That Works an Injury to the Pacific Telegraph Company.

A TELEPHONE REFUSED THEM.

A Contract Between the Western Union and Bell Telephone Conpany Just Brought to Light-City News.

tracer the ben's discoun bureau.). For several days past a rumor has been corrent in Lincoln that the Telephone company had refused to furnish the Pacific telegraph company with a telephone, and that the telephone company had also refused to explain why they discompany. Yesterday a reporter for the night A full attendance is desired. The BEE called on Mr. D. N. Siefert, manual following named considute the commitger of the Pacific Telegraph company in | 100 this city, and asked him the particulars | James Creighton concerning this matter. The manager | J.S.Richardson | L.B.Williams said that two weeks ago he called uponthe telephone manager in this city, and made a written application for a Iclophone to be put in the office of the Pacific Telegraph company to be used in carrying on its business, and for the lonegt of its customers. At first the manager told him that the company had no the company could not possibly supply him, but when Mr. Seifert told him such an excuse was entirely to transpor ent and that there must be some further reason for the refused to comply with his request, be then admitted there existed a contract between the Bell Telephone com-pany and the Western Union Talegraph company, whereby the Western Union was to have the excusive right to the telephone and that all other telegraph companies were to be refused the the same. In a word, the Western Union was to monopolize this whole insiness. The telephone manager informed Mr. Selfort that before he could do mything in the matter he must first submit the question to the officers in Ornalia.

On further inquiry Mr. S. found that Mr. Dickey, who is an officer in both the Western Union and the telephone com-pany, was one of the parties to whom this matter has been referred, and that the Pacutic Telegraph company will re-ceive no favorable attention from him. Mr. Seifert mays that his company has already been greatly duringed by reason of not having the telephone in its office A great many of its customers say that they send their possages by the Western Union because it has a telephone and it is much more convenient for them. Mr. Seifert is now about to make arrange-ments to connect the telephone company to furnish an instrument and wire, and that a mandamus will be applied for shortly. There is little doubt many of the business men are very indiguant at the shabby manner in which the telegraph company which has come here to compete in an honest and upraght manner with the Western Union for the telegraph business of this city. telephone company will compelled to furnish the Instrument. there can be no question, as the supreme court of this state, has decided that matter in the case of Webster vs. the Lincoln telephone company, so that it is no longer an open question. One citizen said this morning, in speaking of this matter, that the news of the secret con-tract between the Bell telephone com-pany and the Western Union telegraph company gives the people slittle glimpse into the workings of a gigantic mon-

Baltimore News: 'Have you ever heard of an engineer who could play times upon the whitele of his locomolive?" asked a railroad man of the re- hear de screech owl said Anni Peggy be lieved in frogs, and lizards, and owls, and bats, and cuts and sunkes, and linck o' lanterns, and charms, and conjuring. There were secret mysteries about them all, and they had to be propiritated and kept anniable, or some great harm would come upon the household. Where the old negroes not all this superstitions force mobiled knows exactly, but it is not con-fined to them. There have been just such superstitions in all ages and countries. Macboth consulted the witches, and they made their charms by seething that horrible grad made of frogs adders' tongues and goats' gall and a Turk's nose and a Tartar's lips and other unpalatable things, and then cool ed it down, and settled it with a baheon blood. Those old-time negroes would have made splendid witches if there had been any witch school to go to. It suited their nature and sonts it yet. As a race, they delight in the marvelous when it is mixed up with the horrible. Uncle Sam was a good old darky and the children loved him. He was familiar with spirits and graveyards, and had shook hands with rawhead and bloodybones, and when freedom came he gave full play to his fancies and got him a little long eared donkey and a pair of spectacles and rode from cabin to cabin by day ar by night, calling himself "Dr. Sam," and professing to care all diseases of his race by the mysterious art of conjuring. He greasy sack before him and he was the most indicrous barlesons upon the medical profession ever seen, I reckon. I would give $5 for a photograph of the whole concern us it used to slowly per-ambulate the Chattahoochee region of "Well, these peculiar whistles are nothing more or less than a part of the engineer's code of signals by which his wife or sweetheart is notified of his coming."

This statement was verified by a brother railroad man, who said: "I have seen a young lady who understood her lover's which walk to a station or road crossing." needle and a group snake and and log and a lot of horbs, such as been lock and jimson weed and snake root. He assured me that he had to use all those things in the very bad cases he came across in his extensive practice. But the children wanted a story about runaway niggers. Well, I never saw a rumaway nigger. That is, while he was a rumaway. Thave seen them after they were caught or come in of their own accord. We boys and girls used to be aw fully afraid of them. They were very scarce in that region. I do not remember but one, and he was suddenly cared of his propensity, for when he came back home his master ran him off again and made him stay in the woods until he was properly humbled and begged to slay at home. I never thought that I should have a runaway nigger. But I did. Our colored bousehold were, as I thought, devoted to us, and I knew that we were devoted to them. Our maid-servant, Mary, had nursed all of our children. and they loved her. A neighboring gen tleman owned her bushand, and as he was a high-strung darkey they did not get along harmoniously. One night he took to the woods or somewhere else un known, and he staid there. In course of time his master got tired of this and of fered a reward, but the reward did no seem to catch him. The police frequented my premises by night, for they suspected that Mary harbored him, and so did I, but still Anderson could not be found. I didn't like the darky, but Mary was faithful and kind, and she begged me with tears to buy Anderson So I interviewed his master and bought him-bought him in the woods; and that night when I went home and told Mary that Anderson was mine she chapped her hands for joy, and went out harriedly and in ten minutes came back with And rson, who was smilling and fat with his ong rest under the folder in my stable

It was about two months after this that the tend invaders ran us out of Rome. was about midnight when I aroused the servants and told them that I was going and their mistress was going and the children were going, and they could all do as they pleased. With one accord they declared they would follow me to the end of the earth, and so we field together and camped out together, and Mary had her baby in her arms, and when we reached Atlanta our teams and servants camped in the suburbs, while we went into the city to more friendly quarters. Next moreolog Mary and Anderson were gone. They had run away in the night and returned to Rome. Well. I couldn't blame them, for Anderson was not attached to me and he had longed for freedom and he persuaded Mary to go. That was all of h—no, not all, for when we got back to Rome, in 1865, they were there, and Mary was repentant, and came to us again. Her has pentant, and came to us again. Her hos-band had joined the army and when the army left he ran away from them, and lost his pension and bomety, and later on he ran away from Mary and I don't knew where he is now. But Tip, the faithful Tippecause, would not leave me. did not ow a use faculy, but he left them on that dark, unhappy night and followed us to Atlania, and in a few days I made him go back to take care of things and see after the welfare of his wife and childran. To keep from being suspected as a say he too joined. being suspected as a spy he too joined the colored regiment as a cook, and stayed a few days, and one dark night he swam the Oustannah river and went down the western bank of the Coosa and swam that river, and by a circuitous w d our to times putil the war was me to the Yankees, and one ran away from the Yankees to get to me. Lincoln's provismation was nothing to there."

Tip. Tip was always faithful and affectionate. Tip deserves a pension from some bady, and I wish I was able to give him one. But I'm knows there is a home for him at my house whenever he is homeless. There are the assumble (while men whose chances for heaven are not as good as Tip's.

Han, nigger, ran, de palestier calch you; Hen, nigger, run, you better get away.

They used to sing that song and prothe mindren the burner. They used to design and flank the paired like the smigglers or the moonshiners dedge the revenue laws. They enjoyed the perili of it, and sometimes would go all night on an exemple, without a pass rather than ask for one. If they planned to rob a henciest, or an oreland, or a water molen party it was better to have no passo as to prove an abid. Let Dick pass to be write a house at Jim Danlap and stay till Monday meeting. That was Dick's passect and protection, but Dick must keep in the road, and not go sky-Jarking over the settlement. Neverthe less the petty stening would barrown and so a law was passed making it; crime for a white man to buy chickor produce from a negro, without an or der from his master. My unche bought tou chickens from a darky one Satur day night and they happened to be stolen and the fellow who loss them, reported i to the grand jury, and those checken cost my uncle $35. If they had not been stolen, it would have been eligible, and me harm done. The negroes stole little things just like they do now. They en-joyed it. It was their nature. They were not bringry. I have known through role in orchard and give the four away. The best negro would early senething contrabind to bis wire's borse Saturday night if he could get it. But the elever industrious negro has no fear of the po-trol. The patrol kin, with in their beat, and herer asked a good negro for his pass. The patrol was made up of the best citizens of the neighborhood, and they took it time about the doing nig ing got bud they went but frequently and raised a big racket, and the mean darkit is cought it bad; but when everything warquict, they would not go out onen a month. Sometimes the darkies under narrow escapes, and would jump back window when they saw the patro coming, and then the race was to the swift, sure enough, and then the old son; cann in: Run, plazer, run, de pairoller eatch you!

Many a good story have they they told us boys how they recled the patrol and gol away. It was more of a frolle than a fear, and one success made, them hold life in our young days, and it wasn't so bad, very bad, after all. But. Air.

St. Louis Globe Democrat. Mr. Akers is rehearing some of the stories with which he made democratic votes, and out of all his repertory he selects this as the one which proved most effective: "A nig-ger had a dream and thought he went to hell. The next day he told his triends what he had dreamed, and they asked him a great many questions. Did yoh see old Satan down darr' one of 'em-asked. 'Oh yes, I seed old Satan an' Belzylsub an' Poliyun an' de bull lot ob 'm. Dey wos jes' standin' roun' an' tendin' to be bisnis, posin' de frees an' makin' it berry hot.' Wos-wos makin' it berry hot, 'Wos-wos another. Oh yes, dev wos heaps o' niggers, heaps oh em. White folks? 'On yes, lots o' white folks, scores an' scores oh 'em.' Democrats: 'Oh yes, yes plenty democrats. 'An' publikins? hundreds of thousands, and Washington white puritions in de same pent? Yes, has as many guides as you will find around a European articenter. They are well dressed gentlemanty follows as a targoodals, wen I looked in dat ar pen, and seed dem, it 'peared like obery white 'publikin lad a nugger a holdin' him up 'twist bin an' de fire to cotch de heft ob de heat.' I estimate that story was good for 1,200 nigger votes to our side in this Virginia compaigo, o anys Mr. Akers.

Chicago Herald. Times are pretty hard with some of the small brokers in the new board of trade district. A deaf and damb man went into an office in the open board of trade buildings the other day, and, seizing a piece of paper, wroter "I am hungry." The broker took the piece of paper, read the unhappy words and scrawled under them: "So am I."
