dences of Sympathy.

Death of Gen. McClellan. ORANGE, N. J., Oct. 29. General George B. McClellan, ex-commander of the army of the United States, died suddenly this morning at 5:10 o'clock from exhaustion produced by repeated shocks of neuralgia of the heart, at his home on Orange mountain. Though he had completed his fifty-ninth year be had preserved not only his buoyant spirits but buoyant, youthful agility. Therefore, when he began about three weeks ago to feel pains of the heart, neither he nor his medical man, Dr. Seward of Orange, nor any of his family, regarded the matter as serious, and everyone else believed that the troublesome malady was either gone for good or at least for a long time. In that belief the general ordered his carriage yesterday morning, drove to town accompanied by his daturater, saw sevcral gentlemen on business and made an appointment with one of them for 11 o'clock today. He returned home in excellent spirits. ate heartily at his meal hours, and retired to

About 11 o'clock the pains returned, and a messenger on horseback was dispatched down the hill for the doctor, who came back with the least possible delay. When he entered the bedroom of the general he found his patient in extreme agony. The paroxysms returned with a rhythmical frequency that was alarming, and the homeopathic remedies which the skill of the doctor suggested were no more efficient than those which had been supplied by the intelligent affection of Gen. McClellan's wife and daughter, who had ministered to him unceasingly from the first

For four hours he suffered the most exeruciating agony. About 3 o'clock there was a change. The eyes of the patient began to grow brighter, and his face that had been white with pain began to recover its usual ruidy hose. He gave a long deep sigh of relief, smiled faintly and said, "I feel easy now; thank God I have pulled through." Then he sank back upon the pillows as if exhausted, closing his eyes. The doctor, who was watching his face with extreme solicitude, saw the uncritic signs of an approaching collapse, and whispered to Mrs. McClellan, "I fear he is dyin c." It was but too true, General McClellan raised himself up on one hand, half opened his eyes, and fell back dead.

WAR DEPARTMENT, WASHINGTON, Oct. 29.—With profound regret the secretary of war announces to the army the death of Gen. George B. McClellan, formerly major general commanding the armies of the United States, which occurred at Orange, N. J., this morning. The name and fame of this distin-guished soldier and citizen is known and honored throughout the republic. As the noncred throughout the republic. As the organizer of the army of the Potomac he made it capable of accomplishing great deeds. The lessons he gave it were never forgotten, and the spirit with which he animated it continued through all its eventful history. Subsequently as its leader he rendered great services to his growth. country. His pure and noble character, his country. His pure and noble character, his unselfish devotion and the duty he performed in the hour of peril will cause his memory ever to be cherished with pride by the people of the United States.

WILLIAM C. ENDICOTT. WASHINGTON, Oct. 29.—The president ordered all flags on the executive building to be placed at half must until after the funeral of Gen. McClellan. It is definitely learned to-day that Gen. Me-

Ciellan came very near being made a m_mber of President Cleveland's cabinet, and that he was tendered the Russian mission and declined it because of business engagements, and that within the past twenty-four hours the president had concluded to offer him an appointment as a member of the civil service

THE NEWS IN NEW YORK.
NEW YORK, Oct. 29.—General McClellan had an office in this city and the news of his demise was received there this morning. He had been failing for months past and had not visited the office in two weeks, though it was not expected his libress would result fatally. He leaves a son and daughter, the former just completing his church in. As soon as the news completing his education. As soon as the news spread through the city great sorrow was expressed at the general's death. Flags on the public buildings were placed at half-must. Solliow in Chicago.

Chicago, Oct. 29.—The death of General McClelfan caused a profound impression in this city, where he was quite well known. He was chief engineer and atterwards president of the Illinois Central railroad just prior to the breaking out of the war of the rebellion, and acquired a wide social acquaintance in Chicago. At the beginning of the was all when he was promoted to command of the army of the Potomac, McClellan's Dragoons was organized here to serve as his body guard, and remained with him to the close of his military career. On his recent return from the southwest the survivors of this organization tendered him a reception here which was largely attended. Before proceeding east, General McClellan remained in the city several days visting oid time SORROW IN CHICAGO.

Major Joseph Kirkland, of this city, who was a member of McClellan's staff at the time the latter was commander-in-chief of the army, said in an interview to-day that he believed if no change had been made from Washington in Gen. McClellan's plans he would have taken Richmond in the first peninsaliar campaign. "McClellan protested," he said, "against being recalled to Washington and begged to be empowered to continue the attack on Richmond." HIS FIRST SPEECH IN VIRGINIA.

A Monster Meeting and a Masterly Speech at Petersburg-The Party of Right and Justice Defended Before Southern Voters.

Sherman's First Speech in Virginia. PETERSBURG, Va., Oct. 29, -Senator Sherman spoke here to-night in the academy of music to a crowded audience. The stage was filled with white people, while the body of the building and the galleries were occupied by colored people, the outskirts of the crowd being fringed with white people. Sherman was introduced by Mahone as the foremost statesman of the country, to whose warm heart and love for every state in the union and for the whole country he bore cordial testimony. Gen. Mahone esteemed it a great honor to have the honor of introducing the distinguished senator from Ohio to a Virginia audience. He came here, he said, to address the reason and not the prejudices of the people, and be spoke for him a cordial greeting and respectful hearing.

Senator Sherman was cordially greeted and accorded a most respectful and attentive hearing. He hearing by stating that hearing. He began by stating that that it had been said of him that he had been waving the bloody shirt. If it was meant by waving the bloody shirt that he sought to renew the ani-mosities of the war, then there was a grave mistake, for he had constantly said that the war was over and its animosities should be buried out of sight; that he would not hold any confederate soldier responsible for what he did during the war, and that all he wished to preserve was the asknowledged results of the war, and among the rights thus obtained he claimed that one was that of e ery man of lawful age should be allowed to exercise his right to vote without distinction of race, color or previous condition. The speaker claimed that in the last presidential election the colored people had been deprived of their tranchise, and that by this means Grover Cleveland became president of the United States instead of James G. Blaine. It was not the war of the rebellion, but the war upon the ballot box that he bead arraigned.

the ballot box that he had arraigned.

The senator then said: Gen. Lee on the other hand, has conducted his canvass almost other hand, has conducted his canvass almost entirely upon the basis of an appeal to confederate soldiers, to the pride of Virginia for the courage they exhibited in the war, and with military trappings and flags and cavalcades he tries to turn the attention of your people from the questions of the present time to the memories of the war, in which Virginia fought bravely, and submitted honorably to the arbitrament of arms when their cause was lost. The senator then went on to see that the great pressing issue of the times cause was lost. The senator then went on to say that the great pressing issue of the times was that the election should be free, open and fair, and appealed to men of all parties to uphold the purity of the ballot box.

The speaker then stated that the relative power of the two principles of state sovercignty and national sovereignty had been forever settled by the war, but still the democratic party adhered to the old theories and sought to belittie, limit and cripple the powers of the national government as to many of the just and necessary objects of national policy. As one of these objects the speaker all forms of An erican industry, not only o the workshop but of the farm, by levying duties on foreign goods that can be manufacprofects them from sharp and undue competition, and in time reduces to con-sumers the price of the article; that it will set at work the enormous water power of Virginia, an I cause to be established as near as practicable to your coal and iron the furnace, the rolling mill, and the innumerable mannfactures based upon the proximity of coal, iron, wool and cotton. He then characterized the democratic party as at sea muon the ized the democratic party as at sea upon the tariff, with Carl sie, Theker, Marrison and Hurd polling one way, and Randall and others the other; as proposing nothing, doing nothing, being nothing except an incum-brance on the national life of our country. The senator went on to say that the demoerats, after waiting for twenty-live years, had finally gotten into power, on the plea of turning the raseals out, and added: Instead of turning out rascals, they have put in ras-cals. Mr. Cleveland often, no doubt, misled and deceived, has appointed more peniten-tiary and failbirds in his eight months than were appointed in the whole twenty-four years of republican administration. The speaker then spoke in defense of John Roach, and advocated coinage of the silver dollar, upheld the policy giving to American shippers the contract for the carrying of shippers the contract for the carrying of foreign mails, and advocated the policy of paying off the interest bearing public debt instead of paying off non-interest hearing debts, as he claimed the democrats were now doing, and closed his speech by saying: We do not wish in any way to interfere with your local policy or controversies, but we do feel a deep interest in the election of Gov. Wise and in the reelection of Gen. Mahone, though they are confederate soldiers of proved courses. confederate soldiers of proved courage neither expect them to waive their pride in the achievements nor their loyalty of pur-pose and intent during the civil war, but we understand that they are now willing to join with all others, north and south. A QUESTION SETTLED.

Riverside Park the Parmanent Burial Place of Gen. Grant. NEW YORK, Oct. 29.- During several weeks past there has been much speculation in the Grant's body would remain there or be removed from the state. These doubts grew out of the recent published statement attributed to Hon. J. B. Chaffee to the effect that the family of Gen. Grant did not wish the body to remain in this city, and that congress at its next session would take action in the matter. In order to make sure about it the Grant monument association decided to take action, and on the 16th inst. Mayor Grace, its vice-resident, wrote a letter to Mrs. Grant, stating the rumors at some length, saying that they were likely to interfere seriously with the raising of funds for the monument, and asking her to make a denuite and positive statement upon the subject, to be given to the public. Her repty is appended:

Charges of Gross Mismanagement of the Public Printing Office.

A LIFE OF PUBLIC LUXURY.

Riding Around in Conveyances Paid for by the Government-The National Purse Used for Personal Notoriety.

Charges Against the Public Printer. New York, Oct. 29. - Special to the Ber.]-The World prints to-day a long special from Washington reviving the old charges against Public Printer Rounds in his management of the government printing office. The story goes that Senator Gorman, of the senate printing committee, submitted these charges to President Arthur two years ago, but instead of pressing them the senator contented himself with securing 250 appointments in the office, and that there are now 356 emplayes credited to him. Rounds is first charged with gross mismanagement and extrava sance in the expenditure of public money. In the recapitulation of "estimated cost" of work for congress the total cost is put at $1,031,683. The amount of work done for the executive departments is $1,131,611, put at $1,031,683. The amount of work done for the executive departments is $1,131,611, and the cost of the Record $10,828. Taking the cost of the work from the amount expended, a difference of $214,441 is found, or in other words the work has cost the government that much more than the public printer seport shows, and this the charge says in face of the fact that the prices charged for composition, presswork, ruling, etc., have been increased at least 30 per cent above the amount charged during the administration of Defrees, and has not decreased as Rounds positively asserts in his report.

The published charge says: "The public printer keeps two horses and three carriages and a driver. These he keeps coustantly in use for himself and family. His son, whom he brought from Chicago, and pays $1,800 a year as "appointment clerk," a place not authorized by law, also keeps a horse, carriage, driver, etc. This son has one and sometimes two assistants. The chief clerk keeps a horse, carriage and driver. The latter, and in fact all of these conveyances, are used at all times of the day and aight and on Sundays for pleasure trips, and the drivers are paid by the government. The public printer has made a great increase in salaries, and has made a great increase in salaries, and has made many appointments: beyond the needs of the office and alled them at big salaries with friends from Chicago. He brings unsound horses from Chicago and sells them to the government at exorbitant prices. He brings his hostier, his nephew, servants, etc., and gives them good places and big salaries.
