PLOTTING FOR THE PASTURES.

The Divinity That Doth Hedge the Cattle King Composed Mainly of Dollars.

Sugar-Coated Appeals for Pastoral Leases—A New Plan Suggested by a Vigilant Ranchman.

SUNDANCE, Wyo., Oct. 28.—[To the Editor.]—For years past, the cattle syndicates have been devising ways and means by which they might secure entire control of the western grazing lands. They have lobbied and importuned congress, and filled eastern papers with distorted and imaginary representations of the situation, condition, and surroundings at the cattle raising business. And whatever else Grover Cleveland may, or may not do, during his administration, he is entitled to the everlasting gratitude of the American people, for the thus far unrelenting grip he has placed upon the usurping monopolies, that have heretofore bid defiance to governmental authority or requests. It is to be sincerely hoped that he will not relax his hold until the impudence, at least, is shaken out of them.

It is not calculated to inspire any great amount of patriotism, or confidence in the stability, freedom or protecting powers of our government, to witness the humiliating spectacle of foreign, as well as native, corporations seizing upon and appropriating large tracts of the public domain, by means of fences and otherwise, and coolly snapping their fingers at any interference on the part of government officials. A few months since, the representatives of those grasping monopolies were busily advocating and promulgating a scheme by which they were to secure control of large tracts of grazing lands through the medium of nominal rate leases, by the government. The ostensible purposes of this move was to enable the government to collect a revenue from a system of leases, and to prevent the ranges from becoming overstocked by the influx of cattle; but the real object was to effectually secure perfect control of the ranges. To give plausibility to the desired arrangement, they made haste to promise that the small stock growers already on the range should magnanimously be allowed to remain and ply their vocation unmolested; and that the poor homesteader was to be treated gently and even encouraged to take his abode on those leased lands. The lamb and the lion were to have a regular millennial picnic, as it were. I am satisfied that the lamb and lion, under the proposed arrangement, would have lain down together, but the lion, most assuredly would have been on the outside.

There were plenty of loopholes through which they could have escaped, to nullify those fair promises. The small stock man, struggling to increase his small herd, would have been informed that any considerable increase of his bunch of cattle in numbers, would be totally inconsistent with the objects sought in leasing the public ranges. To the actual settler, seeking a permanent home, where he and his family might in time sit under their own "vine and fig tree," would be said: "Oh, yes, you have a right to make a home on a quarter section of this land, but we shall expect you to keep what stock you possess on your own land, as you are aware that we have leased those ranges to prevent them from being overstocked," and if the lambs thus addressed should presume to bleat a remonstrance, they would soon feel the convincing arguments contained in the exercise of the lion's fangs and claws.

And now, a "Colorado ranchman has evolved a theory" concerning the cattle raising business, which the BEE seems to endorse. "A Colorado ranchman" is going to have the government give small stockmen a few thousand acres each, in order that they can protect themselves against the "whale of the stock business. The timid "minnow" seems to forget that the whale could avail himself of any concessions made to the business in a ten-fold ratio. To illustrate: If the cattle king can now make bonafide settlers out of the cowboys he employs in his business and thereby secure a title to large areas of choice lands, under the restrictions of the present land laws, what would prevent him from making small stockmen out of those same cowboys, and sweeping the whole country into his net, provided "a Colorado ranchman's" "invention" should be adopted. If the dominant parties who now hold the reins of government, will not cease their party wrangling long enough to investigate the land steals that are being perpetrated all over the west, they certainly should refrain from such legislation as would give thieves still greater latitude in gobbling up the public lands. All legislation in this matter should look towards the permanent discouragement of the creation and perpetuation of cattle raising monopolies.

This business when allowed to assume aggressive dimensions becomes a curse to any age, race, or nation. It perpetuates barbarism, cultivates cruelty and dishonesty in the human mind; it creates, defends and enforces lawlessness, and is the irreconcilable enemy of all human progress. I know I am using strong language, but the subject warrants it. I know whereof I affirm. I am not denouncing individuals as individuals, who may have amassed sufficient fortunes in the business to be denominated "cattle kings." I should not particularly object to being one myself, long enough to "brace up" my personal dignity and self-esteem. But where there is a king there must be subjects. It is a "grand scheme" for the king, but not so grand for his subjects. Now, I have a proposition or suggestion to make, for the instruction and guidance of our national law makers, in any effort they may make to mitigate some of the many evils that are flowing from this modern "Pandora's box." It may be that our legislators will not pay any great attention to my remedial suggestions; however that may be, I will have a sleep-inducing consciousness of having contributed my mite towards a solution of the conundrum.

Let the government levy an annual tax of one dollar per head for every head of stock exceeding one hundred, owned and grazed upon the public pastures, and by any individual or corporation. This tax would have a tendency to repress and discourage the aggregation of large herds of long-horned, slab-sided Texas rangers, and at the same time encourage the introduction of the better grades of stock, as it would be desirable for stock raisers to concentrate their capital in as few head as possible, so as to reduce the tax on the amount invested.

The funds accruing from this tax let the government appropriate to the investigation and punishment of the multitudinous land frauds that are being perpetrated wherever public lands remain. Thus the government would make the identical parties, guilty of the greater portion of the fraudulent land entries, pay for investigating their own crookedness.

Another fabrication invented and widely disseminated by stockmen, and one that the BEE seems prone to endorse, is the assertion that this western country is susceptible of nothing further than the production of sagebrush, with a scanty growth of buffalo grass, and consequently is adapted to no other avocation than that of stock-raising. This is the remnant of the old "Great American Desert" idea that the continual march westward of civilization is exploding. To illustrate the fallacy of this assertion, I will narrate an incident that has taken place in this immediate vicinity:

There is a stock company here, that has fraudulently occupied several thousand acres of the best lands, under the provisions of the several land laws. That portion taken up under the desert act, by settlers, who however, will be unable to make entries of their claims until such time as the old desert filings are revoked and the land reverts to government. Pending this time, these settlers are making improvements and raising fine crops of grain and vegitables. As a standing evidence of the fraudulent character of those desert entries the subsequent settlers have placed on exhibition at the Sundance post office, samples of the corn raised on the same land during the past season, without irrigation, and upon freshly broken sod. The ears are half as long as a man's arm, and bear the suggestive label, "Desert Land Corn."

He Told the Truth.

Detroit Free Press: A tough-looking chap stood shivering in the rain and wind at the ferry dock the other day. His every look and move showed the vagrant, and by and by he summoned courage to approach a citizen and say.

"Mister, can't you spare me 10 cents?"

"For what?"

"To get a bite to eat."

"Humph! If I were you I'd jump into the river and end my days."

"They won't let me end my days. I've tried it, and they stop me."

"Who?"

"The police."

"Bosh! They'd be glad of it."

"They would, eh! Here, you policeman, come over here!"

"Didn't I try to hang myself in the station the other night?" asked the vag.

"You did."

"Didn't I jump into the river this mornings?"

"Yes, sir, and I pulled you out."

"Don't you believe I want to die?"

"I certainly do."

"There! Was I lying?" demanded the vag as he turned to the citizen. "I told you I wanted to die, but they won't let me. What am I going to do? I can't die because of the police, and I can't live without money."

They made up a shake-purse of 60 for him, and he started off on a new career.

Every lady uses Pozzoni's medicated complexion powder. It is a household treasure. The madam finds it impossible to go down town without first rubbing it on. If the baby cries she goes for the puff-box. If the "old man" comes home ruffled or chafed, because business is dull, etc., Pozzoni's powder cools and allays his troubles. Then all is gladsome joy. No family should be without it.

The Boy With Fits and the Man Without Anything.

An awkward, ill-favored boy, while on an Arkansas railway train approached a man and said:

"Mister, won't you please give me fifty cents?"

"What for?"

"I have fits and—"

"Great Cæsar, do they have to pay a fellow to have fits in this country? Up where I came from people don't have to pay for fits."

"I am not able to work—"

"Well, don't do it. I don't care if you never work any. I am not so very fond of work myself."

"Won't you please give me money enough to—"

"Have fits, you say?"

"Yes, sir."

"Well, you are better off than I am. I haven't anything. Go on of somewhere and amuse yourself."

Captain Mitchell, of the bark Antoine Sala, New York and Havana trade, came home in May, entirely helpless with rheumatism. He went to the mountains, but receiving no benefit, at his wife's request, began to take Hood's Sarsaparilla. He immediately began to improve; in two months his rheumatism was all none and he sailed in command of his vessel a well man. Hood's Sarsaparilla will help you. Sold by all druggists.

It always gives us pleasure to speak well of a good article. The "Garland Stoves and Ranges" are acknowledged to embody all that is best in that line. They have the reputation of being the best made. Though imitated by many they are equalled by none.

CREMATION IN NEW YORK.

The New Crematory at Mount Olivet Nearly Completed.

New York Telegraph: On the slight eminence known as Mount Olivet, and near the cemetery of that name, about five miles from Long Island City, the United States Cremation company has for the past year been erecting a crematory. The legislature of this state some time ago appropriated the sum of $5,000, to be used in completing the building, and the larger portion of that amount has already been used. It is, however, believed that the appropriation will be sufficient to finish the work which is now far advanced. The crematory is in plain view as one steps off the train at the little station of Fresh Pond on the Long Island railroad, and a short climb up the hill brings you to it. The structure is plain and substantial, no attempt at ornamental architecture having been made. In size it is about 30 by 60 feet. The front and the walls for a few feet back on the sides are built of white marble; the rest is of red brick with marble trimmings. Thus far the front has been carried up only one story, another, with a mansard roof, having yet to be added. There are four rooms on the ground floor, and when the second story of the front is completed it will contain apartments for the use of the superintendent and his family. The first room is separated entirely from the others. It is to be used as an audience room for the family and friends of deceased persons brought there for cremation. The second room is known as the retort room. Here the bodies are prepared by the undertaker and placed in the retorts. These receptacles, two in number, open directly into the room. They are round at the top and flat at the bottom, and are made of fire clay. The top and sides are pierced with holes to permit the escape of animal gases. Two huge iron doors close the retorts. There is a small room opening out of this one which will be used temporarily for the reception of visitors. The last is the furnace room and contains two mammoth furnaces. Coke is to be used in them.

Mr. William Beanderfer was found by the Daily Telegraph reporter in charge of the premises. He comes from Lancaster, Pa., where is located the only crematory in the country now in operation. He has had much experience there, and will have charge of the crematory here. In response to inquiries he said:

"As you see, we are not yet prepared to test the working of this crematory. It will be about a week before we shall dre up for the first time, and until we do so it is impossible to say whether these arrangements will prove a success. This crematory is supposed to be an improvement over that at Lancaster as that is regarded a better one than Dr. Le Moyne's at Washington, Pa., the first ever built in this country, and which has been closed up since the doctor's death. The desideratum is to accomplish cremation in the shortest possible time. At Lancaster it requires an hour and a quarter; here it is proposed to do it in an hour at the longest. They are building two crematories in Cincinnati, and expect to be able with improved apparatus to complete the process in half an hour. In Italy this is all the time that is required. The Italians are much ahead of us in these matters. Even in Germany they do it in fifty-five minutes.

"The process of cremation is simple. The fires are started, and the flames encircle the retort on all sides until the heat inside—the hot air—becomes most intense. Some people appear to think that the body to cremated is laid upon the fire itself. It is not. When a body is to be cremated, it is removed from the casket and wrapped in a sheet saturated with alum water. This is done to prevent the body from burning while being placed in the retort. After the undertaker has performed this service the body is placed in an iron cradle, so made that it rises about two inches above the the floor of the retort. The door is then opened and the cradle quickly placed within. That is all there is to be done except gather up the ashes after the heat has done its work.

I find that nearly all who come here speak favorably of cremation, especially the Germans. There is notaing to shock the feelings in the way the operation is performed; indeed, a burial in a cemetery as at present conducted is, compared with cremation, a painful spectacle."
