Omaha's Progress SINCE 1884.

Can be realized best by those who can recall to memory the old sites which have been selected for the magnificent structures recently completed, The first selected by the ambitious fathers of our Gate City, was for the erection of a more elaborate temple of justice, and not a stone was left unturned until their ambition was gratified and they completed the noble and handsome

Court House

Which is elevated to that point that its towering cupola can be seen for miles around, to say nothing of the mechanical skill that is displayed both inside and out, composing designs purely new and original, with points that are equal to any, if not surpassing all others on the continent. The next step on foot, was taken to erect an EXPOSITION BUILDING And the site selected on the northeast corner of 15th and Capitol Avenue, which stood for many years unoccupied, and was merely a resort as a children's playing ground. This most beautiful piece of mechanical skill is striking to the pride of every heart in the Gate City, and well we can feel proud of this bestowing feature to our city, as it is equal to that of any in the larger cities east. These features show what enterprise can do for a once called "small western town;" and now with the site which has recently been the purchase of Hon. Wm. Paxton, on Farnam street, between 15th and 16th streets, adjoining the site of the old court house, with a view to erect his new hotel which when completed promises to eclipse anything in the hotel line on the American continent. Mr. Paxton is a worthy citizen and deserves praise for the interest he takes in beautifying the city. Last but not least was the establishing of

The Misfit Clothing Parlors

Who now occupy 1119 Farnam street, the land mark so long recognized as the stand of the popular grocers, J. B. French & Co. The Parlors have recently completed extensive improvements which beautifies the rooms so that they are equal to the neatest in the west. The Parlors also deserve credit for the progress they have made in winning the many hard fought battles of competition, and in dressing the people of Omaha with such exquisite taste, and saving them from 50 to 100 per cent on each purchase. The Parlors are the gossip of today, and not only a thing of the past. Should you meet a friend who appears more neatly clad than the majority of men seen on the street, ask him where he buys his clothing, you will find him ready to say,
