Grinding Away on Criminal Cases—Tip Over Cutters All the Craze—Other News Gathered From Council Bluffs.

THE NEW SEWER DITCH.

The city engineer, J. F. Brodbeck, has made a report on the Indian creek sewer ditch, in which he says:

"The condition of said ditch now is a clear and unobstructed channel, excepting piling under railway bridges, from Fifth avenue south to a point about three-fourths of a mile southwest of the city limits, at which point two same runs out at the natural surface of the slough, but without fall, however, to this point from a point about one-half mile north of the city limits. The original intention was to make the point at the city limits eleven feet above the plane of reference, and at Broadway fifteen feet, making a fall of two feet per mile, but in consequence of what is known as the 'short cut' across the fields to the lake not having been fully decided upon I ran the level from said point one-half mile north of the city limits in order to do as little work as possible south of said limits until the route was finally adopted.

The distance to the lake across fields equals about one and one-eighth miles, and by way of slough through sections 11, 15, 23 and 27, nearly four miles. Elevation of water in lakes December 16, 1885, equalled 2.5 feet. Elevation of river at available intersection via slough, about 1.5 feet. Excavation by short cut with a cross section of six feet on bottom, slope one foot to one foot, average cut about 12 feet, with fall of 21 feet per mile, equals about 40,000,000 cubic yards. This fall would intersect the lake at an elevation of about five feet above the present elevation of water. Route via slough would be difficult to construct beyond pool near southeast corner of section 15, slough being about 6,000 feet long, studded with dead willow snags and stumps, and beyond that again for a distance of about a half mile high ground covered with timber. Making in consideration the difference of distances in routes and great irregularity of course via slough, and fall being practically equal, the short cut seems the more feasible."

The Doings of Court.

In the district court yesterday Miles Mullen was found guilty of stealing Mr. Mitchell's horse.

The grand jury returned an indictment against Jerry Ritchie, the young man who is said to have purloined so much during the years of his employment in Bushnell's store. The case has attracted a good deal of attention as the young man is so well known here, and there has been many comments on the fact that it has not been prosecuted before. It is predicted that it will be difficult to prove grand larceny against him, although there seems little doubt, but that his pecuniations amounted in the course of years to several hundred dollars. The difficulty is said to be that these amounts were taken a little at a time, and that it will be difficult to prove that he took more than $20 at any one time. It is claimed that he will have to be tried on one at a time, and that the most that can be done is to find him guilty of petit larceny. One charge after another of this kind could be presented, but it is not likely that this course would be pursued for any great length of time. A charge was being made yesterday to secure bail for him and thus get him out of jail.

The grand jury returned an indictment yesterday charging J. W. Green with the larceny of a horse belonging to J. V. Bunnell, of Knox township.

The trial of criminal cases will probably take all of this week. It is expected that there will be several prisoners sentenced to-day.

A motion for a new trial was presented yesterday in the case of S. A. Broadwell, who was found guilty of obtaining money under false pretenses. It was based on the ground that the evidence was being made by some of his friends yesterday to secure bail for him, so as to relieve him from the unpleasantness of remaining longer in jail.

Much of the time in court yesterday was taken up with the trial of Richard Baker, the colored man known as "Foxy," for stabbing another colored man, Frank Finley, in a row in Nelson's saloon a few weeks ago. Despite the seriousness of the charge, "assault with intent to kill," the trial was an amusing one in some of its features. Finley, on the stand, gave a humorous account of the affair, and from his account it appears that they must have had a "monkey and parrot" time. Finley got in one blow on Foxey, which landed in the liver, and a half foot, according to the testimony of one witness, who had taken the pains to measure the distance accurately with a tape line. Finley claimed that he knocked Foxey from eight feet to twenty-five feet, and perhaps more. Finley received several cuts, but was not seriously hurt.

Canning Factory for the Bluffs. It seems pretty well settled now that Council Bluffs will soon have located here one of the largest canning manufacturing in the state. Persons interested from elsewhere have been in consultation with citizens here, and as a result of the conference it has been decided to go ahead with the arrangements for starting such an enterprise here. It is understood that the parties coming here will invest $18,000, and that $2,000 more will be invested by citizens here, making the capital $20,000. The intention is to put up works at once, and to can tomatoes and corn next summer, with the probability of adding in the winter season facilities for canning meat. The capacity of the works will be such that from sixty to one hundred persons will be employed. It is hoped that this will be but the beginning of a boom in manufacturing for this city. Council Bluffs needs factories of all kinds, and the citizens seem so thoroughly aroused, and so much in earnest that never before has there seemed such strong probabilities of the city securing several such enterprises within the coming year.

INCIDENTS OF LIFE UNDER WATER.

An Old Engineer Relates Some of His Experiences What the Chinamen Saw.

"Life under water monotonous, eh? Well, I guess not. At least I don't find it so. I've been there fourteen years and I have been always managed to find enough to occupy my time and attention. The sports have had a hard time of it the great ocean steamers, and as he made that remark to a New York Tribune reporter, while standing on the pier, before his vessel, he readjusted his loose blouse with an awkward jerk, and gave his head a casual twitch.

"Then," said the friend of Mr. Toombs, "Senator Toombs will challenge you to mortal combat."

"This is just what I want, and he might get to this point without all this prattle."

"You cannot be in earnest, Mr. Wade," said the senator.

"Yes, I am, and for a reason. We northerners do not want to fight. I am opposed to the code, and so are my constituents, but you fellows broke Sumner's head, and if we don't spank you a little you will break all our heads. The shortest way to end the matter is to kill off a few of you. I have picked out Toombs as my man. He will have to challenge me, then, of course, I will have the choice of weapons, and I will take down my old rifle, and—me if I don't bring him down at the first crack."

This conversation was reported to Toombs, and he replied: "I can't challenge him; I do he will kill me. He then told his senatorial friends that he and Wade had been put together shooting with a rifle several times, and that while he (Toombs) could shoot well with a pistol, he was a poor rifle shot. Wade was an old hunter, and could snuff a candle at a hundred yards.

Wade, in speaking of this afterward, said: "If old Toombs had challenged me that time, as I expected he would, I would have made him put a patch on his coat the size of a dollar over his heart, and the old fellow would have got demoralized when he saw me drawing a bead on it, and—me if I wouldn't have cut the patch."

Bob Toombs and Ben Wade.

Boston Globe. Speaking of Toombs reminds me of the number of quarrels he had in the senate with Ben Wade, and at one time especially, when he came very near having a duel. The home-stead bill was under discussion, and Toombs had referred to it with a sneer as a measure for white papers when Wade arose and said: "Sir, you sneer at the home-stead bill because it gives land to the landless, do you? What is your pet scheme? Buying Cuba, seizing negroes for the negroes? We will go to the country upon it." Shortly after this Wade made a speech in which he used language which almost, apparently, compelled Toombs to challenge him. Several friends of Wade went to him and begged him to desist, but the old man went on until Toombs announced his intention of taking him to account. Upon this Wade quietly sat down, and the southern men looked at each other in surprise, as it was evident he had tried to provoke a quarrel with a Georgia fire-eater. That night a friend of Toombs, called upon Wade to know if he would retract the offensive words he had used.

"Then," said the friend of Mr. Toombs, "Senator Toombs will challenge you to mortal combat."

"This is just what I want, and he might get to this point without all this prattle."

"You cannot be in earnest, Mr. Wade," said the senator.

"Yes, I am, and for a reason. We northerners do not want to fight. I am opposed to the code, and so are my constituents, but you fellows broke Sumner's head, and if we don't spank you a little you will break all our heads.
