The Revival.

A placard, "Standing Room Only," would have aptly described the condition of the First M. E. church last night. Long before 8 o'clock every seat in the spacious auditorium was blied. Then the rear of the church was blocked up. Then the crowd began to pour up the aisles. And finally the vestry room of the church, in the rear of the pulpit, became the objective point of many who could not find seats in the front of the church, and were content to listen to, though they could not see the evangelist, Mr. Bitler. The pressure was indeed great, and hundreds turned away unable to obtain admittance.

After prayer and the usual preliminary services Pastor McKaig announced the collection, which was taken up during the singing of the bymn, "Who shall be able to stand?"

"I want to state," said Mr. McKaig, after the deacons had returned with baskets well laden with a variety of large and small coin, "that the collection is not taken up for the benefit of Brother Bitler. He has nothing to do with it. It is simply to defray the expenses of the church." A hurried consultation between the pastor and the evangelist followed. The former again advanced to the front of the platform. "Now my friends," said he, "I want to submit a proposition to you. The house is crowded. Hundreds have been turned away. We must have larger quarters. What say you, shall we hold our services In the exposition building, beginning with next Sunday night? All of those who are in favor of such a thing, rise to their feet." Nearly all present showed a willingness to worship in larger quarters, and in all probability next Sunday night, or possibly before, the centre of work will be removed to the exposition build-

We don't want you to bring before us the thoughts of future punishment, hell-eternity: we don't want to hear you talk on such serious matters.' I want to say to you, my friends, that the minister who does not talk to you on these things is not doing his duty. When God commissions a his duty. When God commissions a minister to deliver a message, it must be given to the people just as it comes from od Almighty.

Some really commendable work has been done by the Y. M. C. A. of this city in holding Sunday afternoon meetings at the county jail. Yesterday afternoon the meeting was opened by prayer by Mr. Woodbridge, leader, after which came such songs as "Nearer My God to Thee," "Do Not Pass Me By," "Are You Coming Home To-night," etc., songs that all are conversant with. Many prisoners were visibly affected by the exercises, some even shedding tears. The leader, toward the end of the meeting, asked the question: "How many feel that they are nearer God?" and quite a number of hands were pushed part way through the iron grating. A prisoner by the name of Kelly made a short but impassioned address, saying that he once was a christian and a temperance man, but had fallen. "and the result is I am confined in jail on a bread and water diet; have been for about forty days." He implored his fel-low prisoners to desist from their life of crime, saying that the only true happiness a man can get in this world is that which comes from God. He ended by saying that in the future, with divine help, he would be a better man. His speech made a good impression, it was thought, on the inmates of the jail. One thing, however, that would help the Y. M. C. A. very much in this work is to distribute more reading matter, if possi-ble, among the prisoners. This always tends to make a person think a great deal and would relieve their monotony bene-

CARL C. THRANE, the republican nominee in the First ward, was born in Denmark in 1831 and is consequently now in his 54th year. In 186 he left Denmark and came to America locating in Chicago. In 1869 he came to Omaha, and has since resided in the ward which vesterday decided that he should represent it a third time in the city legis lature. want to think of death or eternity, and I don't thank anyone for bringing these questions before me.' And the sinner rushes on and on, and finally he has to give up the things of this life, and ap-pear before his Maker to answer for his mistakes. How many of us are trying to shut out these things by thoughtless gayety! Some day you will be cut down in an unexpected manner, the badge of mourning will be hung on your door. And then what? Terrible thought! A man who possesses a clear conscience toward his God is happier than the millionaire with all his wealth. Remember that my friends. That is the truth I want to impress upon you—the message I bear to you. Oh, indeed, life is short and it will soon be too late to take the only step that can save. May the Lord help us to think of these things and make good the few remaining years of our ex-istence in the service of God. Oh, my friends, when you leave this last tenement, when the spirit has fled from the elay, what is to become of your immortal soul? If it is vise to insure your humortal is it right to leave your soul uninsured— your soul which is as immortal as God? Oh, I pray that you may all get from Christ an insurance policy on your soul right here to-night. May God make many titles clear, and hand them down to you. The tide of death is coming in. You say 'Plenty of time to get on shore again, I have something to do now.' The tide is coming in, you don't realize it, and by and by you are swal-lowed up. The young man who is loth to give up his pleasures, says "Let me have another game of cards, another spree.' The tide is coming on! The gay woman of fashion, when entreated to turn to God, says 'Another year of pleasure, another round of galety,' She doesen't realize, my friends, that the tide is coming on, and she goes on and on antil it is too late to turn. And so it is, and so are souls lost forever when they might be saved for heaven.

Might be saved for heaven. "May God help us to plant our feet on the solid rock of life, and so live that when the last hour comes, we shall rest in the consciousness of victory, and the life of joy forever in the great hereafter." "Have You the Garment of White, Brother?" hymn 54 in Rev. Bitler's col-bestion occupied the attention of the lection, occupied the attention of the audience for a few moments, and then the evangelist made a short appeal to his bearers to give themselves up to Christ. "The crowds here are too large," he said, "The crowds here are too large," he said, "to allow me to invite you to come to the altar, but you can be converted right where you are. You may be a gambler; that doesn't make any difference, God can convert you. The smell of whisky may be on your breath—you may be a drunkard, but that doesn't make any difference. You may be a harlot, but God will still receive you. For does he not say 'He that cometh unto me, I will in no wise cast out?" se cast out?' "

"Now my friends," said Mr. Bitler, "I want all of you who have responded to the call of God to stand up." About one-half of the thousand present arose to their foot teet. "Now," he concluded, "I want to ask meeting more." I notice that there is great solemnity in the audience. Don't mention the word "excitement." We don't want excitement. Wherever I have bed weiged meetings they have been heid revival meetings they have been characterized by the great feeling of carnestness and soluenity in the audi-ence. That is just the way I would have it here. Make up your minds quietly right in your seats, yes or no. [Here loud cries of "Amen" greeted the speaker.] If you are ready to accept Chtist show it by rising. To be sure, there is no salva-tion in rising, but it simply shows a de-sision for God."
