The revival meeting at Dohany's old hall have been pretty fairly attended this week. Alf Morris, who banks heavily on his having been a prize fighter, is the drawing card. He tells many plain facts, and indulges in a rough and tumble talk to the boys. He says Council Bluffs is the hardest spot he ever struck, and he seems to delight in denouncing his hearers as "great big duffers," "great big hearers as "great big duffers," "great big loafers," etc. The other night he said, "Why, I used to have a dog who knew more than all you fellers; had more sense; he would roll over when I told him to; could stand on his hind legs; he had more sense than all the young fellers in Council Bluffs put together." That is about a sample of the kind of talk he is giving, though at times he happens to hit giving, though at times he happens to hit a truth that is worth while. He doubtless means well, but he has an odd way. Perhaps abuse may win over some of the hard citizens. He ought to know, for he says he has traveled with that class all his life.

THE NEW CITY WEIGHMASTER.

Preparing For a Complimentary Fair -The Musical Institute-A New Firm-Other Gleanings by the Reporters.

The New Weighmaster.

The new city weighmaster and superintendent of markets starts in with as much enthusiasm as any of his predecessors. The office has become of little account owing to a variety of circumstances, and yet Mr. Amy has faith to believe that it can be made to at least pay a living income. There have been many obstacles in the pathway of his predecessor, and the office has been merely filled nominally. The new official proposes to reopen the office at the city building. have the city scales put in shape, and at-tend to his duties carefully and constantly until he gives it a fair test at least. Previous councils have allowed the duties of vious councils have allowed the duties of the city weighmaster to be performed by private parties, and if this same policy is kept up by the present council there will be little chance for Mr. Amy to get even a living out of the office. It is more than probable, however, that with as excellent an official as Mr. Amy will make the council will see that he is given all that honestly belongs to his position, and will take steps to make the office what the law intended it should be. An attempt will be made to fix up the grounds near the city building, so as to make a market the city building, so as to make a market place of it, and to stop the licensing of other scales. If so, the office will doubtless become something more than an

A New Firm.

Yesterday Charles A. Moore and Oscar H. Keplinger completed arrangements by which they became the proprietors of the retail eigar store of Peregov & Moore, the new firm to be Moore & Keplinger, the location to be the old one, No. 419 Broadway. Peregoy & Moore will now give their entire attention to their wholesale business, which has grown into such large proportions as to demand all their care. The retail business has been handled by Mr. Charles Moore for three years past, and he has attended to the demands of the trade with unflagging zeal, tying himself down to business day in and day out, always on hand to supply patrons in a happy way, winning friends and increasing the business steadily and surely. Mr. Keplinger has been book-keeper for J. L. Forman for several years, and is a thorough business young man, who will prove a valuable addition.
The new firm, with a business already established on a solid basis, cannot but reach out to larger prosperity. The stock is a very large one, and every variety of goods in that line are always found there in such quantities—that a customer—cannot but make a satisfactory selection. In the hands of the new firm the business will go forward rather than backward.

Laid at Rest.

The remains of the late Robert Percival were yesterday laid at rest. They were lying in state at the residence of Mrs. Saunders yesterday morning, and were viewed by hundreds of old friends. A brief and tender service was conducted by Rev. T. J. Mackay of St. Paul's Episcopal church, after which the procession was formed to take the remains to the C., B. & Q. depot, where a special train was in waiting to take them to Sidney, lowa, the old home of Mr. Percival. ney, lowa, the old home of Mr. Percival. The pall-bearers were Messrs. Cook, Groneweg, Patterson, Rudd, Hunter and Cooper. The Bavarian band played a dirge, and Excelsior lodge, No. 259, A. F. & A. The bar, of which he was such an old and prominent member, attended in carriages, and a large number of citizens joined in paying mete tribute to the dead. There were nearly tribute to the dead. There were nearly 300 who took the special train conveying the remains to Sidney. There they were joined by Masons from Glenwood, Hastings and Randolph. It seemed as if all the citizens for miles about were in attendance, showing how strongly the sud denly stricken one held the affections of those who had known him for so many years. The floral tributes were numer ous, varied and beautiful, some of the de signs being very elaborate.

A Musical Institute. The musical institute to be conducted by Professor T. Martin Towns of Chicago is to open on Thursday night of next week in the parlors of the Congregational church. The securing of the services of this well-known composer and instructor is a cause of congratulation. and there are many who will gladly avail themselves of his presence in the city. He will remain here two weeks, conducting classes, teaching the young folks how to read music, developing the voices of others, and giving private lessons to such as desire. He is a man whose reputation is established among musical circles, and he is considered one of the best in the land. The ladies of the Congregational church who have the tional church, who have the arrange ments in charge, have placed tickets on sale at Harkness Bro.s', at W. S. Homer's and at J. W. Fair For the Sisters. The ladies of the Catholic church are making extensive preparations for a grand complimentary fair for the benefit of the Sisters of St. Francis academy, which will take place about the last week of April or the first week of May. All are invited to participate, Catholic or non-Catholic, to help the good work by their presence and by contributions. The academy is in fact a public institution, the advantages of which are within the reach of all. The sisters have expended a great amount of money in building improvements here, and the institution is one which is educating young ladies from all parts of the country. All meetings for the fair will be held at the academy, and everybody feeling an inter-est in the noble work of the good sisters are most heartily invited to co-operate. Ready For Spring.

ANECDOTE OF ARMOUR.

The Chicago Pork Packer Relates a Youthtul Experience.

Kansas City Times: Perhaps none of her admirers have a more abiding faith in the future of Kansas City than Mr. P. D. Armour, the Chicago millionaire packer and railroad director. It is impossible to talk a half hour with him without hearing something about the West-ern giant. The subject once broached, Mr. Armour flies off at a tangent, and the floodgates of his eloquence are not closed until the hearer has acquired a pretty clear idea of the young metropolis and her prospects. Despite this fact tew even of Mr. Armour's most intimate friends know that the millionaire stood on the bank of the raging Kaw when Kansas City was Westport Landing and her bright destiny not yet foreshadowed. It happened in this wise: Young Armour, like thousands of young men in the states, early caught the California fever, and, with eleven other Madison county (New York) have stated for the lead of the level. York) boys, started for the land of gold. The party came up the Missouri via boat, and outfitted at Independence. With three or four ox wagons and provisions enough to last six months, they started one bright May morning on their journey across the plains. The incident was related by Mr. Armour himself, on the occasion of the control casion of his recent visit to this city.

"It didn't take us long to get ready.
Some of us hustled around and got the wagons, others laid in provisions, and Calvin Gilbert was deputized to buy the oxen. The commission was given him because he was the oldest of the party, and prided himself not a little on his knowledge of stock. It wasn't long before he found that he didn't know as much as he thought, and not hearly as much as the trader who sold him the cat-
