FOUND A NEBRASKA COAL MINE

Death of an Estimable Lady—Pinner's Victim Summoned—A Curious Case—District Court Notes—Brief Mentions.

[FROM THE BEE'S LINCOLN BRANCH.]

Lincoln has some twenty-five Chinese residents, nearly all of whom are close attendants at the Methodist Sunday school. For three days past these people have been celebrating their New Year holiday, and yesterday afternoon, as a fitting close, gave a grand banquet to the "white folks," who have been looking after their spiritual welfare.

FOUND A COAL MINE

Herman Bruning, living near St. Helena, Cedar county, has written to Governor Dawes, stating that he has found a six foot vein of coal, and asking what steps he must take to secure the state reward of $1,000 offered for the discovery of coal veins six inches or more in depth.

DEATH OF MRS. HAY

Mrs. Hay, wife of the assistant physician at the hospital for the insane, died yesterday afternoon in childbirth. Mrs. Hay was 27 years old, and had been married only a year.

FURNER'S VICTIM SUMMONED

Korber, the man who was so badly frozen four weeks ago, died at the medical institute, and the coroner has ordered the dissection of his body. He was very low when the operation was performed, and the surgeons used the knife as a last resort in an almost hopeless effort to save his life.

IN THE DISTRICT COURT

Some weeks ago Annie M. Day, the Eleventh street girl, who had a claim on her stock to her brother-in-law, Charles H. Day, of Mason City, Iowa, to secure a loan of $5,000.

HE BEATS THE PIED PIPER

Harry Jennings, Ratcheter for Seventy Establishments.

[A Gifted Londoner Who Has Settled in New York With His Ferrets and His Terriers and His Other Fearless Assistants.]

New York Sun: The weird musician known in legend and poem as the Pied Piper of Hamelin, who, by the seductive strains of his flute, lured all the rats in a little German town to destruction, would have little to say to-day, a worthy rival in the very substantial and prosaic-looking gentleman known as Harry Jennings. His proud bearing may be due to the consciousness that he is the boss rat catcher of America.
