The revival meetings continue to fill the Method st church every night with crowds and enthusiasm.

Vesterday a little child of S. Watton was run over by a wagon near the brick-yards, and quite seriously hurt.

Chicf Skinner has been called to Neola by the news that his brother in law, Dan Clancey, had accidentally broken his leg. The mother of Mrs. Alex Obert died yesterday morning, of dropsy. The fu-neral will be held this afternoon at 2

Mr. Peter Bechtele yesterday sold his handsome residence on Washington avenue to Mr. Wm. Groneweg, the consideration being $10,000.

B. F. Allison, who was charged with trespass, has been acquitted, it appear-ing that he had a written contract for the house, and had the right to enter it. E. S. Barnett, the newly elected street supervisor, yesterday filed with the clerk his bond and oath of office. His bond for $1,000 was signed by George F. Wright and Frank Evans.

The saloon injunction cases were to be called up in the federal court at Des Moines yesterday. A decision will hardly be given for some time yet, as after the arguments, the usual long spell of keeping the matter under advisement will fol-

The Planters hotel now has for the amusement of its guests a lively young alligator from Florida, supposed to be the very one which gave such a scare and chase to Clark, formerly of the Nonpareil, who is now abiding in the orange groves, and wading through the swamps.

"Doe" Scott was before Justice Schurz yesterday on the charge of assaulting George Beeman. It appeared from the evidence that Beeman had been drinking, and that he struck at Scott, who picked up a chair and threatened to down him with it. Scott was discharged.

Next Saturday evening there is the promise of a rich treat of political oratory, as Col. Henderson and ex-Congressman Horr, of Michigan, are here. Both are able speakers, and there is no doubt but that they will be greeted by a full house. Mr. Horr is especially popular as a speaker, and his witty sallies and keen cutting savings have made his and keen cutting sayings have made his name a familiar one.

Yesterday the new chief of the fire department, D. F. Eicher, qualified and entered upon the discharge of his duties. His first act, and one which the public expected, and with which all should be satisfied, was the appointment of John Templeton as assistant chief. This places the department in excellent hands, and the people may breathe easy.

Jo Ross, who has been serving as street supervisor, does not propose to yield very gracefully to the election of his successor, Mr. Barnett, and when asked for some information by Mr. Bar-nett yesterday, replied that he had not given up the position yet, and would not give any information until instructed by the council to give up. Ross won't be in fashion unless he contests the election.

Inquiry at the clerk's office raveals the fact that Voight, the special policeman who shot a man the other evening, has filed no bond. There is a probability that he will be called to account for the shooting, and it is a matter of wonder that he has not been arrested and the case investigated. If the mayor is to allow men to serve as policemen who file bonds and who are to go about shooting at men who happen to get drunk, an offense which the mayor does not think is of any account, it is time that some radical change be made. It is under-stood that the man who was shot is seriously hurt, and it is no sure thing yet that he will recover. The ball has been probed for in vain, and he is confined to his bed, with no immediate prospect of

The mayor has appointed Charlie Walters as captain of police, to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of Capt. Hathaway. Having decided on this move, and being inspired by the feeling that he had done a great thing, and inspired by other things, perhaps, he took out his little whistle, which he delights to use when all other pieces in delights to use when all other insignia of power are ignored by the public, and blew it lustily and called the police from far and near, at about the hour of midnight, and bade them to salute their new captain. He then hurried to the newspaper offices to tell them. "I tell you I stand by my friends, don't I?" There's no doubt of that if it's the friend's turn to treat. Walters is not to be blamed for accepting so easy a position, and will doubtless fill it to suit the mayor, anyway. Walters qualified yesterday, his bondsmen being Pat Lacy and J. A. Churchill.

The Chinese Crematory in Wyoming. Chicago Tribune: "Thomas," said the president the other morning, "I think we had better be studying up some line of action in regard to the recent crematory for Chinese that has been established in "Quite true, Mr. President. But I be-lieve that more properly comes under the department over which Mr. Lamar the department over which Mr. Lamar has supervision." observed Mr. Bayard.

"Not so, Thomas. The Chinamen being foreigners, I think it becomes an after for the department of state. However, we will see Garland about that on his return."
"Weil, I will study over the matter. I sometimes almost wish—but no, that would be too bad."
"What is it, Thomas?"

'What is it, Thomas?" "I was about to observe," remarked Mr. Bayard, with a heavy sigh, "that I sometimes almost wish Mr. Kelley had been a Wyoming Chinaman."

THE DAILY BEE. WHY DON'T MEN GO TO CHURCH

A Preacher Who Thinks the Church Is Not the Only Portal to Heaven.

Emigration From the State of Matrimony-The Y. M. C. A. Work-A

UNCLE SAM'S NEW HOUSE.

Variety of Newsy Bluffs Items.

Why Men Are Not Church Goers. No minister in the city has gained a greater reputation for freely, frankly speaking his mind than Rev. T. J. Mackey, the rector of St. Paul's church. He has been giving lately some Sunday night discourses, which are attracting much attention and exciting much comment. The one given by him last Sunday night especially created a stir among the dry bones. He spoke upon "Why men do not attend church." He handled the subject without gloves, and told some very plain truths, and made some frank admissions which rather shocked some of the older school of church folks. He lamented the fact that men did not attend church, and that this fact was not only noticeable in this country, and among all denominations, but also in the old country. In his own parish there were 150 families, and there were in these families fully 180 male solults, yet out of this number he could not, by the greatest stretch, count more than twenty-live who could in any sense be called regular at-tendants upon services, and by a strict count the number did not exceed lifteen, or perhaps ten who were regular attendants upon church. Even among the vestrymen, who were chosen supposedly for their active interest in church affairs, there were few who attended, and it was a rare coincident when more han two of them were seen at any one service, and if it were not for the senior warden there would be many services at which not one was visible. Other churches experienced the same state of facts.

He had asked a good many of the men
why they did not attend church. He found many reasons, but among the com-mon ones was that they got tired of hear-ing the same old thing over and over. Some wanted more science in the sermons, some wanted more logic, more practical thoughts on every day living, others wanted more poetry. He did not care so much for these reasons, as he realized the almost impossible task of suiting all. The minister had to get up two sermons each week, no matter what his condition of mind or body, and no matter how other duties pressed upon him. He had to suit the needs of a con-gregation made up of all classes and tastes. If he preached scientifically, it did not suit the man of imagination. If anyone of these critics would only try the task of preparing two sermons a week, under such circumstances, they would drop the criticism. There had been many efforts to please the people, and incite their attention and attendance at church, but none had made any permanent improvement in this respect. There had been everything, a song service, a "boy preacher" posing in the role of a revivalist, lectures, every form of attraction tried, but soon laid aside for some new attraction.

There were many trivial reasons assigned by men for not going to church, but many of these he did not think worthy of consideration. Among the real reasons was the fact that the life of the American man was being sapped by business. Business absorbed the mind and strength, not only for six days of twelve hours each, but even crowded into the seventh day, and every Sunday. business men had to look over their mail, and attend to other matters which they deemed important, or were so tired with the work of the week that they did not feel like going to church. Business was demanding so much of the attention and strength of men, that even home duties were neglected, and this neglect of home had caused more domestic unhappiness than any cause. Aside from all religious reasons, it was a violation of natural laws to thus allow business to take all the time. It had been shown in case of animals as well as of men that at least one day of rest out of seven was abso-lutely necessary. It was a sin to thus take mind, soul and strength.

Another reason was the fact that the people had increased intelligence. This might be a surprising statement to many, but it was a fact. In times gone the pul-pit was looked upon as monopolizing all pit was looked upon as monopolizing all theological knowledge. The preacher was supposed to know all about such matters and the people to know nothing except what he told them, and they were bound to blindly receive his statements and opinions as true. That time had passed. The people had been liberated. The newspapers contained better sermons than those often to be heard in the pulpits of the city where the reader lived. pulpits of the city where the reader lived. A man could often read a better sermon at home than he could get by going to church. The pew had the benefit of all forms of theological beliefs, and every man thought for himself. Some old no-tions held by the pulpit had been overthous held by the pulpit had been over-thrown. The people had discovered that some of the theology so long taught by the pulpits was untenable. Among these was the idea that a man had no possible chance to be saved except by entering heaven through the portals of some church. The people have found out that this was not so, and that men could get into heaven without going through any into heaven without going through any church.

The church had made a great mistake in not falling into line with this ad-vanced thinking. It had continued to hold to doctrines which the people no longer would accept, and thus lost its in-luence over thinking men. Another reason why men did not go o church, was that there was such a difference between the professions of those in the church, and their living. Men would take the most solemn vows in joining the church, to renounce the world, the flesh and the devil, and then proceed to serve all three with renewed activity, and pay from their incomes a small pittance to the church, as a sort of insurance, to make certain their salva-Men would go to church and profess to be poor, miserable sinners, and then go on the whole week living like poor, miserable sinners. Thinking, in-telligent, honest men bated sham, and it set them against the church. The church was not a close corpora-tion, organized for the purpose of saving just those whose names were on the roll, or who were constantly to be found in the pews. It was a help to those who wanted to live better lives. Those who shrouk from the church should come in shrunk from the church should come in and help reform the abuses of which they complained. They should realize that the church is the great organization which throws protection around the home, gives purity to the government, that seeks to lift men up and make them better. Each one should feel the responsibility of taking a part in this work, and of living such lives that the charge of hypocrisy could no longer be made against the church.

It is the intention of the rector to follow up this discourse by another, showing the benefits derived by attendance upon church.

fall. The people, and especially the working people, are getting very impatient, and there are queries made daily as to the reason for delay. From inquiries made yesterday by the BEE it seems that there is work being done at the quarries, and stone is being out, but there is a delay in the matter of carved stone, the reason assigned being that the mod-els have not been furnished from Wash-ington yet, and the contractor is obliged to walt for those. The department as-signs as a reason for this delay there that they have to prepare plans for about seventy-five or eighty buildings and cannot do it all at once, and some must wait.

Another reason is, that the contractor,
Mr. Rice, has his derricks employed at Jefferson City, Mo., on a government building there. He will not be through with them there until about the first of next month, and as he could not afford to provide new ones for the work here, he must wait for these. It is ex-pected now that about the first of November the work will start up and considerable be done before the weather becomes so cold as to make work stop, but with the winters with which this country is visited it is not very likely that this expectation will be fully realized. The only thing for the people to do is to wait patiently.

The Y. M. C. A. in Iowa.

The sixteenth annual convention of the Young Mens' Christian Association in Iowa, was held at Davenport last week. It was the most enthusiastic and profitable gathering of that character yet held in this state. Representatives from associations from all parts of the state were in attendance.

Under the management of Mr. C. B. Baldwin the work has taken a definite shape and is being done by young men for young.

Associations have been formed in nearly every college in the state and the most of them sent delegates.

Mr. Robert Weidensall, the "Bishop of the Northwest," Mr. L. E. Brown and Deacon Willard, of Chicago, added much to the interest of the gathering by their wise advice and occasional glimpses nto their rich experience.

The review of the past year was most encouraging, showing how the work had become fortified in all the principal cities. Burlington, Cedar Rapids, Dav-enport, Des Moines. Le Mars, Sioux City and Council Bluffs all employ general secretaries, who devote their time to the organization and development of the associations at these points. Iowa City, Waterloo, Keokuk and Creston are seeking for secretaries, but competent trained men are scarce and it is difficulty that they can be secured The work of organizing boys from 10 to 16 years of age into boys' branches is receiving considerable attention and will e prace cally developed next year. No association in the state has yet secured a building, but all are laboring in rented quarters. It is hoped that this will not long be the case, but that each city of 20,000 or over will have a good building thoroughly equipped for this important work.

This child of the church of but forty

The Young Men's Christian association now belts the globe. It has been planted in all the important cities of America and and Europe, in many of Asia, and at a few points on the dark continent. The benefits it has brought to indi-vidual young men will never be known, while at the same time it aims to benefit communities physically, morally, socially and spiritually. For everything in the grocery line give the new firm of Kintz & Kleeb, 162 Broadway, a trial. Everything new and fresh. Funcy groceries a specialty.
