Lawyers Meekly Apologize to the Court-A Drummer Fails to Get a Divorce - The News in Brief.

I FROM THE BEE'S LINCOLN BUREAU. The revival meetings at the Methodist church which, it is understood, will shortly be brought to a close by the departure of Mr. Bitler, the evangelist, to Omaha, are to be followed by a crusade, the like of which, in the minds of the promoters, has never been seen in this country. This crusade will be conducted by the people who have been upholding Mr. Bitler, the Woman's Christian Temperance union and the prohibition leaders, and will be conducted with all the thoroughness of a military campaign. A prominent state official who claims to know the plan of battle, says the city will be divided into districts, in each of which a body of mixed workers will go from house to house, praying with the inmates, and exhorting their aid for the purifying of the moral atmosphere. As a forerun-ner of this crusade, and a declaration of the intention of the prohibtionists to take an active part in the city election, the fol lowing circular is being distributed:

LICENSE MURDER MILLS-SHALL THEY BY ALLOWED TO RUN ANOTHER YEAR?
To the People of Lincoln: The time has come when every cittzen of Lincoln is brought face to face with the one great issue that dominates in municipal affairs.

The question comes forcibly home to every thinking mind; Will the good people of our city longer remain partners in the crimes of the liquid traffic?

the liquor traffic?
Fathers, are you ready to sell your sons to debauchery and your daughters to dishonor? Are you a $1,000 or a $2,500 citizen? Either price is cheap enough to the saloon keeper.
Mothers, have you made your plea for deliverance to those who alone have power to break your chain s—to the voters whose opinions weigh at the ballot box? If you have not, look now to the safety of your chidren.
Young man, will you exercise your manhood to free the drink-slave and dry the tears of a weeping mother, or will you bow at the

of a weeping mother, or will you bow at the beck of the whisky politician and become the servile tool of the dramseller?

Daughters, are you willing that nearly thirty gilded dram shops, with their enticing allurements, shall be continued, to debase your brother, father or lover, and bring discover and sorrow to your heart? If grace, dishonor and sorrow to your heart? If not, then use your persuasive influence upon all of your yoting friends to support the pro-all of your voting friends to support the prohibition ticket.

Moderate drinker, do you wait to go down to a drunkard's hell? If you do not, vote the prohibition ticket. Vote for your own protection, remembering that every victim now slumbering in a drunkard's grave was once as moderate as you are now, and perhaps defied the clouds of impending disaster that hung so threateningly over life's bright morning and finally eclipsed the sunlight before manhood's high noon was nearly reached.

reached.

Shall we longer leave the control of our city government in the bands of the lowest clement of society?
Shall the class with headquarters in the saloons, and from which come almost all the oriminals that crowd our police courts, longer be allowed to select our officials?

We call upon the business men, the professional citizens, the mechanics and the labor ing men, to unite and destroy this parasite of society, the Rum Power, that annually takes from our people more than half a mil-lion dollars which should be expended in the channels of honest and legitimate trade, and uses it to debauch our sons and dishonor our daughters, to foster dens of vice and crime that are corrupting society.

Every moral and material interest of our city demands the entire suppression of this appalling crime, as all efforts at regulation city demands the entire suppression of this appalling crime, as all efforts at regulation have utterly failed.

The gambling vice, the social evil, and all the moral cancers that eat away the heart of society, cluster around this one great parent crime, the liquor curse. We call upon all who believe that the law-abiding and moral citizenship of this community should secure their rightful supremacy to the end that law may be respected and all these vile dens of iniquity be broken up, to work from now until the 6th day of April for the triumph of the principles of right and justice and the success of the prohibition city ticket.

A nominating mass convention will be held in this city on Wednesday evening, March 24, beginning at 7 o'clock p. m. for the purpose of placing a city ticket in the field. All persons who are ready to join in the campaign against the saloon and on the side of the home, are invited to take an active part.

The Law and Order league managers refuse to endorse this move, saving they are working for practical rather than im-possible ends, and that they will content themselves with securing a rigid enforcement of laws as they exist on the statute books, a work in which they claim to have thus far been very successful, hav-ing broken up unlicensed liquor selling compelled licensed dealers to conduct their business in strict accordance with the Slocumb law, and put all the leading gamblers and sporting women on trial for their offenses. A WAR OF WORDS IN COURT.

When the state closed its testimony in Burr, counsel for the defendant, was the court to direct the jury to bring in a verdict for his client, on the ground that the statute under which Herold is being prosecuted requires the showing of an actual transfer or sale, in order to make an offense, and the district attorney had failed to introduce any evidence on this point. Judge Pound said the question was a very delicate one, and he did not wish to decide it hastily. If the whole of the statute was to govern, he said the wish to decide it hastily. If the whole of the statute was to govern, he said, the necessary evidence had been adduced, but if the statute was to be confined to the titie there might be some doubt about it. In order to expedite the proceedings the judge overruled the motion and ordered the defendant to go on with the case. Mr. Burr took an exception, and then examined Mrs. Herold and Mrs. Haylan, both of whom denied that any goods from Herold's store had ever been concealed in defendant's house, as alleged by witnesses for the state. by witnesses for the state.

During the argument over the motion District Attorney Strode and Mr. Burr both became excited, and accused each other of torturing the truth out of shape, and other heinous offenses. Judge Pound promptly rapped them to order, and said that he should expect an apology from that he should expect an apology from each in open court at the opening of the afternoon session. At 1:30 Mr. Strode and Mr. Burr, both looking a little sheepish, marched up and told the regulation story about being very sorry for what had occurred, charged it all to the excitement of the moment, and promised to never offend in like manner again.

NO SYMPATRY FOR DRIVIMERS.

NO SYMPATHY FOR DRUMMERS.

"I don't have much sympathy with traveling salesaven who ran about the country getting married promiscuously," said Judge Pound in the district court yesterday. The occasion was the application of Leander Allard, a meck-looking drummer, for a divorce from his wife, Emma Lee Allard. The plaintiff's story was that after a three year's acquaintance with the woman he was married to her in a town in Vermont, in October, 1888, the incentive being her sworn aliegation that he was the father of a child born to her about a month before. Two days after the marraige fore. Two days after the marraige Emma acknowledged to her husband that she had "played him for a sucker," and that the real father of the kid was an old beau named Vit Hall. This was too much for the drummer's susceptible nerves, and he parted without ceremony from the woman he had sworn to love, honor, cherish and obey, and coming to Nebraska, settled down to and coming to Nebraska, settled down to secure a residence and a divorce. Leander's tale was supported by affidavits from a number of dames in the Green Mountain state, which tended to show that Emma was a pretty tough sort of girl before marriage, and hadn't improved any since. One woman swore that Emma, while at work for her, "had gone to a dance with Hall, and came back the next morning looking as though she had had a hard time." This seemed to strike the judge as a rather novel to strike the judge as a rather novel cause for separation, especially as it had happened some nine months before the marriage, and he cut the matter short by saying: "Well, Allard, I'm sorry for you, saying: "Well, Allard, I'm sorry for you, but I don't see how I can help you. I guess you took the woman for better or worse and will have to stick to it. However, I'll take the papers and look them over to see whether there is any good proof of adultery before marriage." This seemed adultery before marriage." This seemed to daze the plaintiff, and even after the judge and lawyers had left the court room he sat stolidly looking at the ju-dicial bench as though unable to understand the situation. BRIEF MENTION. "What shall we do with the tramps?" is fast becoming the absorbing and vital question. The city is full of healthy, full grown strangers who neither toil nor spin, and to whom bolts and bars have no terrors. A roundup by the police, followed by a few days work on the muddy cross-walks, would probably cure most of these impecunious gentlemen of a desire to remain in the capital city.

POLICE COURT NOTES.

A Man from Plattsmouth-Found His Watch-The Morning Grist. W. Kennard is an old gentleman from Plattsmouth with a decided predilection for spreeing. He stood up before Judge Stenberg in police court yesterday and, looking him straight in the eyes, plead not guilty to a charge of drunkenness. It seems that Kennard had arrived here on Saturday and on Saturday night was decoyed into a notorious den on Twelfth street by the charms of one of the young women. Shortly afterwards he had this same girl arrested for robbing him of his gold watch and chain. The ticker was found upon his own person, however, and the girl was released. Kennard promised to leave town, and failed to do so and was arrested last night beastly drunk. His case has been continued for hearing.

Charles Nast, John Dunlave, Peter Anderson, Normon Ramsey and Charles

derson, Normon Ramsey and Charles Piltrain were fined $5 and costs for in-toxication. The two latter paid. Mike Purcell, James Kruger, David Tostevin, and Sam Sweaton, arrested on a similar charge, were released.

Mrs. Jamison, a colored wench, was arrested for complicity in the $65 robbery, of which Mike Gilligan was the victim last week, and was remanded for Mr. and Mrs. Owen Connolly, (alias Whisky Jack), were sent to jul for five days to sober up. Omaha's Mardi Gras.

The Omana Musical Protective union is making arrangements for a grand carnival and bal masque, to take place at the exposition building April 7. A magnificent feature of the affair will be a street parade on the order of the Mardi Gras of the Veiled Prophets' procession of St. Louis, in which the entire union of 120 musicians will play together, all being in mask costume. The whole affair will doubtless be the grandest thing of the kind ever witnessed in Omaha.

The Musical Protective union is composed of the following orehestras and brass bands: The Musical Union orchestra, the Union Pacific band, A. O. H. band, the Fourth United States Infantry band, Hoffman's orchestra, Blaufus's or-chestra, Motta's band, Prochaska's or-Havluzeck orchestra, Thiele Independence orchestra and Horn-berger's orchestra.
