The city council holds its regular meeting to night.

Miss Lizzie Weitz, of Chicago, and Mrs. Lauderwasser, of this city will be found at the Parisian Millinery store. C E. White, of Woodbine, has been arrested for sending obscene postal cards through the mail. His ball was fixed at $500, and in default he lies in jail.

Permits to wed have been granted to William Stakes and Miss Ruth Lowe of Honey Creek, James Watkins of Dakota and Miss Cornelia Weish of Missouri. Miss H. A. Newman, of Chicago, has arrived and now takes entire charge of the trimming department of H. Friedman's millinery store No. 321 Broadway. Yesterday afternoon Justice Fraincy officiated at the marriage of a colored couple, James Watkins, of Sturgis City, Dakota, to Miss Cornelia Weish, of Albany, Mo.

be completed to-day, so that fellows when drunk can now sleep there without fear of tumbling out if they should happen to roll over against the wall.

William Cris, a swarthy youth, was arrested Saturday on complaint of Davy Vaughan, who claims that the dusky boy assaulted him. The accused will be given a hearing to-day. Fred M. Lanyon has rented the Bonney house at Little Sioux, and will run the same. It is one of the favorite Iowa hotels, and under the new management will doubtless continue so. A union service was held in the Presbyterian church last evening in the interests of the Bible cause. The Congrega-tionalists, Methodists, and Baptists united with the Presbyterians. The Rev. Mr. Hood, agent of the State Bible society, gave the principal address. W. C. Randall, the skipping insurance man, has not returned to settle his accounts and vindicate his character. He promised to be here by the first of the month. He has probably forgotten such a trifling little matter, for surely he wouldn't lie about it.

Fred. E. Whiting, special mustering officer of the Sons of Veterans, will muster the camp at this place Wednesday evening. The same officer will organize a camp at Logan Monday night, and one at Sioux City Tuesday night, of this

The project of paving Pearl street is being agitated, with some show of having the work ordered at an early meeting of the council. Pearl street is one of the most important business streets in the city, and as there is much heavy teaming upon it, the paving should not be de

The brother and heirs of the late Robert Percival have presented to St. Paul's church a handsomely carved pulpit as a nemorial. Mr. Percival took great interest in the building of the new church, and during his life helped the enterprise iberally and freely. The memorial gifts to the church from different denors now amount in value to about $6,000.

Mrs. Oates, who was sent from this city last October to the Anamosa penitentiary for two years for passing counterfeit money, has given birth to a child there. This is the second child born inside the walls of that penicentiary. It was generally believed that Mrs. Oates' husband was engaged in counterfeiting, but she would not give up any evidence against him, preferring to bear her punishment alone and in silence.

They are getting matters down fine in Sidney. The latest thing down are the curtains and blinds of the billiard halls, the city marshal having ordered that they pull down the blinds so that anyone pass ng along the street could see who was inside, and whether there was any viola-tion of the prohibitisn law. There is no use for a Sidney man to tell his wife he is going to the lodge. She is liable to pass along the street and see for herself.

The saloon injunction cases are to be heard before Judge Connor in Denison next Saturday. Various predictions are made as to what the result will be. Both sides seem confident, the saloon men being sure that their appeal to the United States courts will cause a delay of two years or more, and the prohibitionists being equally sure that Judge Connor will pay no attention to the case as pend-ing in the United States courts, but will proceed with the hearing of the cases pending in his court.

The young fellow named Bell who was arrested here the other day on suspicion being a confidence man has been re-ased. It seems that there was a big mistake about it, a piece of white court plaster on his face answering the descrip-tion of a mark on the face of a fellow who was wanted here. Bell was all broken up over his arrest, and cried himself to sleep the first night in the cell. It was rather hard on him, but the officers had good reason to think he was wanted.

The X Y Z club, composed of young ladies of the Congregational charch, had a surprise for the church attendants yesterday. The club during the week had cushions made and placed in every pew, and the gift to the church was announced in an appropriate note to the pastor. In acknowledging the same the pastor expressed the thanks of the church and pressed the thanks of the church and congregation, and remarked that he considered it somewhat of a personal favor, for it was hard io sit and listen to a dry sort of a sermon, but with this additional comfort for the congregation he might be able to extend his sermons a little. With the kind of sermons which Mr. Crofts has been giving since he took this pastorate, there is little need for cushlons on the score of dull preaching, but the additional comfort afforded the hearers will be fully appreciated, and with good cushions to accompany the good sermons there will be a natural in-

PULPIT TALK ABOUT LABOR.

Against Socialism and Communism, But Favoring Rightful Redress of Wrong.

BATES PREFERS TO BE HUNG.

Preparing For the Laud League Meeting Here Saloons Closed on Sunday, But Still Men Get Drunk-Local Notes.

The Social Crisis. Yesterday morning Rev, G.W. Crofts, of the Congregational church, preached an interesting sermon on "The Social Crisis." He chose as his text Paul's words to the Romans, "For we know that the whole creation groaneth and travaileth in pain together until now." He opened by picturing the world as one of struggles and trouble, pain and trials. The only peace there had been was the mere full in the storm, a mere gleam of sunlight, to be soon followed by dense clouds, and the renewing of the storm. Christ had recognized this fact, and looking into the future saw it in the years to come. It seemed that man must be purified by fire. That development came from struggle and trial seemed to be the law of all ages, and there was no prospect for any permanent peace until a new heaven and a new earth should come. There could be no such peace until all men governed, their lives by the principles of the gospel, and every man treated his fellowman as a brother, doing by him as he would be done by. This principle should not cause worry and doubt. The assurance was given that all would be well by and by. Now there was much agitation in society over the labor question. It was an old question, and one which could easily be settled if men were disposed to follow the gospel rule, the golden rule, and follow the principles of christianity.

The underlying cause of all these troubles was, however, the selfishness of man. This was what led to wrong acts, one toward another. Until this supreme selfishness was rooted up there would never be a complete doing away with these difficulties. The speaker declared that he was not a pessimist but rather an optimist. He did not want to be classed as an alarmist. While the present situation was serious, it was not such as to shake the trust of those who believe that God rules and that all will be well. It was serious enough, however, to command the attention and thought of all calm, thinking citizens. They should study the matter well to see wherein the reme dies lie and what can be done to hasten the peaceful solution of such perplexing problems The question of the rich and the poor, labor and capital, employer and employed, was a very old one. He then hurriedly reviewed the oppression of the working classes in the old country.

He quoted two of Burns' poems as descriptive of the feeling of those who had been ground down, and who saw no relief in the future. One was "Man Born to Mourn." The other was a little verse written on the back of a bank bill. The sadness of the first, and the bitterness of the second, described the two classes of feelings. Some felt the forlorn despair pictured in the first, but more felt the hatred and bitterness of the second. Socialism and communism had arised eross the waters. It was thought that this would never reach here, a land full of freedom, where labor had such chances, and was relieved of much of the oppression marking its condition there. But here socialism had appeared, and had gained a greater strength than it had been thought possible. He outlined the theories and teachings of socialism and communism, and pictured their perniciousness. Of labor organizations there was much to be said in their favor. He was glad that there was such a man as Powderly. He believed that if there were more Powderlies and less powder it would be far better for all. While labor should do all in its power. legitimately, to better its condition, it should bear in mind that destruction never brought production. If a cow gave only three quarts of milk a day, the quantity could not be increased by killing the cow. Care should be taken not to destroy what benefits there were in the hope of getting greater ones. That was the wrong way to bring about a better state of affairs.

There were certain principles which could not be ignored. Industry and economy brought wealth. Indolence and wastefulness brought poverty. While there were some exceptions, or instances where these principles did not seem to be a force, still there was not getting away from the natural tendencies of these two opposites of conduct. He cited an illustration of six men at work in a shop with equal advantages and equal pros pects. One by attention to business, by economy, by self-denial, soon began to gam on the five who were shiftless, wasteful and self-indulgent. In time the one had gained a home of his own, had a better position and had prospered more and more. The other five standing idly on a street corner, seeing him ride by with his family, happy, well clothed and prosperous, became indignant, and adjourning to a neighboring saloon passed resolutions that there was an irrepressi The speaker warned his hearers against such a course. He sympathized deeply with all the legitimate efforts of labor to better its condition, and prayed that the time might come speedily when justice should rule in the land, and when man should cease to tyrannize over man.

Wants to Hang. Still Bates, formerly of this city, who now lies in jail at Richmond, Ind., for the murder of his wife, has written to some of his friends in this city, freely confessing the crime. In fact there seems no way for him to make any plausible denial. He writes that after cutting her throat with his pocket knife, he went into another room to cut his own throat, but weakened and went to jail, and gave himself up. It seems strange that some of these fellows who are so ready to kill their wives and then kill themselves, do not kill themselves first, and thus avoid the possibility of their changing their minds as Bates did. He writes further that the news spread rapidly, and then the crowd gathered to lynch him, but that they did not have grit enough. "The sheriff," he writes, "then took me to the depot and chained me to a seat. The crowd again chained me to a seat. The crowd again gathered and threatened to lynch me. The sheriff is a little follow, but he is all grit. He got up on a chair and told the crowd they would have to kill him before they could get me. He brought me here to Richmond and put me in the county jail. I am willing to die for what I have done. My trial comes off the first week in May, and I will probably get prison for life or the gallows I have not drank anything since I left Council Bluffs. Tell all of the boys to quit drinking or they will come to the same bad end." Bates says he is willing to suffer the penalty, but it seems that he is getting himself in shape so that his attorneys can make a claim of in-

The Irish National League of Iowa. The Irish National League held a meet ing yesterday afternoon to make preliminary arrangements for the annual meeting of the state league which is to meet here on the 20th. This gathering will be one of the most important ever held in Council Bluffs, and will bring here representative men from all parts of the state, and several prominent men from elsewhere. It is expected that there will be 300 delegates here. Hon. Patrick Egan, president of the National league, is expected to be among the speakers. Addresses are expected also from M. V. Gannon of Davenport, M. King of Des Moines, and others. The session will organization at its meeting yesterday appointed a general committee of arrangements, said committee to meet Wednes-day night at Rev. Father McMenomy's residence to appoint sub-committees and make other preliminary arrangements. The general committee is as follows. Rev. B. P. McMenomy, Rev. R. Healy, John Short, B. T. Connor, J. J. Sunday Drunks. Yesterday was the third Sunday on which the saloons were supposed to be closed. The new order of the present mayor seems to be pretty generally observed, the saloons being kept shut, and better order being preserved than for many months. Still there seems to be ways by which the thirsty can get drinks, just how is a mystery. Yesterday two farmers, giving their names as O. R. Ballard and G. H. Kelley, were found on Broadway in a beastly state of intoxica tion. They were placed behind the bars-One was too Grunk to talk and the other was too drunk to keep from talking. About an hour after they had been locked up it was discovered that one of them had a bottle of whisky in his cell, and had still two or three lights, one wife-beating and a half dozen leers left in the bottle. How this escaped the attention of the officers when they searched him is not known, but it is thought that he had hidden the bottle in his boot leg when run in. The two had about $50 each in money, so that

E. E. Harkness has returned from his eastern trip, where he has been making selections of new goods for the firm of which he is a member. William Anderson, the aged father of Major A. R. Anderson, is lying in a helpless condition at his home in Sidney, his trouble being paralysis.

A. H. Mayne, who was formerly in the coal business here, as the senior member of the firm of Mayne & Palmer, arrived here Saturday, with his family, and will hereafter be associated with his brother, C. E. Mayne, in the real estate business in Omaha. Mr. Mayne, since leaving Omaha, has for two years been train dispatcher in Montana.

W. F. Patton, having passed his examination and shown up an excellent record during his probationary period, has received his permanent appointment as a railway postal clerk. Mr. Patton has lived here since boyhood, and his many friends rejoice at his success, and the recognition of his merits. That he succeeded in running the trying gauntlet of preliminary tests is no surprise to his friends, for he has not only the necessary ability, but he has applied himself faithfully to the business in hand. It is safe to predict that he will not allow the receipt of a permanent appointment to cause him to loose his grip, but that he will apply himself more closely than ever, and will become more and more valuable to the mail service. A move is on foot for the newspaper men of the western part of Iowa to or-ganize. It has been suggested that the preliminary meeting be held at Red Oak. The Fremont County Herald makes the very sensible proposal that the meeting for organization be held in Council Bluffs, this city being centrally located for all lines of railway. It makes the further suggestion that the organization be not for the purpose of getting some railway to give the newspaper men some free ride somewhere, but that it be for an interchange of suggestions and experiences helpful to all, and for organization for business, and not for mere fun.

Next Thursday evening the members and friends of the Congregational church will have a sociable at the residence of E. E. Harkness, on Willow avenue. The entertainment will be by Mrs. N. W. Shepard, Mrs. A. W. Cowles, and Mrs. E. E. Harkness,

COD LIVER OIL NO GOOD. Physicians Discontinuing It. (From the Buffalo, N. Y. News.)
Experience has shown that cod liver ell has no nutritive power, and, besides this negative character, the accumulation of fatty matter which follows its use, deranges the alimentary canal. Any kind of oil is trying to the stomach, even when the system is in a healthy condition, and how much more must it be when the digestive organs are weak, and are dosed with something of the most unpalatable character. The quantity of cod liver oil which is ordered to be taken daily. is always in excess of the capacity for digestion and absorption, and injurious results naturally follow. In fact we would hear of more cases in which serious harm has been caused by cod liver oil were it not that in order to swallow it, the patient mixes it with whiskey, and the alcohol thus taken neutralizes the evil done by the oil. It is a fact laid down by all chemists and scientists that nothing will restore a di ordered system or promote digestion, which has been impaired, quicker or more effectively than alcohol. and as this is what medical men aim at in their treatment of the sick, it follows that they are now largely prescribing simply a pure whisky and discontinuing the use of cod liver oil entirely. None of these so-called cod liver oils pretend to have more than 50 per cent., and some of them only 20 per cent. of pure oil. Some of it is Shark Oil, which has been found to have no medicinal effects, in fact, it is found worse than the cod liver oil. Two ounces of alcohol contains more nutriment than is found in twelve ounces of lean meat, besides it is the only medicinal article that enters the blood direct, witharticle that enters the blood direct, without any digestive effort on the part of the stomach, while cod liver oil is so indigestible as to necessitate the imployment of other agents to aid its assimulation, and, as a consequence, leaves the stomach, which of a consumptive patient is always weak, in a weaker condition than ever.

As stated, whiskey is now the recognized treatment for consumption, but let the patients be careful to see that the whiskey they use is alsolutely pure
