratic, republican system of government, the evil cannot, in my humble judgment, be avoided.

The present civil service statutes apply only to clerkships in the departments at Washington, and in the various custom houses and postoffices throughout the country.

Will Jumbo go to Heaven? "Mamma," said little Emma, "Will Jumbo go to heaven?" "No, dear, elephants don't go to heaven."

For 30 years Henry F. Baloon, of Shiloh, Mo., has been a member of the two which is almost impossible to prove, for it does not take place in the market place, or before the world, but between themselves only, with no witness. If charged or suspected, both will swear to their innocence. To illustrate: I once said to a gentleman a few years ago, who had a large amount of business before some of the departments in Washington,

AND WHO WAS VERY SUCCESSFUL. In having his claims allowed, how is it that you almost invariably succeed with your cases? "Well," said he, "as I am about retiring from business I will tell you. I manage to see the parties who make the reports."

ANOTHER OBJECTION to the present civil service law is that it directly infringes the powers and rights of the president conferred upon him by the constitution in making appointments, and I fully believe, if the question ever reaches the supreme court, the law will be declared in conflict with the constitution.

In making appointments, the first question to be settled, are the applicants honest, is he capable, those being settled favorably, I hold it to be the right of the party in power to select its own political friends, and the administration is held responsible for the policies of the government, and it should be allowed to select friendly agents to carry out those policies.

CLEVELAND'S SLOW CANAL PACE ENDED. It is amusing to read the resolutions adopted by the democratic convention at Lincoln, which endorsed the election of the president in making removals and appointments.
