MINOR MENTION.

New spring goods at Reiter's. R. G. Dunn & Co., have their quarterly book (for March) just out.

Nine free lodgers, but not a single pris-oner in the city jail yesterday. The sewer ditch contract is still the bone of contention in the superior court.

James Winans yesterday was granted a divorce from Sarah Winans, the grounds Regular meeting of Fidelity Council No. 156, R. A. this (Friday) evening. All members are requested to be present.

A company of friends were last even-ing entertained by Mrs. F. M. Roher and her mother, Mrs. Crawford, at their resi-dence, No. 239 Vine street.

In the circuit court the time yesterday was taken up in the trial of Gilman & Co. against Yetzer & Rapp. The case will probably take the rest of the week. The Royal Arcanum party last evening was the third party given this season by Fidelity Council, and was as all of their dances, a social event to be remembered by all who attended. The city council is to meet Saturday afternoon. The new council is expected to meet for the first time about the 15th, but will not organize until the first Mon-Carl, the infant child of A. C. Rank, who lives about two miles east of the city, died Wednesday of diphtheria.

The funeral was a private one, such be ing necessary under the circumstances. The fact that three prisoners could dig out of the city jail, while the city fur-nishes one day jailor and one night jailor to watch the place, indicates that there is some good ground for the claim that the keeping of two jailors is a needless lux-

The milinery establishment of Mrs O. A. Rogers was closed yesterday on a chattel mortgage held by Lederer, Strauss & Co., a wholesale house of Des Moines, who claim $600. Mrs. Rogers has had numerous misfortunes of late years, and much sympathy is felt for her. The Odd Fellows have three lodges in the city, but they will probably not arrange for any celebration here of the sixty-seventh anniversary of the order, April 26, but will accept the invitation of Omaha to be present there on that date, the invitation being not only for the Ne-braska lodges, but those of western Iowa.

W. F. Blair of Carson, a merchant, gained some notoriety recently by running off with a young lady whom he has since married. Now the financial troubles begin. Creditors here, learning bles begin. Creditors here, learning that he had given a chattel mortgage on his stock in favor of his mother, yesterday lumped their claims together in the sum of about $500 and sent the papers to Carson to have the stock attached.

One obstinate juryman can often cause much trouble. In a case in the circuit court Wednesday the jury retired at noon, and a ballot showed eleven in favor of the plaintiffs, Officer & Pusey, and one in favor of the defendant, Dale, the action being the forceloscure of a most tion being the forecloseure of a mort-gage. The one held out until midnight, twelve hours, and then made the verdict unanimous in favor of Officer & Pusey. The eleven were naturally hot, and there was a lively time of it.

It is reported that "the mayor of my city" is looking to the newly elect mayor to pay his election expenses, amounting to $245. The ground on which it is said that Vaughan thinks Chapman should meet the claim, is that if he, Vaughan, had not run, Percival would have been elected mayor, instead of Chapman. The report is hardly to be credited, for the request is too modest a one for Vaughan

While William Arndt, the assistant county auditor, and Hugh Oliver were sitting chatting in the auditor's office sitting chatting in the auditor's office late Wednesday evening, they heard a strange noise in the clerk's office, and going in there found the rear door open. The door had apparently been left unlocked and then blown open by the wind. This was enough to give rise to the report quite current on the street yesterday that burglars had attempted to rob the clerk's office.

Mr. R. T. Bryant returned from Parrall, Mexico, yesterday morning. Mr. Bryant is one of the Council Bluffs gentlemen largely interested in mining property in Mexico, and was a member of the party of prospectors who went from El Paso to Howser, an account of whose murder appeared in the BEE some time since. Mr. Bryant was at Parrall when Howser was killed, and aided the officers in seeking the arrest of the murderers. He states that one of the bandits has been captured, and has joined in the pursuit of the other, and there are good prospects that the ruflian will soon be caught.

Personal Paragraphs.

County Auditor Clausen is on the sick C. M. Wilt of Neola was in the city yesterday.

A. V. Bass of Randolph was at the Ogden yesterday. M. Jaquemin of Sioux City visited the Bluffs yesterday.

C. H. Nozro of Milwaukee was at the Ogden yesterday. Miss Mary Kirkland, daughter of T. A.

seriously so. His father from Kirksville,
Mo., is in attendance at his bedside.

Money to loan by Forrest Smith. Jail Break at Denison, Iowa.

A prisoner named Miller, charged with larceny, escaped from the new county jail at Denison (Iowa) on Wednesday night. He had had the liberty of the night. He had had the liberty of the corridor and another prisoner was instructed to lock him in his cell. By tying a string to a chair in his cell and passing it through the bars in the rear he pulled the chair around in such a way as to make the keeper think he was still in the cell. During the night he dug through the thick wall.

An Elegant Social Affair-Lone Wolt's War Record-Coasting Carnival -Revivalists Plenty-Other News About the Bluffs.

An Elegant Social Event. On Wednesday evening Mrs. W. W. Loomis entertained a number of friends with a progressive euchre and tea party. It proved to be one of the most elegant social events of the season, the arrangements in all their details being in rare good taste and carried out with genuine hospitality, so that all enjoyed the occasion heartily. The score cards were hand-painted, being secured in Chicago for this special occasion. The prizes were very elegant and appropriate. The la-dies' prize was a beautiful hand-painted banner, and was won by Mrs. Dearborn. The gentlemen's prize was a beautifully painted plaque, and was won by W. F. Sapp, jr. The booby prize for ladies was a handsomely painted cow bell, "Lost," and was taken by Mrs. Col. Sapp. The gentlemen's booby prize was a handpainted drum, with the significant wording. "Something which can be beaten." ing, "Something which can be beaten."
It was taken by Mr. Rockwell.

The menu was varied and served elegantly. It consisted of hot rolls, croquettes, cold meats, brown and white bread, clives and pickles. Then vols au vent of oysters, Roman punch in orange baskets, salad, moulded crumbs, cake and coffee.

"Lone Wolf" as a Soldier.

Chief of Police Skinner has received another letter from the wife of John Palmer, known as "Lone Wolf," concerning whose death and burial there has been so much in the press. The poor woman had not heard from him for six months before his death was announced, and thus attracted her attention. There has been much talk about whether he was in the army or not, and on this point his wife writes that she knows he was in the army, but she has not yet found his papers. She encloses a clipping from a paper published at Wahpeton, Dakota, which had been preserved in a scrap book, and which will be read with intercst by many who were acquainted with him here. It is as follows:

"Quite a crowd gathered last night at the corner of Dakota avenue and Fifth street to hear the remarkable oratorical powers of a man hearing the corners." powers of a man bearing the cognomen of Crazy Jack, at the same time patronizing his certainly cheap wares. He was accompanied by a man named John Palmer, who appeared to have followed the different callings of artilleryman, government scout, Indian interpreter, actor, and doctor of medicine. In this character he now appears before the public canvassing some Indian remedy.

"On Thursday morning Mine Host
Smith of the Headquarters, seated beneath the hotel porch, remarked to some gentle-men, among whom was Palmer, that the thunder reminded him of the roaring of the guns at Gettysburg. "Gettysburg?" interrupted Palmer. "Which side of the river were you on?" Smith replied; one question led to another, and the Indian doctor actually reminded him of many things done which he had long ago forthings done which he had long ago forgotten. To make a long story short, Palmer and Smith had netually entered the same day together. They joined the Fourth New York Independent battery on the 21st of October, 1861, and for three years they fought side by side, being in sixteen different engagements. Among others were the blockade of the Potomac, siege of Yorktown, several short engagesiege of Yorktown, several short engage-ments at Williamsburg, battle at Fair Oaks, Malvern Hill, second battle of Buil Run, Fredericksburg, Chancellers-ville, and Gettysburg, where they lost three guns presented to them by Parrot, inventor of the cannon bearing his name John Palmer afterwards went as a scout years had passed these two meet again at Wahpeton."

The Crawford County Mystery. The further details of the murder of a man whose wife is found living in Crawford county, are thus given in the Bulle-

From Mr. Rus. Whipple, a detective of Eau Claire, Wisconsin., who was in Denison Friday, we glean the following particulars of the murder of a Crawford county man: Late in September last a man appeared in Eau Clair, driving a team which he desired to sell. During a conversation on this matter Mr. Whipple incidentally learned that he was from conversation on this matter Mr. Whipple incidentally learned that he was from Iowa and that his name was Dan Me-Lain. On the 20th of that month McLain disappeared and a few weeks later his body was found in a creek near that city. His throat was cut from ear to ear and his feet were tied together with a hitching strap. The remains were identified by Whipple as those of McLain. The team was traced to a purchaser who had bought the outfit for $50, but the murderer esthe outfit for $50, but the murderer es-caped. Little could be done until some-thing definite was learned as to McLain's antecedents. Chicago and various Iowa cities were visited and detective agencies consulted, but all to no purpose—the home of McLain was a mystery. Finally Whipple bethought himself of the old wagon that was sold by McLain's murwagon that was sold by McLain's murderer, and he hunted it up and examined it carefully for a clue. In faded lettering he found the imprint of its maker—"E. A. Liddle, Denison, lowa, 1876." By referring to the map he saw that Denison was a small town, and reasoning that the wagon must have been used in the neighborhood of the factory, he came to this place. With little effort he learned that McLain formerly lived on the Gould place in East Boyer township, and that he left this county some time last August. McLain was well known in Denison, and his hor rible death will create a sensation here. His widow who, it seems, learned of his death shortly after it occurred, but who failed to make it public, has since married Fred Litka and, we learn, resides on the Dan Gillett farm. There

Are no clues as to the murderer, and the search has been given up, Mr. Whipple's visit here having in view the identification of the heirs of McLain's property, which is in the hands of the authorities.

The Official Count. Yesterday City Clerk Dalrymple and Justice Schurz made an official canvass of the recent city election, and found the result to be as already given in the BEE, there not being any difference except in the exact number varying a few votes The fact of the mayor being a candidate prevented him from serving on the board of canvassers under the law. The following were the majorities as announced officially, and certificates were issued to the lucky ones, with notice to appear and qualify within ten days:

The total number of votes for mayor was 2,579, while on the question of park levy there were but 1,546.

A Grand Hotel. There are negotiations pending by which it is expected that Council Bluff's will have ere long one of the finest hotel buildings in this part of the world. There are about fifteen citizens who have already expressed their willingness to invest $5,000 each to start with, and it is expected that the move will result in the erection of a building to cost $150,000. The site talked of is that now occupied by the Pacific house, the intention being to build clear to the corner of Scott street. The owner of the Pacific house property, Mr. Moir of New York, was here Wednesday, and proposals were made him and negotiations opened. Negotiations are also pending for the purchase of the ad-joining property, so as to make the site of the hotel extend to Scott street. If this move is carried out successfully, this city will have a hotel building which will prove a great improvement, indeed. It is expected that the matter will be fully decided upon within fifteen days. site is one of the best in the city for hotel purposes, but if this cannot be secured it is understood that an attempt will be made to secure another, and go ahead with the putting up of a fine hotel, any-

Religious Awakenings. After the BEE stated the revival meetings being held in Dohany's old opera house were not being given by the Salvation army, the Herald comes out and declares that they are; then next that they are not. What next? The Rev. Hiram Price has been in this city for several months, and Joseph Wells, besides being a member of the Baptist church, is the janitor of the Y. M. C. A. rooms in this city. They are alone are responsible for the revival and have been supported in their movement by subscriptions from

Council Bluffs people.

Al Morris, who claims to be a reformed prize-lighter and gambler of Omaha, has begun to hold meetings in Platner's hall. He announces himself as "a friend and colleague of Ben Hogan, and his (Morris') past life and reform contain the same thrilling story that has enabled the latter (Hogan) to do such good work," evidently relying on Ben Hogan's reputation to build up his own.

A Coasting Carnival.

The reappearance of snow causes a revival of the project for having a grand coasting carrival, which was arranged for some time ago but indefinitely postponed. The committees have been discussing the matter, and the prospect seems good for having such a carnival on Saturday night. All depends upon the weather, and an announcement will be made in to-morrow's BEE.

From Major to General. From the Hotel Gazette: Last fall, while a drummer for a New York house was opening a new route in Arkansas, he took pains to let everybody know that he was "Maj. Smith." This little scheme worked pretty well to secure him the best worked pretty well to secure him the best room in several hotels, and to have his opinion sought for on the weather, the European situation, etc., but there was a snag waiting for him fifty miles further on. He finally struck a hotel where his room was in the garret, and his bed a lonesome object to behold. He held the tallow candle above his head and made an examination of the surroundings, and an examination of the surroundings, and then walked down stairs and indignantly demanded of the landlord:
"Sir, do you suppose that I will accept of any such quarters as those?"

"Sorry, major, very sorry; but it's the very best I can do." "But you must have better rooms?"

"Oh, certainly; but I go according to rank. The generals get the best, the colonels come next, and I stow the majors away in the garret. It's all your own

Next day the drummer promoted him-self to general, and he hung to the title until he left the state.

A Useful Bunkum. Washington Letter: The Bunkum bill has been the talk of the town during the has been the talk of the town during the past few days. The words have already become synonymous with all that is useless and worthless. As an instance the following story is told in the hotels tonight. There was a great game of poker begun Saturday afternoon between two senators and three members of congress. It lasted until after church time yesterday, when one of the congressmen went broke. All his money, his watch and several due bills had been parted with. He had nothing more. Finally, in sheer desperation, he steked a printed copy of his last bill introduced in the house. It was a Bunkum bill. It won the "pot," as one of the senator explained in my hearing to-night, "because nobody in this world could make it good." nobody in this world could make it good."
If this doesn't indicate how badly Washington thirsts for a new joke nothing else will.

A Ludierous Mistake. A St. Paul divine, the pastor of one of the leading and most prosperous Methodist Episcopal congregations, visited a musical store, and while there was introduced by the proprietor to a second cus tomer, who is inclined to be deaf. The proprietor, in presenting the two, completed the introduction by adding "minister" to the name of the Methodist preacher. "A minstrel, hey?" queried the deaf person. "What troupe do you belong to? Are you a singer or one of the end men?" The proprietor yelled out a few explanatory remarks, after which the deaf man was profuse in his apologies, and the minister accepted them with a due appreciation of the comtomer, who is inclined to be deaf. The them with a due appreciation of the comical results of the mistake.

The Ideal Newspaper.

Says an old newspaper man to "By-stander" in the Philadelphia News: "The ideal daily will be sixteen pages, Harper's Weekly size, pasted and cut, and it will sell at a price which will give good profit on the circulation. It will not duplicate the news in the editorial columns. At first sight you will be apt to think it has no news, for it will print no dispatches as dispatches, and will not glory in flaming head-lines. All the news, local included, will be written out in readable form, and in the same articles whatever comment may be necessary will be made. The type will be large and the paper clear. People don't care a rap how papers get the news so they do get it. It doesn't concern anybody but newspaper men whether a dispatch is special or not, and newspapers are not printed for the reading of newspaper men."

Detroit Free Press: A stranger was yesterday writing a letter at the desk in the corridor of the postoffice when a woman with a postal card in one hand and the other tied up in a handkerchief came walking up and eyed him in a wist-

Either come home and attend to business or change your name to No Good, and never dare to address me again. I am, sir, your patient, but determined wife."

He read it to her in a well-modulated voice, and she held up her well hand and exclaimed:

"Oh! thanks! That's beautiful. Why I couldn't have done so well in a week! You must surely be a married man your She trotted away to mail it, and went out of the office with a smile all over her

A Fool of a Woman.

Mrs. Jennie Roehr, a handsome young widow, had Mrs. Schadt, a fortune teller widow, had Mrs. Schadt, a fortune tener in St. Louis, arrested Friday on a charge of fraud. Mrs. Roehr's husband was a wholesale jeweler and died four years ago, leaving her three children and some little property, and she states that on his deathbed he advised her to marry again. On recommendation she went to see Mrs. Schadt. The latter cut the cards and finally told her that she would marry a nice blonde young man. Mrs. Roehr knew such a young man, and the fortune teller proceeded to work her occult powers on him in the form of love powders which cost the widow from $50 to $100 apiece. The powders were blown through the keyhole of the nice blonde young man's bedroom, but for some reason or other they didn't have the desired effect. The widow claims that she paid Mrs. Schadt altogether $1,450, and, failing to get the husband, wanted her money back, and it was refused. Hence the arrest for

"Ah. Madame, said a friend to Modjeska yesterday, "why don't you appear again in Romeo and Juliet." "I shall revive it by and by," replied the lady.

"But when?"

"By and by." "Yes: but when is 'by and by?" per-sisted the friend. "Oh, by and by is when my hist grandchild makes its adpearance. That week I shall play the old play again in commemoration of the happy event. I have promised some friends to do so, and I will

He Didn't Care to Pile on Fortune Too Thick.

Wall Street News: One day last fall a strange woman appeared at a farm house in Indiana and announced that she was a clairvoyant, who had come down from Chicago to show the farmer where to dig up a jug containing $20,000 in gold.
"What's the charge?" inquired the "Two thousand dollars in advance."

"Shoo! that's outrageous."
"But think of it. You will have $18,000 left." "Y-e-s, I suppose so, but I reckon we'll let the old jug rest, for a while yet I drawed $50 in a lottery last month and I cleared $7 in a bucket shop this week, and I don't keer to pile it on too thick. Even now the old woman wants new shoes and the gale are error to have the shoes and the gals are crazy to have the house painted two coats.
