A MANAGER MERRILY MATED.

Marriage of an Estimable Pair of Lincoln's Best People.

THE GOVERNOR THE MASTER.

The Survey Made for the Elkhorn Valley Road-Enterprise at the Stock Yards-A Breezy Budget of Capital Small Talk.

[PROM THE BER'S LINCOLN BURRAU.] A grand wedding occurred Tuesday night at the new Tremont hotel, the contracting parties being Thomas Fitzgerald, one of the proprietors and managers of the hotel, and Mary I. Gaylord, formerly of Bridgeport, Conn., now of this city. Father Kennedy, of the St. Theresa catholic church, of Lincoln, officiated. At 5:30 p. m. the party assembled in the beautiful parlors of the new Tremont. The groom was dressed in conventional black, and the bride in cream silk trimmed with real lace. After the ceremony was performed a company numbering 500 partook of a sumptuous supper. Mr. Egan, who was to have responded to the toast, the "New Tremont," was unable to be present, and D. G. Courtney made a few remarks, in which he complimented the proprietors on establishing so fine a hotel as the Tre-mont, and also spoke in good terms of the bride and groom. The presents received by the bride and groom were numerous and costly. Among the most expensive was a beautiful dis mond collar pin and an elegant gold watch to the groom, presented by guests of the house. At 19.50 p. m. the happy pair took the west bound train for Denver, where they will spend a couple of weeks and return to Lincoln and take up their abode at the new Tremont. The kind feelings of hundreds of admiring friends follow them.

THE MATHEWSON MATTER. It is reported that the supreme court intends to file an opinion in a few days in the case submitted to the court by the board of public lands and buildings, asking it to deline the power of the board and the governor in relation to the appointment or a matron of the mane hospital, and that the court will hold that the governor alone has the appointing power. This decision will give Dr. and Mrs. Mathewson, together with the governor, full sway at the asylum, and the board will have nothing to do but allow the salaries of the officers and canployes of that institution.

THE SURVEY MADE. The Elkhorn Valley railroad company are making a new survey from Fremont to Lincoln. At first it was 1 umored that the company would use the maps and profiles formerly prepared and adopted by Engineer McNair, for the former Lincoln & Fremont railroad company, but Mr. Price, the railroad contractor, says that the railroad companies are too smart to use the field notes or profiles of any other than their own engineer.

A PUSHING ENTERPRISE. The Stock Yards company has appointed a committee to visit the Nebraska City packing house in order to inform themselves and the company of what is necessary in building a similar institution in Lincoln at its yards. The com-mittee consists of John Fitzgerald, I. D. McFarland, and J. T. Imhorf. The com-pany held a meeting at the Commercial hotel Tuesday night and it was determined to push forward not only the packing house enterprise but numerous other important matters will be insti tuted

NEARLY AN ACCIDENT. Jacob Roche, the republican candidate for treasurer of this county, met with hat might have been a serious accident. H s farm hand oiled his buggy prior to Mr. Roche leaving his home at Hickman a day or two ago, and in putting the burr on one of the wheels failed to secure it sufficiently tight to one of the axles. The result was that the wheel came off, the team ran away and totally demolished the buggy. Mr. R. escaped with a few bruises. Mr. R. informed a reporter to day that his mother was very ill and at the time of the accident he was on his way to secure the medical services of Dr.

The mayor discharged one of the pecial policemen yesterday on the round of incompetency. His name is C. H. Canaday, and the people have arned that it is necessary to be compe tent in order to retain a position on the Lincoln police. This is a revelation. The weather is cold and damp, with a

Until recently the citizens were in the habit of voting bonds without registering, but certain afterneys contended that the bonds would be illegal without a legal registration of votes prior to election.

The question of voting bonds to the extent of $15,000 for a new court house is now being agitated, and the legal question as to the right of the commissioners to issue bonds for a court house, even though voted by the people, is being dienssed. It is claimed by some that the supreme court of this state in a recent decision of a cas brought from one of the western counties has held that under the present law the people cannot confer power on the counts board to issue bonds even by a vote, no matter how great the majority east in its favor.

Policeman Fowler was arrested Tuesday on the charge of having made an arrest of three parties with malicious intent and knowing the parties to be innocent. The three parties in question were charged with lighting and shooting in Mrs. Coakley's saloon on last Sunday afternoon. They were released by the court after a preliminary examination,

LUCK COINS AND CHARMS,

Spitting on a Coin as an Oblation to Dame Fortune.

> Articles Carried to Keep off Disease and Appease the Witches- A Superstitions Undertaker -Horseshoes.

Denver Tribune Republican: Yesterday an extravagant gentleman stopped at a Denver fruit store and purchased 5 cents worth of peanuts of the presiding genius, who happened to be a small boy, whose brown skin and black eyes denoted that he was a child of sunny Italy. As the gentleman was in no hurry, and as the dirty awning over the peanut stand afforded some shelter from the rain, the gentleman lingered, ate his purchases and chatted with the boy. When he had finished his chat, he gave the boy a nickel. The youth smiled, thanked his benefactor, spit upon the coin and put it in his pocket. "Why did you spit upon that nickle be fore you put it into your pocket," asked the gentleman.

"Me spita on a nicks for lecks," replied the dago, with a pleasant grin.
SITTING ON A COIN.

The act of spitting on a glt coin to bring luck was not a new thing to the questioner, but it set his mind upon the subject of lucky coins, and during the day he inquired among his acquaintances with a view of ascertaining how many of them carried luck coins or pocket pieces. He found that almost every man whom he met carried some sort of a coin, medal or odd article in his pockets either as an oblation to Dame Fortune or as sou-

The greater number of coins were either from foreign mints or were coms of the United States, either counterfeit or so badly defaced as to be of no use as legal tender for anything. Several were leent pieces, which until very recently were almost useless in Colorado, as only dimes and nickels were used as small A TREASURED NICKEL

One young married man who had just declared that he hadn't got a cent with h m, Eshed a very black nickel out of his ket when the matter of souvenirs came up. He said that that didn't count for money, as he had carried it for ten years and wouldn't spent it. When asked why he treasured it so carefully, he smiled sheepishly, and said "Well, I don't care about it now, but I've carried it so long I cont like to part with it. When I first got it I was a young fool, was dead massed by a little g rl, and I coulda't get acquainted with her, although I fried every way known to pol te society. Finally, one evening, I was s tting in a theatelf with a half eye on the stage, and an eye, and a half on her, when she suddenly pulled her handker chief from her pocket and out dropped this nickel, and it folled directly at my feet. I picked it up, and I've carried it "Quite a remarkable tale," said one of his hearers. "You were w dishonest fellow," remarked a second, "you ought to have re-turned it to the lady."

"Yes," said another, " and you might have got acquainted by that means. You were a fool as well as a knave."

"Was that young lady your present wife?" asked mother:
"No," said the unan with the nickel, "and don't you tell the story to your wife ALL KINDS OF WITCH THINGS

Further inquiry revealed the fact that great variety of articles are carried about in people's pockets for all sorts of reasons. Any quantity of people earry "buckeyes" or horse chestnuts as preventives of rheomatism. One old gentleman wears a brass ring whitea used to be a part of a pair of suspenders. This was also a warder against rheumatism. THE UNDERTAKER'S APPRENTICE.

One undertaker's apprentice was found with a bracelet upon his freekled wrist. He was a red-headed, long-necked lad, with an air of reckless abandon. He swore and distributed tobacco joice with a perfect prodigity; and the discoverer of the bracelet was astonished at such a display of asthetic sm. He asked aum why he were the bauble, and the boy replied that it was a sure thing to prevent blood-poisoning, to which he was more or less hable in handling corpses. When asked was re he got the bracelet, he replied that he got it off the wrist of one of their subjects. There were horseshoes everywhere and of all kinds, gold, deam in I, wooden, jet, tin and paper. These were worn as waten charms, as bracelets, as wall ornaments. They were hung over doors and beaund saloon bars and in store windows. Everybody knows that they are the most fineky things that a world, and if a person can find one in the street or upon a country road where a horse ha just east it, if the finder knows when she or he is well of it will be pecked up caretully, mud and all and carried off.

REEPING THE DEVIL AWAY. The horseshoe superstition is a rem-nant of the old habit of ga celling against witches and witch craft. The old custom was as now, to bang it over or upon the house door to keep the witches of the devit out. There is one old superstition which has grown to be a portion of architecture, if the term may be used, and which is never noticed. Any one can see it by simply looking at an ordinary door where the material is entirely wooden. Aglance will show that the solid woodwork which passes between the two upper pannels of the door crosses at the base of the upper pannels, and then between the lower ones, forms the figure of a cross. It is a "St Peter scross." St. Peter, according to history, was trucined head down-wards. This cross was originally placed upon doors to keep the develor the witches out, and sit has grown to be a custom of all expenters and builders of modern times. or tos .

The Profession of Base Ball. Philadelphia Record: For some years past the admirers of base ball have clear perceived that their favorite game was fast passing from the category of sports in the long lists of professional entertain ments that are differed to an excitement loving public during the summer months. It is not a decad's sifee the edy of Paladelphia, for commile, was swarming with amateur of quide amateur ball club able on occasion to give the best clubs in the country a hard-tussle. Gradually the number of these organizations has diminished, until now there are but three or tour that may justly lay claim to consideration, and of these cut one—the Young America—is made up exclusively of amateur players. The national game, as its vota ries style it, is now a profession, in which employment is regular and well rewarded and to waich access is becoming each season more and more difficult. And the game which amateurs play for amusement with ball and bat is quite a different affair from an exhibit on by professional players. The former is a the latter a spectacle. Am dour contests are no more regarded than a passin, game of billiards wented be, while the attract great crowds or speciators and form a source of large and by no means The two leading base ball associations which, by the simple plan or paying larger salaries than any others, control the movements of leading players, have now joined together in a compact which emphasizes and renders final the complete transfer of this game from its posion as a national sport to a place among the long line of money making institu tions which in America are dignified with the name of sport. Ten years ago base ball managers and club directors were either sporting enthusiasts or des-perate gamblers; now they are respectable and hard headed men of business, who go sbout the affair of winning championships enant with methodical calculations and a cold blooded disregard for anything beyond the gate receipts. The advantige of this new order of things is that i cutirely eliminates from the games played under such auspices all suspicion corrupt contivance or collusion here is no enthusiasm among the hired layers, neither is there any temptat on to distincest play. Thus it has been made possible to place games of base bal, upon a high plane of public interestland assure at the same time that per-association banded together, as at ent, the future of base ball as a field for remunerative investment seems to be well assured. Nothing can defeat the intent of the managers except a wide-spread revolt on the part of players, backed by large capital in each city where a league or association club exists. It is not at all likely that such an uprising will occur, or, if it should occur, that it will succeed in overthrowing the monopoly established by the new agree ment. The strong defense of the exist-ing organizations, aside from the heavy ment. ost of setting up an opposition, is in the fact that the maximum salary of players is fixed at a higher figure than any out side parties can pay with any expecta-tion of making a profit. When the receipts in all the league and association cities are averaged it is evident that $.000 for the season is a fair, and even liberal, remuneration for any player. The next step should be an equalization of playing strength between the clubs of the we associations, so that the disparity between winners and losers should be less marked and distinct. The clubs have it in their power to make large prolifs next season by this simple prowodding of Mr Ed Harris and Miss Funk, of this city, took place yes-terday meen at the Congregational church. Mr. Harris is a Lincoln boy, the son of George S. Harris, formerly land commissioner of the Burlington and Missouri, and Miss Funk is the daughter of Fred Funk, Fsq., proprietor of the Lincoln opera bouse. Mr. Barris is en-gaged in the banking business at Ord, in this state, where he intends to make his home in the future. The good wishes of many friends follow the happy couple. An attempt was made Tuesday night to burglarize Woltermade's saloon. The thieves made the break between 1 and 2 o'clock in the morning and were fright-ened away. Several tools used by the burglars were found on the ground.

SUMMER COMPLAINT cured and Immediately relieved by DUFFV's PURE MALT WHISKEY, $1.25 per bottle, sold by Druggists The Locksmith's Art.

Chicago News: "Tell you something about locksmiths!" exclaimed an old craftsman, dolefully; "there are none any more. The trade is dead. Locks are all made now by machinery, except, perhaps, safe and prison locks, those are hand-made because they afford greater security than the other kind. Time was when the lock-maker was a smith and bell-hanger as well, and the trade was a good one; but it is all changed now, and we do nothing now except repairing. occasionally deplicating a key that has

"The factory-made lock has taken the place of the hand-made arricle, and driven us out of the business. Now, per-haps, twenty men are required to make a lock which formerly was the work of one man. These men superintend machinery by which certain parts of the lock are made. One man handles a punch, and cuts out the tumblers; another makes the shuers, the springs are made by another, and so on, until all the parts are ready to be put together. None of these men could make a lock without assistance from other workmen, and they have no knowledge of the principles of locks. "Before the era of macainery all locks were madd by hand. That is why old lock smiths understand their business so well. But there are very few smiths of the old school in the business now. Most of them have quit making locks, and are making sewing machines. The princi-ples on which sewing machines are made can be easily understood by any locksmity, add there is more money to be made in the new business.

"Yes, the modern lock is superior to the old-fashioned one, and for this reason, it is harder to pick. The old lock was made to accommodate a large key, so that no matter how fine the constructon inside an accomplished cracksman could always get an idea of the works.

The key-hole being large, he would in-sert a wire, the end of which being covered with wax would receive an impres s on of the style of key required to open the lock. It was an easy matter to make a key after this model in wax, so that al-most all the old locks could be picked with but little difficulty.

"The patent lock of to-day; requiring a flat key, delies any attempt at picking the works, because the key-hole is so small and the slots are too numerous. For that reason skeleton keys are useless to thieves nowadays, and cracksmen rely for success principally on their possession of duplicate keys

'Jail work," as it is known to the trade, is the only branch of our business where muchinery is not used. A I the locks for jails and penitentiaries are made of wrought-iron and constructed with from two to five tumblers finished off smooth on the inside and held together by steel serews and brass clamps. The parts when thus joined are at solutely air tight and the only opening in the lock is the key-hole. Such a lock very old. I have a book here which gives a description of a lock found among the ruins of the great temple of Karnac, and which was in use more than forty centuries ago. The leading principles of this lock have served as the foundation for most of the inventions of recent times. The locksmitas of Ching, we are told, had centuries before the birth of Christ perfected a lock out of which a sharp bumboo thorn would dart and strike the hand of any one wrongfully tampering with it. The end of this and coction, and should the luckless third escape death be would be marked for life. But this story is hardly cut tled to full belief for the reason that as the Chinese themselves claim, gunpaw time, a celestial safe-blower could easily render the patent lock harmless by the aid of a few grains of powder. The methaval locks were among the most elaborate and delicately contrived eimens of these articles ever duced. They were enveloped in stael, covered with heads and iloral designs, and were mostly found on the doors of the ancient cathedrals or in the magniti-
