

A TEMPEST OF INDIGNATION

A Lincoln Merchant Slams the Door of His Domestic Realm at a Minister.

GOSSIP FOR SCANDAL MONGERS.

A Batch of Medics Turned Out—The Dogge Trial—A Prisoner Released From the Pen—Capital Notes.

FROM THE BEE'S LINCOLN BUREAU. The lovers of scandal and gossip are having a good time talking over the true inwardness of the following card, which appeared in the States-Anzeiger:

"I hereby forbid the Rev. Mr. Harms, of this city, from ever entering my premises again during my absence. If I should be present I will take summary measures to eject him at all hazards. I am compelled to take this course to save my wife from insult and protect the happiness of my family. The base attempt made on Friday to destroy domestic peace may be made more public hereafter. CHARLES MEYERS.

Mr. Harms is the pastor of the German Methodist church and bears a high reputation as a citizen and preacher. Meyers is a member of the liquor firm of Schwartz & Meyers, and it is hinted that the insult to which he refers was a warning given by Harms against the evil of carrying on such a business. As all the parties concerned seem averse to giving any particulars the situation can only be guessed at.

THE WIFE'S MOTHER.

Detective Littlefield has discovered that the child found a few days ago in a barn on Fourteenth street is the offspring of a married woman, whose domestic relations are not of the happiest kind. When the child was born she tried to leave it at the home for the friendless, but as she declined to comply with the rules and nurse it for a week, it was not received. The woman then left the infant in the barn and watched about the neighborhood until satisfied that it had been found by people who would care for it.

FOURTEEN NEW SAVIAGES.

At the commencement exercises of the medical department of the State University yesterday fourteen students received diplomas as full-fledged doctors of medicine. The young sages thus turned out are: Benjamin Franklin Gay, Charles N. Baldwin, Sarah Elizabeth Green, William Nathaniel Hyton, Thomas Clay Canine, Fred William York, Don Frank Morris, Jennings H. Coffman, Charles A. Shoemaker, Jessie J. Campbell, Mary Alice Lutz, Owen B. Hagg and Charles Albert Hale. The usual addresses were made.

THE DOGGE TRIAL.

Among the witnesses called by the prosecution in the Dogge case yesterday was M. A. Hartigan, the Plattsmouth lawyer, who testified to having had number of conversations with Dogge after the Herold failure. Although badgered badly by Judge Herold, Hartigan swore positively that Dogge had told him about the attempt to swindle the creditors, giving him to understand that it was a crooked transaction from the beginning. Mr. Hartigan was followed by Tomie Meyer, who in the role of interpreter, read several letters written by Dogge to Mrs. Herold, in which the student attempted to tell to avoid searching inquiry was plainly set forth. The sensation in the case, however, came at the afternoon session of the court when Herold was put on the stand by the prosecution to give details of the deal with the defendant. In the fall of 1884, Herold said, he found himself some $30,000 in debt, having a big stock of goods on hand, and was unable to pay for them. At this juncture Dr. Dogge whispered in his ear that nothing could be easier than to arrange a scheme by which his credit would be forced to a favorable settlement. In furtherance of this scheme Herold gave Dogge notes, dating back to 1883, to the amount of $50,000, on which he confessed judgment, although at the time there was no debt or valid consideration. With these judgments in his name Dogge was to have taken possession of the stock, forced a settlement with the creditors, and divided the profits with Herold. How the job was frustrated all readers of the BEE know, but what the jury are to find out is that if it is one of the biggest conundrums of the day.

RELEASED FROM THE PEN.

One of the happiest men in Lincoln yesterday was a convict who was released from the penitentiary by a mandate from the supreme court. Matthews was convicted of rape nearly three years ago and sent to the penitentiary. This week his attorney, Jack Caldwell, got the attention of the supreme court and succeeded in having the sentence set aside as a case of fraud. In the district court yesterday District Attorney Strode told Judge Hayward that as the principal point of the reversal was insufficiency of evidence, and he had nothing new in that line to offer, he felt it his duty to nolle further proceedings against him. The court assented and Matthews, who was present in the custody of the sheriff, was turned loose.

POLICEMAN SMITH EXONERATED.

The city council held a special meeting last night to consider the charges of brutal conduct made by Thomas Heelan against Policeman Smith. Heelan swore that he visited police headquarters to complain of a supposed case of small-pox and was arrested on a charge of drunkenness by Smith and used very roughly. Judge Montgomery said that Heelan was brought before him, and being satisfied he was not intoxicated he refused to issue a warrant. Smith, on his own behalf, swore he thought Heelan was drunk and did not use any more force than necessary in taking him to the cooler. The council decided—3 to 2—that the charges were not proved. Smith's friends were Webster, Billingsly, Brock, Hargreaves and Cooper. The two opposed to him were Lau and Daily. Councilman Dean was absent.

BRIEF MENTION.

One of the strongest of the recently organized canning companies in this state is at Tokamah, which sprang into official existence yesterday. The capital is $50,000, which has been largely taken by William N. Hayward, E. J. Darst, W. Harrington, J. F. Latta, R. T. Tomlinson, A. A. Brown, W. Bryant, Wilson & Sutherland, J. Spellman and C. W. Conkling.

Dr. Gerth and the state sanitary commission are to look over the western part of Nebraska.

The Knights of Labor and their friends had a swell time at Temple hall Wednesday evening, the occasion being the second dancing party given by Capital assembly this season. Over 100 couples were in attendance, and everything passed off without a hitch, thanks to the efficient and courteous knights who made up the committees.

Sneak thieves are becoming a little two plentiful in Lincoln for the comfort of law-abiding citizens. Wednesday night a couple of adventurous spirits tried to steal a coat from a dummy in front of Ewing's store, and later a cash box containing $7 was lifted from an O street car.

John R. Megahan vs. Delos A. Udall and Sam'l. G. Owen, is the title of an action brought in the district court yesterday to foreclose a mechanic's lien.

The Omaha Lumber company, consisting of Moses F. Rittenhouse, Jesse K. Enure and Ralph W. Clayton, has been incorporated. The capital is $20,000, all paid in.

THE ROYAL WELCOME TO THE FITZGERALDS

The royal welcome to the Fitzgeralds Wednesday seems to have exhausted all the vitality of the average citizen, and everyone was taking a rest yesterday. As a consequence news was scarce, and the reporters had to draw largely on their imagination.

People who know the facts say that the charges made against Deputy Sheriff Beach by the Fairmount correspondent of the Journal, in connection with the arrest of two runaway girls from this city, are utterly false and malicious. Mr. Nichols has been paid in full for whatever service he rendered. The girls say that they were nearly starved while in his custody, and were subjected to indecent assaults until taken in charge by Mr. Beach.

The newly-elected officers of Odd Fellows' lodge No. 2,399, were installed publicly at Briggs' hall last evening. The Union Pacific trains were run over the B. & M. road yesterday, owing to a bad washout near Columbus.

LION AND TIGER STORIES.

Taken from an Unpublished Biography of Herr Driesbach.

Pittsburgh Dispatch: Herr Driesbach's life was full of remarkable incidents, and he frequently took pleasure in relating incidents of his life. The following is in his own words:

"I was exhibiting in the city of Baltimore. We were playing a piece in which one of my tigers was to suddenly leap from above upon me, as if to kill me. After it would jump onto me we would roll around on the floor, to all appearances engaged in mortal combat. The theater in which we were playing had a large pit, and it was filled almost to suffocation that evening with boys and men. This time the tiger jumped over my head and was lying for the pit when I caught him by the tail and hauled him back. I needn't tell you that standing room was made mighty quick in that pit when they seen the animal coming. They rushed out pell-mell, screaming for me to hold on to him."

When Edwin Forrest was playing at the Bowery theater in New York, his piece was followed by an exhibition of lions by their trainer, Herr Driesbach. One day they stayed there for some time, and that he had never experienced the emotion caused by fright—that he was never scared in his life. Driesbach heard the remark and the evening took Forrest home with him. They entered a house, and after passing through long and dark passages, Driesbach opened a door and said, "This way, Mr. Forrest. As Forrest entered the door was jammed behind him. Forrest felt something touching his leg in the darkness, and reaching down his hand touched what he thought was a cat's back, which he gently stroked. Forrest grew giddy on great occasions, and then they had seats on the floor, it is enough to rile the temper of intelligent Americans. There are no reserved seats for any other purpose, but reserved seats the year around is too much."

"EDMUNDS LOADED FOR BEAR," said a distinguished member of the old Vermont entered the theater as the lion sat behind a pile of formidable looking books and papers; "he never fires an idle shot, and he knows game when he sees it." All the tigers have read Mr. Edmunds' speech ere this; if they haven't they ought for though there were fifty legal points" discussed, it is good reading, as every Senator and senatorial candidate who enters the senate chamber that when one of its members is about to make a set speech he must appear in his best clothes, and his state dress is a plain suit, but his Sunday, buttoned up, and on the chest—a manly style to be commended to all men as the most becoming, and senators are human enough to like to show their wicks in the view of the people. Edmunds had on his black Prince Albert suit and appeared mighty well, nay, almost handsome, if it had not been for the awful wick of his nose. That left eye of his has a peculiar way of drawing his brow down over, while his right brow is uplifted. There seems to be division in his head from the shape of his nose to the crown of his head. At any rate you can look that man square in the face and see two legal opinions at once; that is he always keeps two points in view, and he has his game. Well, it was his game eye that had the widest range. Physically, he never was handsome; his complexion was a freshness that this winter which it has lacked for several years. A view of Senator Edmunds from the gallery is deceiving, standing as he does with his shoulders thrown forward, and his head a little out of center. On the outer edge which makes a kind of a halo, is clean and smooth as a darling ball. In his case distance does not lend enchantment to the view. Senator Edmunds, the younger and better looking. He is not an old man in years by a long way; but there is no question about his having an old, as well as long nose. His nose is a good deal of a nose. At any rate, the whole town was talking about that speech attacking the administration Tuesday night and when EDMUNDS APPEARED AT THE RECEPTION with his wife on his arm, and he was standing hard by, only one hour ago, a stir and buzz of surprise. He did not follow in the line of "move on, please," but appeared in the door directly opposite of the president and roosting party in the blue room. Evidently some of the officers had sent him hither as the special unexpected guest of the evening and if Mr. Cleveland and his sister gave a start of surprise and other for a second only, what else could be expected? But the blank surprise gave way to smiles that traveled miles over the president's beaming face as he cordially greeted Edmunds, the younger and better looking. But the blank surprise gave way to smiles that traveled miles over the president's beaming face as he cordially greeted Edmunds, the younger and better looking. He is not an old man in years by a long way; but there is no question about his having an old, as well as long nose. His nose is a good deal of a nose. At any rate, the whole town was talking about that speech attacking the administration Tuesday night and when EDMUNDS APPEARED AT THE RECEPTION with his wife on his arm, and he was standing hard by, only one hour ago, a stir and buzz of surprise. He did not follow in the line of "move on, please," but appeared in the door directly opposite of the president and roosting party in the blue room. Evidently some of the officers had sent him hither as the special unexpected guest of the evening and if Mr. Cleveland and his sister gave a start of surprise and other for a second only, what else could be expected?
