Operatives.
CHICAGO, May 13.—This evening at 6 p. m. n accordance with the decision of the Wholesale Clothing Manufacturers' association of Chicago, a gigantic lock-out was inaugurated here. All the manufacturers notified their cutters that for the present no further work would be given out.

By this action nearly 30,000 men and women, the majority of whom, however, are already on a strike, have been cut off from employment, A halt in the clothing trade of this city just at this time, when summer orders are coming in, affects a wide spread of territory, especially north and west, Wholesale manufacturers who this evening began the lock-out do not themselves employ began the lock-out do not themselves employ any labor except that of the cutters. All other work is farmed out to small contractors and middlemen. With very few exceptions the tailors and tailoresses of this city work by the piece and are in the pay of the middlemen. For some time past a more or less general strike for an advance in wages has been in progress, nominally against the been in progress, nominally against the middlemen, but as a matter of fact encouraged by them.

compromise could not be arranged but met with no encouragement.

Some of the wholesale firms have as much as ten days' cutting on hand, but say that to yield to demands which they figure out as ranging from 35 to 50 per cent advance would be suicidal. The middlemen will hold a meeting to-morrow morning to take action concerning the dilemma in which they are placed by the wholesalers' lock-out.

HURRICANE IN SPAIN.

ACyclone on the Other Side Making Things Lively in Madrid. MADRID, May 13.-A terrible hurricane has just swept across the middle of Spain. Se venty persons in this city are known to have been killed instantly, and 200 others to have been seriously injured. The wind struck the city with the suddenness of lightstruck the city with the suddenness of light-ning. Train, cars and a cab were overturned and broken into splinters; roofs were dis-lodged and telegraph wires torn from the poles. The parks in and about the city were devastated, one church tower was blown down, and many houses in the suburbs en-tirely wrecked. Many cottages on the out-skirts of the capital were blown from their foundations and wrecked, some of them being completely and quickly broken up and scattered by the wind. They may be said to scattered by the wind. They may be said to have simply vanished before the storm. Tele graphic communication has been completely cut off. No news from the provinces has been obtained. It is believed that the ruin wrought by the storm has been widespread.

Chinese Litigation. A curious case was started before Justice Helsley yesterday, the litigants being two Chinamen, Nan Goon and Ben Nam. The former alleges in his petition that he loaned Ben Nam $65 to go into partnership with him in the laundry business. Ben Nam was to buy the tubs, washingmachines, flatirons, etc., as he was supposed to have some experience in the business. Nan Goon, who was a rather unsophisticated individual, had every confidence in Ben Nam's honesty and felt not the slightest misgiving in giving up the cash. But Ben, it seems, who is a rather handsome young man, as Mongo-lian beauty goes, has a lady in the old country whom he is expecting to marry. He is accordingly saving up his money with as much rapidity as possible, intending when his pile is sufficiently large, to return to China and wed the fair Duking When the $65 was turned over the ena. When the $65 was turned over to him, instead of expending it in the way he had agreed, he "salted it down," plac-ing the amount in one of the capacious pockets of his jeans. Nan Goon, after waiting a reasonable time for his partnerto be to render an account of the money, became alarmed. He approached Ben Nam and asked him to return the money,

The base-ball season of 1886 has fairly opened, and the contests for the several championships will, until the melancholy days arrive, absorb popular attention to a considerable extent. It is safe to say that the scores of the leading games, as printed in the daily papers, will find more-readers than the reports of congressional proceedings, and that the results of the season's play will be awaited ruling at the close.

2:30 p. m.—The afternoon markets were firm. Wheat was bought freely on a report that there would be a largely increased movement from the seaboard to the other side and from the lake ports to with scarcely less interest than the issue of the approaching state elections. The large attendance upon the opening games of the league series shows that the popularity of base-ball is not diminishing; on the contrary, its hold upon public favor is evidently stronger than ever, and the prospects for a brilliant and successful season appears to be as flattering as could be desired by the most ardent votaries of the sport. Its right to the title of the "national game" is now almost universally recognized, although the distinction is still claimed, by General "Bob" Schenck and The following report is furnished by other eminent statesmen, for a certai other game, known as "draw," in which cheek and luck, rather than skill, musel and pluck, are the main conditions of success. But "draw" belongs rather in the category of national vices than o national pastimes; its influences are con fessedly pernicious and demoralizing i the last degree; and sooner or later it is pretty certain to play sad havoe with the morals, health and pockets of its de-votees. Not so with base-ball and other out-of door sports. They bring health, strength and vigor to the players, and are not without corresponding, though lesser, benefits to the lookers on. The very sight of a hotly-contested, skillfully played game of base-ball is a wholesom tonic for the nervous system. The veratmosphere seems to become charged as' it were, with the elements o into action, and through the subtle mediof the air some portion of the suplus vi tality of the giants of the diamond seem

In this and other ways the national game is a useful and beneficial institution; a most invaluable agency of physical culture which is working a great change for the better in the habits and manner of life of Americans, especially in cities. The "professional" nines, who play base ball as a livelihood, constitute but an insignificant fraction of the great army who play it for amusement and exereise. The exploits of the "professionals" fill the sporting columns of the newspapers and keep alive the general interest in the game. In cities, towns and villages all over the country it is the favorite diversion of the small boy, the daily recreation of the lusty and vigorous youth, and the most popular exercise with a multitude of broad-chested, supple-limbed, lithe, and agile specimens of early manhood. A great army of American lads are living in the hope and ambition of some day becoming "professional pitchers," etc., at phenomenal salaries, and although few of them, alas! will realize their aspirations, they will find ample compensation in robust physiques and developed muscles for their disappointment. Could Charles Dickens revisit this country to-day, he would not find the sad-visaged, dyspeptic, hollow-chested, lantern-jawed people who feted and toasted him in such a solemn way forty years ago. Could he return a quarforty years ago. Could he return a quarter of a century hence, there is reason to believe that he would find a hardy, strong, active people, as fond of the sports of land and water, as expert in the chase, and as daring in the field as his own stalwart countrymen of to-day. The growing popularity of all out-of-door sports and pastumes—of base-ball and polo. of pastimes—of base-ball and polo, of swimming and boating, of fishing and hunting and riding, -marks a wholesome tendency. The Americans, as a people, are no longer so densely absorbed in the worship of Mammon that they can not find time or inclination for recreation. The increasing tasts for open-air sports is at once cause and effect of the augmented opportunities for their indulgence. The general drift is toward more play and less work, toward fewer hours for business and more for pleasure; toward less time in doors and more out doors.

CHICAGO GRAIN MARKET.

CHICAGO, May 13,-[Special Telegram.]→ Whear-Wheat was heavy and lower today. The statistical position of the cereal is still considered by buils being favorable to higher values, but buyers are scarce. Conservative operators say that the market is enormously oversold, and that there is bound to come reaction. On the other hand it is held that inasmuch as three-fourths of recent buying has been to cover shorts, the market can not be so very much oversold after all. Up to past the middle of the morning session the market was decidedly weak and heavy. The opening was at a loss from yesterday, and the shrinkage continued until it amounted to % on the day. Reiterated statements that stocks in the Northwest were larger than had been commonly estimated had a depressing effect, and open and free sell-ing by heavy weight scalping and speculative element was also an speculative element was also an influential factor in putting down prices. Cables were not a disturbing cause to-day, being steady and featureless, but home influences were enlisted on the bear side. The weather, the by no means heavy export movement, the large receipts in the northwest, a Baltimore grain house failure and temper of the crowd, were so many arguments against an advance, nevertheless later trading on the board was characterized by trading on the board was characterized by greater activity, more firmness and a very considerable recovery from the bottom of the
