DID THEY MURDER RUHLE?

Two Men Arrested, Charged With the Crime.

TUTTLE'S VICTIM ABOUT TO DIE.

The Powell Murder Case—The Sportsmen's Convention—Blood Money—September Races—Minor Mentions.

Arrested for the Murder of Ruhle.

Shortly after 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon the doors of the county jail swung open and Constable Stein, accompanied by two men, stepped in. The names of the two men were given to Jailer Joe Miller, as William Burton and Henry Fielder. They had been arrested for the murder of Christopher Ruhle on last Tuesday evening. Stein was very reticent about the arrest of the two men, but acknowledged that they were suspected of being implicated in the murder of Ruhle. A reporter for the BEE who happened to be in the jail at the time was permitted to have a few moments' conversation with both men.

Fielder, the larger and older of the two men, is a dark-complexioned, heavy set fellow, with a stubby black moustache, and small, half-closed eyes, which glitter brightly as he talks. He has a mouth which suggests latent ugliness in its owner and a general expression which is not altogether prepossessing. He was dressed in rough clothes, of bluish color and coarse texture. He is thought by Constable Stein to be the man in blue, Norelia, about whom so much has been written and upon whom the burden of suspicion rests.

"I don't know anything about this Ruhle case," he said to the reporter who was permitted to interview him briefly, "except what I read in the BEE. I did not come to Omaha until last Friday, three or four days after Ruhle was killed. Before that I was shearing sheep on Patrick's place."

"Can you prove that you were engaged in that work on Tuesday and Wednesday last?" queried the newspaper man.

"Yes," came the reply from behind the bars, "I can."

"Did you ever know Ruhle?"

"Not that I can remember of."

"Have you ever seen him?"

"No, I don't think I ever have."

In reply to further questioning, Fielder, as he gives his name, said that he hailed from Hiawatha, Kan., and made a living by working on a farm. Burton, the other man, is a young fellow probably 20 or 21 years of age—an inoffensive, quiet individual, who, at the time he was interviewed by the reporter, was badly scared. He protested that he did not know anything about the Ruhle murder case, except what he had read in the papers, and, furthermore, that he did not know anything about his fellow-prisoner, Fielder.

The warrant for the arrest of the two men was sworn out in the court of Justice Helsley, and they were captured some four or five miles south of the city. Constable Stein will not talk about the circumstances which led to their arrest. He says, however, that the description of "Norelia" tallies exactly with that of the man Fielder, and that it is certain that Fielder came from the town in Missouri that Norelia claimed as his home. Furthermore, when Fielder was arrested he appeared very much agitated, and on the way in asked questions that showed that he was greatly concerned in the Ruhle case.

HE WILL PROBABLY DIE.

The Victim of the Tuttle Boy's Assault Not Expected to Survive.

Last evening, Mrs. Miehe, wife of the man who was so badly beaten by the Tuttle crowd as detailed in the BEE of a few days ago, brought to Sheriff Coburn the information that her husband was in a most critical condition. She went so far as to say that it appeared that the chances of recovery were against him.

It came to a BEE reporter, and notwithstanding the lateness and darkness of the hour, at about 11 o'clock the scribe drove to the residence of the wounded man.

Miehe was found in bed. His right arm was so tied over his left shoulder as to render it impossible for it to fall by his side. His wounded head was bandaged and stitched, and it was only with the greatest difficulty that he turned in his bed. His voice was weak and his features betokened pain which he was unable to describe. Although apparently not in danger of immediate death, his condition was such as to warrant the gravest fears as regards his recovery.

The house in which the wounded man lay is a small, three-roomed frame structure. Every door and window was closed, and the atmosphere was almost stifling. When the reporter reached the house, a male relative occupied a bed in the front room, while the wife of the assaulted man presumably attended him in the next. The victim was suffering intense pain, and was unable to express in English the pain he felt.

When satisfied that no immediate danger was apprehended, the reporter left the house, and had scarcely left the fence surrounding the wounded man's property, when he was surrounded by a crowd of the residents of the neighborhood.

From these he learned sufficiently of the Tuttle brothers to warrant the belief that they should, at least, be driven out of town. Setting aside the outrage upon Miehe, certain members of the Tuttle family have been identified with crimes (according to report) which ought long since have been expiated under the most severe of judicial visitations.

The Powell Case.

In the district court yesterday the case of the State vs. Powell, charged with the murder of Chas. Leslie at Florence in November last, was continued. The state concluded the prosecution at noon. The only new evidence in the state's case was that given by C. E. Mead, a plasterer and former justice of the peace at Florence. He testified that he was engaged in plastering Henry Peterson's house on the day of the killing, and that Powell was working with him. Powell carried his revolver in his hip pocket all of the time while at work, as if guarding against some threatening danger. He did not hear Powell make any threats against Leslie. The defense was commenced yesterday afternoon.

The principal witness for the defense was Crosby, the new man alleged to have received a death-bed statement from Leslie, in which the latter declared he had started out to do up Powell. There was a heated discussion over the admission of Crosby's testimony. Attorneys Baldwin for the state and Burnham for the defense became so excited in the wrangle that Judge Neville called for the criminal docket to enter up a contempt against Judge Baldwin. The storm passed over, however, and the tesimony was decided in order. Crosby will be the first witness called this morning.

There will be no session of the court on Monday, Decoration day.

The Sportsmen's Convention.

Secretary Geo. E. Kay, of the State Sportsmen's association, has received advices which warrant his opinion that the coming convention of the association, which will be held in this city on June 8, 9, 10 and 11, will be the largest attended of any yet held. There are fifteen clubs in the state that are in the association and applications for membership are being received each day from other clubs. Over one hundred entries have already been made for the shooting tournament, which will take place during the convention. Hastings, Lincoln, Grand Island, Brownville, Nebraska City and Plattsmouth have entered their crack teams for the shooting carnival, and the contest promises to be an unusually exciting one. Reduced rates have been made on all of the railroads leading to the city, and hundreds of sportsmen throughout the state will take advantage of the opportunity and attend the Sportsmen's convention and the June musical festival.

THE WESTERN LEAGUE.

The Western Base Ball league met at Leavenworth on Wednesday. A strong effort was made by Mr. C. A. Gardner, of Hastings, to induce Omaha and Fremont to join with Hastings and enter the league. The Omaha knights of the bag, bat and ball could not accept the proposition and the scheme was dropped.

Memorial Day War Concert.

The concert which is to be given by the Seward street M. E. Miss Hawthorne as "Queena."

It was an enthusiastic audience that greeted Miss Grace Hawthorne in her appearance as "Queena" at Boyd's last evening, and every token of appreciation was justly earned by the talented artiste. The role is an exceeningly difficult one, drawing heavily upon the artist's powers of emotion and requiring a versitality of acting seldom embodied in one character, ranging from the merriment of the happy, frivolous sweetheart to the intense realistic portrayal of the suffering of the deserted wife and the thrilling delerium of the maniac. In every position she proved herself capable, displaying an ability, naturalness and earnestness which was rewarded by the hearty applause of her delighted hearers. She more than fulfilled every promise that has been made for her, and by her incessant and conscientious work has won the admiration of Omaha theatre goers, which is but another addition to her lately achieved list of triumphs. Miss Hawthorne is well supported, Messrs. Chas. Barringer, Leon Regnier, Harry Whiting, and the Misses Bertie Willis, Louise Demmon and Maxie Lapelle being members of her company. This afternoon "Fanchon" will be presented at the matinee and "Oliver Twist" this evening.

Kyle's Case.

Barring the interference of unforseen events Constable Kyle will be tried before the county commissioners on Wednesday next, on the charge of drunkenness and conduct unbecoming an officer. He has succeeded for over a month in evading the officers who have been sent to summon him to appear before the board, and his case has been postponed from week to week. On Thursday morning Sheriff Coburn went to Kyle's home, on Walnut hill, at 4 o'clock in the morning, and succeeded in getting a summons read to him before he could get out of his bed. There is now no excuse for the further postponement of the case.

Thought it was Blood Money.

A wild-eyed woman dragged her husband into the police court room yesterday morning and appealed to Judge Stenberg to make an investigation for the purpose of ascertaining how her husband became possessed of $100, which he had brought home on Thursday night. The conviction had taken possession of the woman that her husband had taken "blood money" for some criminal offense. The conviction bore upon her mind until it almost crazed her. Her fears were allayed by a satisfactory explanation made by her husband in the presence of the court.

Stiffness in the limbs is sure to vanish by the use of St. Jacobs Oil, the conqueror of pain.

Charged With Bastardy.

Watson was arrested by Constable Houck last evening, and placed in the city jail. He is a young man, a civil engineer in the employ of J. E. House, commissioner of public works.

The Marriage of Dr. Evans and Miss Rose L. North.

COLUMBUS, Neb., May 28.—[Correspondence of the BEE.]—The greatest social event of the season occurred last night at 8 o'clock, at the residence of Hon. J. E. Dr. Evans is a prominent business man and stands on the top round of his profession. He has been a resident of this city for eight years, and is well and favorably known as a genial gentleman of sterling worth.

THOSE SUBURBAN TRAINS.

Protests From the Country—Out of Town People Don't Want Them.

STROMSBURG, May 28.—To the Editor of the BEE.—It has been a matter of surprise to business men in towns on the line of the Omaha & Republican Valley railway from David City west that the Omaha dailies—particularly the BEE—have offered no objections to the proposed change of time for the delivery of mail by what is called the "suburban train." From what we can ascertain of the proposed new time card, mail from Omaha will not be distributed in David City, Rising, Shelby, Osceola and Stromsburg until the day following. The DAILY BEE, which is thrown from your press at 5 a. m., and is read at the breakfast tables in Omaha one day, will not be delivered to subscribers in Stromsburg, 125 miles away, until 7 or 8 o'clock the next morning following.

Does it not strike you, as it does the undersigned, that the proposed change of time would be grossly unjust to the people along the western end of the line and detrimental to the interests of the Omaha dailies, especially the BEE?

For years our people were dependent upon the tender mercies of "cattle trains" for mail and passenger facilities, and now, just as we began to think we were "out of the woods," a worse thing seems likely to come upon us.

We protest, Mr. Editor, and we trust you will see the matter as we do, and enter your protest, too. C. M.

Another Kick.

DAVID CITY, Neb., May 28.—To the Editor of the BEE: People in this way are a good deal worked up about the proposed change of time card on the Omaha & Republican Valley. It is really a very serious matter to us all, and must affect the circulation of Omaha papers in these parts. The idea that it will materially benefit Omaha business men, by inducing travel to the metropolis is, so far as these parts are concerned, chimerical. Nobody will travel from 200 to 250 miles to do shopping or business in Omaha in five or six hours. They will do as they now do, go and remain over night.

News Notes From Crete.

CRETE, Neb., May 28.—[Correspondence of the BEE.]—Mrs. Tidball, who had been ill for more than a year, died Tuesday morning of paralysis. She was lovingly attended during her last illness by her four daughters, two of whom were summoned from the south, and two sons, Mr. J. L. Tidball, of the First National bank of Crete, and Mr. R. Tidball, of Friend.

The Cretans are more than usually interested in Doane college this spring, because it is so near the commencement that is to send a greater number of students than ever before, who have come from all over the state to prove the excellence of our college training.

Miss Gates is very busy preparing commencement music and from what we can gather it promises to be better this year than ever before.

The musical portion of Crete, especially with whom Miss Gates is a favorite, are delighted that the management of the assembly has been able to secure her assistance on the musical programme.

The Rev. E. A. Dunning, whose untiring devotion to Chautauqua work has given us such an excellent programme, will be, if possible, more popular than before. Mr. Dunning is so thoroughly in earnest and enthusiastic, without for an instant forgetting that gentle consideration which made him beloved by the whole assembly; and so modest, withal, that he was ready to disclaim the meed of praise so justly his due for his most admirable manner of conducting, planning and puting his shoulder to every wheel that needed, perhaps, but his magic touch to set it revolving in the right direction.

"Pansy," so well known to all our little readers and big ones, too, will fill the children's hour so full of good things that they will carry with them for long the influence of the bright, winning manner and faithful words.

It is pleasant to think that the name which Mrs. Alden uses as her nom de plume was given her by her father after reading her earliest literary effort. He called her his "Pansy," or pleasant thoughts.

Yesterday we noticed a van laden with trunks and bundles of all sizes and shapes being taken from Merrill hall. When we investigated a little we easily learned that the cadets of Doane have obtained permission to pitch their tents on the assembly grounds for a week of that delightful freedom which so many of us hope to enjoy later.

Angostura Bitters were prepared by Dr. J. G. B. Siegert for his private use. Their reputation is such to-day that they have become generally known as the best appetizing tonic. Beware of counterfeits. Ask your grocer or druggist for the genuine article manufactured by Dr. J. G. B. Siegert & Sons.

Owed to the Cow.

Columbus Dispatch.

O cow, where'er thou browse for food,
Assume a bolder attitude,
And turn thy meek and dreamy eye
Triumphantly to meet the sky!

At buxom maids switch not thy tail,
Nor overturn in rage the pail;
In short, by acting dignified,
Display to man thy proper pride.

Graze on, O cow, and chew and dream!
The milk will give its fitting cream;
The cream be given to the churn
Which gives the butter, in its turn.

To market will the butter go
In golden balls, in tier and row;
No oil or grease, called butterine,
Shall in a borrowed garb be seen.

Feed on, O cow, in sunshine bask,
Thou hast protection in thy task;
And artful man shall not compete
With thee. Thy victory is complete.

Her Beautiful Eyes.

James Whitcomb Riley.

O her beautiful eyes they are blue as the dew
On the violet's bloom when the morning is new,
And the light of their love is the gleam of the sun
O'er the meadows of spring where the quick shadows run,
As the morn shifts the mists and the clouds from the skies—
So I stand in the dawn of her beautiful eyes.

And her beautiful eyes are as mid-day to me,
When the lily-bell bends with the weight of the bee,
And the throat of the thrush is a pulse in the heat,
And the senses are dragged with the subtle and sweet
And delirious breaths of the air's lullabies—
So I swoon in the noon of her beautiful eyes.

O her beautiful eyes! they have smitten mine own
As a glory glanced down from the glare of the throne,
And I reel, and I falter and fall, as afar
Fell the shepherds that looked on the mystical star,
And yet dazed in the tidings that bade them arise—
So I grope through the night of her beautiful eyes.
