The establishment of a museum of natural history, etc., in connection with the high school has awakened a great deal of interest, and citizens, realizing the educational value of such an enterprise, are disposed to help it in all ways possible.

QUARRELLED OVER CARDS.

One Hits the Other Over the Head With a Chair, Killing Him.

SUICIDED BY RAT POISON. The Man Drowned in the River Probably Christian Meyer—The Bluffs at the Teachers' Meeting—Death of Mrs. Fleming.

The Mysterious Drowning. On Saturday morning Mr. Theodor Beckman, of Beckman & Co., came into the Bluff office in Council Bluffs and stated he had just learned of the drowning of a man, who had fallen through the ice in the Missouri river, on Tuesday evening, and he thought possibly it might have been his father-in-law from the description he had received.

One of the Bluff force and Mr. Beckman looked over the files of the Bluff, and on reading the account in the Bluff of Wednesday morning, Mr. Beckman said the description tallied exactly with that of his father-in-law, Christian Meyer, an old farmer in the county, who had left Mr. Beckman's residence, No. 283 Sixth street, between 3 and 4 o'clock on Tuesday afternoon.

The only thing that did not tally was the account that the drowned man had been seen on top of the ice, when Mr. Beckman claimed he had on a fur cap. Coroner Drexel of Omaha was then telephoned to, but said he did not have the hat, that he saw it from the Omaha bridge, and it looked like a felt hat and not a fur cap; that the river was open between him and the hat, consequently he didn't get it.

On Saturday afternoon Mr. Beckman, who almost convinced the man was his father-in-law, took the dummy train and went to the river and interviewed the workmen employed on the new bridge. He found a man who described the man as wearing a fur cap, brown put jacket, brown overcoat, tan pants, carrying a gunny sack over his shoulder, and having a grayish full beard. This satisfied the identification, as it was exactly that furnished the Bluff by Mr. Beckman in the morning.

The watchman, John Pierson, on the east side of the bridge, appeared to be the only one who ever talked with Meyer, who since August last been employed as a domestic in the family of Mr. Frank Schram, living about three miles east of Weston. Friday night the girl went to a dance in the neighborhood, and to all appearances seemed in high holiday gear, and there was nothing to excite the least suspicion of her having any such intention. About 5 o'clock a little girl whom Mr. Schram has adopted, and who was sleeping with the German girl, came to the room where Mr. and Mrs. Schram were, and told them she believed Anna had taken poison. They went to her at once, and she freely admitted that she had. "There has been a rat poison," she said, "purchased for use about the house, and she had taken a dose of this. A messenger was sent at once for Dr. Jennings at Weston and he did all in his power to save the girl, but she died. She was in great suffering until about 2 o'clock yesterday morning, she died. She was conscious up to within half an hour of her death, and made a statement to the doctor; the last of which was that no one was to blame but herself. The cause of her act seems to be hidden in mystery, but it is thought to be the old one of the course of love never running smoothly. When Mr. Schram, who is the rat poison, a month or more ago, the girl saw him preparing some for use about the house, and languidly asked him for some of the stuff. He said, of course, that she was joking, and handed it to her, but still laughing, she remarked that she thought she would wait awhile. "Well, Anna," he replied, "there it is; whenever you want it, just help yourself." He little thought then that she would in a short time turn into a corpse that was spoken in jest. The girl was only 19 years old. She has a sister living in this city, employed in Mr. Friedman's family.

"Lone Wolf" Not Dissected. The squabble about the body of "Lone Wolf" now has its closing chapter. Coroner Council has returned from Avera without obtaining the body. He reports that there was much excitement there over the affair, and he was threatened with all sorts of dire calamities should he insist on removing the body. He was given just twenty minutes to get to the hotel, there to remain until the first train could take him out of town. He says that the threat was made that if he attempted to enter the cemetery or disturb the body, a bullet would be sent through his official cranium. He came back with his head in its usual condition. By some sort of compromise, the rumor that the body was not buried but was sent to a dissecting room was shown to be false. The body was taken up in Council's presence, so that it is now settled that "Lone Wolf" is really buried there. Council says he was buried under a dog man's name.

Did Not Hear the Whistle. Yesterday an inquest was held on the body of George Schultz, who was killed Christmas morning by the outgoing Rock Island train near Green's packing house in Grenada. A number of witnesses were examined, among them the engineer, Crockett, the fireman, Quinn, Conductor Taylor and others of the train. It appeared from the evidence that the unfortunate man left his boarding house in Grenada on the morning of the intention of going to the house of a German for whom he used to work, and from there come to the city, expecting to return to his boarding house in the evening. He started out along the railway track and was walking right between the rails when the train came upon him, the whistle was blown at the crossing before the engineer saw the man and the steam fell out to plugging. As the train swept around the curve the engineer saw the man walking on the tracks, but did not notice whether he was walking on the track, but kept on walking until the train was on to him. He was taken up and carried to Weston, from which place the body was sent to this city. Scholz has lived in and about Council Bluffs for about ten years. He was a German, and a butcher by trade. He has worked for different persons here, and was at the time of his death in the employ of the packing house where he has worked for five seasons. He is well spoken of by all who knew him, and was a hard working, temperate man. He was aged about 40 years, and was very active, and with no defects of hearing or of sight it seems strange that he did not heed any of the warnings given by the approaching train. His wife died about fourteen years ago, leaving him to care for five children, all girls, the youngest a mere babe. The girls are now able to care for themselves, and two of them are married. All of them live in and near Council Bluffs, where he had a younger brother living. This brother, Charles Scholz, is here caring for the remains and seeing them properly buried. The children are now being cared for by their father for ten years, and rather than take back to them his ungodly remains he deemed it best to have the burial here. The coroner's jury exonerated the railway company from blame, it appearing that every possible means was taken to save the man.
