WHEAT GOES FLYING HIGH.

A Great Day in Chicago, With Prices Climbing Up Marvelously.

AN IMMENSE BOOM STARTED, Prophecying That Ninety Cents Will Be Reached Before the Spurt Ends—Excitement at the Boiling Point.

Chicago Grain Market. Chicago, June 3.—[Special Telegram to the BEE.]—WHEAT—Wheat flying high today. There was a continuation of yesterday's boom, and the excitement of the preceding day was intensified. An enormous speculative business was transacted and the outside world saw signs of weakening. The news brought a fair amount of business, but local operators and New York, St. Louis and other large speculative centers put up the bulk of the money for the trading that was done. The market opened 1/2c higher than yesterday, trading in July being on the basis of 77 1/2c and in August at 78c. July later went to 78 1/2c, fell back to 77 1/2c, jumping again to 78 1/2c, then down to 78c, when prices were forced to 79 1/2c, and shortly after 10 o'clock that option was selling at 78 1/2c. But a late spurt carried the price to 79 1/2c. The close at 10 o'clock was 78 1/2c. August followed right along in the footsteps of July, and trading in the wheat, July and August, was a large scale. September received very little attention in the universal excitement, July and August affording the crowd enough to think about. This morning Reams, so it was positively asserted, telegraphed friends to buy wheat. Cudahy made no concealment of his eagerness to get back to 77 1/2c, claiming that Armour and his St. Paul following were in the deal. There was talk of climbing to-day and likewise some grand and lofty tumbling. When chronic bears began the ascent of the pole they found themselves in a bull company unanimously. It is said that four out of five bull traders were caught short on the up side, and that the market was in a buller's pitch, but thought the market would go lower before the advance set in, and that it would be so gradual that they could get out without difficulty. A 3/4c bulge in two days convinced them that there must have been an error in calculation somewhere. It is certain that the Chicago market is the most vociferous and rampant bulls of to-day, and it is equally true that the bulls are the most numerous and active. The attitude of bears or passive spectators. Very few of them have been quick enough to take advantage of the bulge, and they constitute in a large degree the conservative bull back power. The boomers are talking hot about this spurt, but it was generally conceded that the big fishes put out a little head to-day as a repressive measure. Some of the heaviest buying to-day was done by the Chicago market, and it is presumably on account of Peter McGee's corn. Corn was neglected most of the morning and about noon there was a liberal receipt and fine growing weather. Later the advance in wheat was a potent factor in bringing the market up, and the current decline advanced to 78 1/2c and closed at 78 1/2c. Provisions boomed for no special reason except that wheat was building forward at a terrific rate. Pork advanced from yesterday's 5c per barrel, but climbed upward 2 1/2c to 55c, the close at 10 o'clock being 55 1/2c. Beef was established in land, and is in ribs. The markets were lower than yesterday. The market was a shaking up of the tailors. Corn dropped 1/2c, and pork 10c. New York reports indicate that the big fishes put out a little head to-day as a repressive measure. Some of the heaviest buying to-day was done by the Chicago market, and it is presumably on account of Peter McGee's corn. Corn was neglected most of the morning and about noon there was a liberal receipt and fine growing weather. Later the advance in wheat was a potent factor in bringing the market up, and the current decline advanced to 78 1/2c and closed at 78 1/2c. Provisions boomed for no special reason except that wheat was building forward at a terrific rate. Pork advanced from yesterday's 5c per barrel, but climbed upward 2 1/2c to 55c, the close at 10 o'clock being 55 1/2c. Beef was established in land, and is in ribs. The markets were lower than yesterday. The market was a shaking up of the tailors. Corn dropped 1/2c, and pork 10c. New York reports indicate that the big fishes put out a little head to-day as a repressive measure.
