THE DAY OF THANKS ARRIVES.

Arrested for Forgery-Peace With the Northwestern-Rollins-Lauer-General News.

Further Facts.

The excitement over the Lauer trage dy, though by no means as intense as at first, has not yet subsided, and new developments are constantly being made which go to throw anything but a pleasant light on Mr. Lauer's actions. That gentleman has plenty of friends who are willing to testify in his favor, that he has never mistreated his wife within the past year, etc., etc. But there are others who have seen much of the married life of Mr. and Mrs. Lauer and whose statements are very damaging to the theory so stoutly maintained by the friends of the accused that he was a kind and loving and considerate husband. It is being proven by the assertions of those in a poition to kno w that Lauer was accustomed almost up to the very hour of his wife's tragic death, to heap abuse upon her simply because she saluted her gentlemen friends. It is said that an incident occurred just the day before the killing, which illustrates this. Mrs. Lauer went out riding friday afternoon and went over to her mother's house, and invited her to go out for a short drive. Mrs. Goetschius was busy and declined the invitation, saying that she had too much vitation, saying that she had too much work to do Mrs. Lauer took another friend with her, but, before returning home, went to call on her mother. She remained there some time in pleasant conversation with her friends, when her husband came in and announced that he would take her home. Mrs. Lauer rose, and at once started to put on her cloak, which was rather heavy and difficult to manage. Laner did not offer to help her on with it, and one of the gentlemen in the room stepped up and prodered her his assis-tance. This is said to have incenced Lauer, and to have caused one of his jealous outbreaks right then and there. Mrs. Goetschius, the mother, was questioned by a scribe about the matter yester day, but said that she did not know any day, but said that she did not know anything about it. "I asked Sallie about it the next day," she said, "because I was anxious to know whether John had scolded her on account of her allowing another gentleman to help her on with her cloak. She said that he had not." In the course of a short conversation, Mrs. Goetschius further remarked: "Sallie did not like to have me ask about the relations between herself and her husband.

me ask about the re-lations between herself and her husband. One day she remarked to a lady friend of hers: "I wish ma wouldn't ask me about John. If he did ill-treat me, I couldn't John. If he did ill-treat me, I couldn't tell her, because it would only cause her pain, and she has enough trouble now." This shows pretty conclusively that Mrs. Laner did not care to tell any of the secrets of her married life, preferring rather to suffer in silence than cause her mother any pain by the recital of any troubles she may have had.

It is related of Mr. Lauer that during the night before the funeral, while some of the friends were laying out the corps.

of the friends were laying out the corpse or burial, he sat unconcernedly by, reading from the different papers the account of the tragedy in which he figured so prominently, and making witty comments thereon.

There are other little incidents which are daily coming to light, which go to show that Mr. Lauer is not the unwinged angel that some of his friends would have the public believe he is. They will be the public believe he is. They will be brady, in speaking of the matter said that the Sioux City and Pacific had not safe to say that they will make anything

The police court was crowded yesterday afternoon with those anxious to hear the details of the preliminary examination of Lauer. There was considerable dis-appointment manifested when Disasked on behalf of the state that the preliminary examination be postponed until Friday. Judge Stenberg, although anxious to proceed granted the request, and the examination will be held on the afternoon of that day. The bonds of Miss Minerva Lauer to appear as a witness have been raised from $100 to $1,000. It is said that wen the case passes out of the jurisdiction of the police court, Lauer will not be admitted to bail

The special grand jury in the Lauer case was called in district court yesterday afternoon before Judge Neville. When the jurors had entered the box, Judge Neville addressed them, stating the reason why they were called. He stated that both he and Judge Wakeley had expinised the law relative to the calling of smined the law relative to the calling of grand juries, and they were both of the opinion that they could do so. They therefore called the jury, but shortly afterwards word was received that the supreme court had rendered a decision which reversed their decision. THANKSGIVING.

Something About the Day and How it Will be Observed.

Thanksgiving day comes but once a year, strange as it may seem, and it is therefore meet that everybody should be duly thankful, eat heartily and enjoy themselves according to the way they have been prospered. The president of the United States has issued his proclamation, the governor of Nebraska has supplemented it with another, calling upon the people to refrain from their customary labors and to give thanks for the blessings of the year. This is according to floyle, and the directions of Their Excellencies will probably be followed to day by a majority of the citizens of Omaha. The prosperity of the year past has been marvelous, the corn crop excellent and turkeys passessed of a good excellent and turkeys possessed of a good appetite. These facts are, to some, the most notable features of the day, but to others a more grave and dignified manner of precedure will be observed. In a religious way, the following services will be held:

RAILWAY MATTERS.

Settlement of Difference Between the Northwestern and Omaha-Notes.

It leaked out yesterday that the jobbers and manufacturers of this city held a very important meeting Tuesday night at the Millard hotel, with General Freight Agent Morehouse, of the Sioux City & Pacific, to discuss "mutual matters," The details of this meeting can not yet be made public, but one of the merchants who was present informed a reporter that a very important result had been accomplished—namely, the adjustment of the differences between the jobbers of this city and the Northwestern road. The Northwestern, or rather the Sioux City & Pacific, has agreed to give the Omaha merchants the most favorable rates, and a new tariff will shortly be issued. The result is greeted with no little satisfaction by the Omaha merchants, who say that this practically ends the troubles which have so long annoyed them.

Mr. J. S. Brady, of the firm of McCord been forced to make these concessions, iated in certain quar the contrary," said, "the arrangement has been made without any coercion on a basis of mutual profit. And so far as the removal of the headquarters from Missouri Valley to Omaha is concerned, it is ridiculous to say that Manager Hughitt has become frightened, and offered to do this in or-der to conciliate Omaha merchants. The fact is that he has not offered to do this at all. We ourselves have thought that it would be a good stroke of policy to ac complish the removal of the headquarters of the road to Omaha, and are trying to bring this about. But all this talk about Mr. Hughitt's being forced to make these concessions is rot."

DEFRAUDED HIS EMPLOYER. The Unpleasant Plight of Mr. Mc-Kean Long.

McKean Long, a young man who has been working for A. B. Eads, the wellknown advertising man, who controls the Union Pacific Time Table Gazette, is in pretty serious trouble. He has been guilty of forgery of the plainest kind, and has been captured in Alton, Ill., where he was found Tuesday, It seems that about a month ago, while soliciting advertising for Eads, he got a contract from the Benson Fish company for $75, but by skillful manipulation he managed to raise the amount to $125 and secured from Eads a much heavier commission than he would othervise have been entitled to. The matter was soon brought to the notice of Mr. Eads and he secured a warrant for Mr. Long's arrest. The latter, however, begged so hard, telling piteously of the plight his wife and children would be in if he were put behind the bars, that Mr. Eads decided to withdraw the prosecution. Mr. McKean Long, who is a very honest looking genius, promised to speedily make up the deficit. He said he had a patent bell-call scheme in process of development which would leave him a handsome which would leave him a handsome profit, enough to pay his deficit on the Benson contract, besides some other debts he had contracted. Mr. Eads agreed to wait for his money, thinking that everything was all right. On Saturday night, however, Mr. Long claimed to have received a telegram calling him to Topeka, Kansas, to look after some land matters. He statted south Sunday night, but not for Topeka. WANTS HIM RELEASED.

Mother's Pitcons Appeal to Gen, Howard, in Behalf of Her Son. Gen. Howard is very often in receipt of letters from the relatives of soldiers who have been imprisoned for desertion, etc., asking for the exercise of elemency in the case of the loved one. As a fair sample of these epistles, written sometimes by mothers, sometimes by sisters, sometimes by fathers, the following is printed. It was received yesterday by Gen. Howard from a lady in Buffalo, New York:

"I take the liberty of writing a few lines to you in regard to my son, Edward Fowles, who is a soldier belonging to company E. Ninth U. S. infantry, Fort D. A. Russell, and is now in confinement in the post guard house at that place and is under guard house at that place and is under sentence for one year's imprisonment on a charge of theft, which charge, he claims, is false, which I hope is true for the sake of his widowed mother, and sister who love him dearly, as well as for his own name. I think if he is not guilty, it is such a pity that he is to be so punished and his sister and mother deprived of what help he could give. We are not wealthy and times are hard and it is a struggle to carn a sufficient amount for our maintenance. I would ask your help in his case—ask it has a great favor to him. in his case—ask it as a great favor to him and a special favor to his friends, that you would use your influence to get his sentence remitted, and the blessed God of the widow and the fatherless, in whom I trust, will reward you. He alone knoweth the sorrow that this circumstance has caused us—the bitter tears, the agonizing sleepless nights. Hoping that you will think it over, and do what you can for him and us I am respectfully, Mrs. H. W. Fowles.

fully, Mrs. H. W. Fowles,
The young man referred to is Edward Fowles, of Fort Russell, whom the military records show to be an unregen-erate thief, having been engaged in various pilfering operations almost since the beginning of his connection with the army. He was courtmartialed and sen-tenced to be dishonorably discharged from the service, and to one year's im-prisonment in some penitentiary to be designated by the secretary of war. Gen. Howard has promised to exercise his influence in the young man's behalf.

WAIVED EXAMINATION.

Judge Anderson held him to the district court on the charge of murder in the first degree. The prisoner was remanded back to jail, without bail. His ease will come up at the February term of the district court.

Heavy Burglary.

Room No. 17, Creighton block, occupied by Mr. John Dougherty, secretary for J. A. Creighton, was burglarized Tuesday night, and the heaviest theft which housebreakers have recently accomplished was successfully made. Mr. Dougherty's apartments open out upon the hall. The thief, at about 4 o'clock this morning boldly walked up the main stairway and proceeded to work. With some ingenions appliances the door was opened, and the bolt thrown back with nippers. Mr. Dougherty was not awakened, and the burglar helped himself to a solid gold watch, a handsome gold locket, and a heavy gold vest chain, the whole valued at $300. Strangely enough, the thief missed a diamond and large gold nucret, which lay upon the ons appliances the door was opened, and large gold nugget which lay upon the dresser. The loss of the watch is particularly aggravating to Mr. Dougherty, as it was a present from his employer Mr. Creighton.

A Morning Fog.

Day dawned yesterday with the sunlight struggling through a heavy bank of fog which rested upon the city.
