

PICKED UP ABOUT THE CITY.

A Big Musical Scheme of Interest to Omahans.

THE TEMPLE OF JUSTICE.

The New Social Evil Law—The Firemen—Odds and Ends—Court Notes—Uncle Sam in Court, Etc., Etc.

A Worthy Scheme.

A letter was received yesterday from New York setting forth in more detail the plan decided upon for the organization and perpetuation of an American university with special reference to the cultivation of music. It is intended to make the scheme as comprehensive and representative as possible, and for that purpose all the principal cities of the country will be afforded an opportunity of contributing to the undertaking. A certain amount of money will be expected from each to go toward the general fund. This fund will be used to maintain the university and its branches, which will be established in all cities contributing to the same. Examinations will be made at stated intervals, and all young men passing the same will be granted tuition free. The idea is to raise music and indeed all the arts in America to the highest standard, and already Chicago, Boston, Philadelphia, Cleveland, Indianapolis and Louisville have given liberal subscriptions to the movement. Omaha will be afforded an opportunity of contributing to the fund one of these days and thus deriving an advantage in the musical line which it has long sought.

AFTER THE WOMEN.

The New Social Evil Law—Various Opinions.

The social evil ordinance introduced by Councilman Ford has, as noted elsewhere, become a law. By its provisions the sporting women will be obliged to pay a fine of at least $25, instead of $6 a month as heretofore.

The new law does not meet with satisfaction in any quarter. The sporting women denounce it as outrageous. Many of them are leaving town, scattering to all points of the compass. Others of the wealthier demi-monde are preparing to stay and fight the ordinance in the courts. Some have already secured lawyers for that purpose. Still others are doing nothing, but are listlessly waiting for events to transpire, hoping that something may turn up to prevent the strict enforcement of the new law.

But judging from Marshall Cummings' tone of determination the ordinance will be enforced and to the letter. "I propose to do my share to see that it is carried out," he said yesterday "though it may be hard work. I'll arrest every woman in town, if necessary, and take her into court. There my duty ends."

It is the opinion of the marshal's friends that this ordinance is simply a scheme on the part of Mayor Boyd and a few designing councilmen to give the marshal a black eye. They well know that it will be a hard thing for him to enforce the ordinance, and hope to see him worsted in the attempt. But he is determined to do all in his power to see that the law is complied with.

Judge Steinberg thinks that the law will prove a dead letter, on account of the difficulty of procuring direct evidence of guilt. He believes that it would be a better scheme to fine the landlords of each establishment twenty-five or fifty dollars and cost, and allow the girls to go free. This would drive the single roomers all into houses he thinks and better situation. He says the law will be as matters stand now, the law will either more than fill the jail, which is already crowded, with women, or will drive them into a quiet plying of their occupation, under cover of some respectable occupation.

The monthly revenue from this social evil tax is now more than $1,000. Judge Steinberg thinks that this will wind down, under the provisions of the new law, to almost nothing.

THE TEMPLE OF JUSTICE.

Where Lawyers Coquet with the Hooded Goddess.

In the district court yesterday Roland E. Woodard filed a petition for divorce from his wife Hannah T. He was married to the latter in Baltimore, Md., in 1865. In 1883 she deserted his household and since remained away from there. He has been unable to locate her, and asks to be freed from the marital ties which bind him to her.

The jury in the case of Chapman & Her vs. Edgerton, constable, decided that the right of property in question was in the plaintiffs and their damages were assessed at five cents.

In the case of Winfield C. Camp vs. M. Golden, which was given to the jury yesterday, also in Judge Wakely's court, a verdict of $44 was awarded the plaintiff.

The case of Felter vs. the Anheuser-Busch Brewing company is on trial before Judge Wakely. It is that of a horse sold by Joe Blake to Ed Maurer and by him to the company in question. A mortgage intervened and Judge Felter was for the nag, and was yesterday making a big fight for him.

Gen. O'Brien commenced his argument in the Ballard case yesterday. He opened at 9:30 o'clock, reviewing the case from its inception and the manner in which it is presented has been conducted. He went into detail, showing the peculiar disposition of the accused, the hereditary tendency to insanity under which he labored, as a consequence of the latter's father having died from the same disease. He then took up the law of the case, supplementing it with medical opinions, strengthening the theory of insanity, and concluding with an appeal to the jury in behalf of his client. He paid his respects to the press, the members of which he thanked for the impartial manner in which they had treated Ballard during the trial.

Mr. Estelle commenced the closing argument late in the afternoon.

LEGION OF HONOR.

Kansas to be Enrolled in the New Organization.

The excursion of the Loyal Legion of Nebraska to Leavenworth last night, consisted among others of the following: Lieut. Swope, Col. Curtis, Capt. Quinn, Capt. Humphreys, of Pawnee City; Maj. Brown, Gen. Cook, Lieut. Burrell, Capt. F. E. Moores, Lieut. Bell, Gov. Saunders, Capt. Palmer, Capt. M. Lee, Lieut. Bechel, Capt. McBride, Col. Savage, Capt. Furay, Lieut. O'Brien, Mayor Hall, Capt. Manchester, Capt. Broatch and Col. Frederic, Gen. Montgomery, Gen. Franklin, Judge Amasa Cobb, Judge O. P. Mason, Lieut. Dudley, Sergt. Richter, and others from Lincoln will meet the train at Louisville. The train will run over the Missouri Pacific, reaching Leavenworth this morning. The guests will remain until Friday, returning home on the evening of that day. Elaborate preparations have been made for the installation of the legion. A banquet hall, 90x115 feet, has been erected for the entertainment of the guests. There will be a grand review of all the troops at the fort, followed by a sham battle, in which a large number of veterans will take part. Large delegations from Chicago, St. Louis, and other places are already on the ground. By special request the installation services will be conducted by Judge Savage of this city, who is commander-in-chief of the Nebraska division of the Legion of Honor.

UNCLE SAM AS A LITIGANT.

He Wants Damages for Stolen Lumber—Another Suit.

Uncle Sam has up serenely as plaintiff in a suit filed in the United States court yesterday. The action is brought by District Attorney Lamberton, against Geo. E. and Nathaniel Hogg, contractors of this city. The petition alleges that the defendants in the year 1881, trespassed on some valuable unsurveyed mineral lands in Idaho belonging to the government, and felled therefrom trees of pine and other varieties, for the purpose of manufacturing railroad ties for the Union Pacific. The petition further states that the number of ties furnished on this contract was 33,000 valued at fifty cents each. This would make the total value of the stolen lumber $16,500. At this figure Uncle Sam fixes his damages and asks judgment accordingly against the defendants, together with interest at 6 per cent.

Geo. E. and Nathaniel Hogg commenced a suit in the same tribunal to-day to obtain possession of a quarter section in Butler county, Neb. The plaintiffs live in Pennsylvania and claim that the defendants had a title to this property for the past fifteen years, one D. T. Moore has squatted upon it and held it with no legal rights whatever. While Hogg by name, above, is the plaintiff, the defendants want their rights. They ask for possession of the property and $2,500 damages besides.

That Mysterious Infant.

The mystery of the infant which was deserted on the Union Pacific train, as mentioned in Tuesday's Bee, has not yet been entirely cleared up. A telegram was received from St. Louis yesterday from Plum Creek concerning the matter. The agent there says the young woman's name, as given by herself, was Thompson. She stated that she came from Iowa three weeks ago to escape the disgrace which would attach to her when her parents and friends discovered her shame. She stated furthermore, that she deserted the child, because she could not afford to support it. The infant has been taken to Grand Island, where it is now being cared for. Nothing further is known about the mother than that stated above. She is believed to have returned to her Iowa home.

Robbed by His Chum.

Chas. Smith, a man employed on the excavating force for the new Paxton building, reported at police court yesterday that he had been robbed of $60 by a room-mate. He retired to bed Tuesday with the roll of money under his pillow. Yesterday he awoke and found that the $60 had taken to itself wings and flown, aided in its flight probably by the nimble fingers of his room-mate, who is also missing. Smith thinks that the robber has gone to Chicago and the police will do all in their power to trace the matter.

She Wants Her Husband.

A young woman appeared at the police station yesterday and wanted the authorities to take some steps to aid her in preventing her husband from being monopolized by another woman, one Jennie Bowen. The woman gave her name as Mrs. Thomas Rudy, and said she had only married a week, but had been a widow most of the time, as her husband spent all of his time, when not at work, in the company of the other woman. The police having no authority in the premises, the unhappy wife went home, declaring that she would arrange some scheme by which she would get even with her faithless worse half.

Funeral Directors.

The term undertaker, with reference to those gentlemen who are sometimes instrumental in organizing coffin clubs, is about to become obsolete. It will be substituted by those of "funeral director," which is the name of the state association recently organized in Lincoln. H. K. Burkett of this city was elected president, as also delegate to the national convention of funeral directors, which is to convene in Cleveland on the 9th of next October.

Sibley Is a Little On.

OMAHA, June 23.—To the Editor of the Bee: In an article in your issue of yesterday, I saw a few words: "Free trade means import cheap goods; protection means import cheap labor and make the same here." Mr. Sibley you are a little on. Study two years more and you will, perhaps, find out that there is something else at the bottom of all this trouble mentioned in your letter.

HARRY JOHNSON.

The Franklin Academy.

C. S. Harrison has just returned from a trip to Chicago in the interest of Franklin academy and the institution is ahead several hundred dollars by his visit.

The ladies' hall at Franklin is nearly finished, and the academy will open this fall with far brighter prospects than ever. New teachers will be secured to take the place of those who have gone such efficient work in the past and the school will double its capacity for work.

Lost His Money.

John Leslie of Maquoketa, Iowa, arrived in the city Tuesday morning and at once proceeded to fill himself full of tanglefoot. When he reached the sleepy state of drunkenness he found his way to the bank of the river under the Union Pacific bridge and laid down for a rest. When he awakened his pocket book with him was missing. It is still missing. John has returned to the land of interrupted whiskey.

For Sale—Drug stock in a good live town in northwestern Nebraska. Population 1,000. Address G. 35 C., Omaha, Neb.

The Tuttle's Again.

The Tuttle boys who came so near killing a German carpenter near the packing houses a few weeks ago, bobbed up yesterday morning. One of them, Peter Tuttle, was fined Tuesday morning for fast driving. Later in the day James Tuttle was arrested for having assaulted Louis McCoy in a saloon in South Omaha.

560 acres land in Thayer county, Neb., to sell or trade for merchandise. Address John Linderholm, 614 S. 10th St., Omaha, Neb.

Bound Over.

Smiley, Smith and Carroll, the three men who were arrested in Council Bluffs charged with the recent burglary of Lindholm's store in this city, were given a hearing before Judge Steinberg Tuesday afternoon and held under bonds of $1,000 to answer to the charge in the district court.

Volunteer Firemen.

There will be a meeting of the City hose on Thursday night of all the volunteer firemen of Omaha for the purpose of forming a volunteer firemen's association. All who have served in the volunteer service are requested to be present.

ODDS AND ENDS.

Stray Leaves From a Reporter's Note Book.

A good story is told at the expense of a certain Omaha gentleman, who, not many years ago, used to turn an occasional dollar by supplying a line of boarding houses with prepared horseshad. For the sake of preventing unpleasant feelings the proper name of our subject will be represented by that of "Uncle Dan." The story runs that Uncle Dan was once a church deacon, one of those good, pious fellows who could cram six days' religion into twenty-four hours, and still claim to be a Christian. But, despite his deaconhood, Dan was wont to resort to queer tactics in preparing his wares. In fact, his memory was so short that he managed, invariably, to mix three parts of horseshad, and one part of horsedish, and sell it as the genuine article. Dan's religious views would also get tangled up with the sale of his produce, and he frequently stopped to expostulate with certain worldly customers upon the errors of their ways, begging, with tears in his eyes, for them to become Christians, like himself. It happened, one day, that he became more than usually earnest in his endeavors to reform a certain hotel proprietor, a customer, who was deep in the mire of sinfulness, in Dan's estimation. The landlady's name was "Jennie," a short, and by that appellation Dan addressed him.

"Jeff, my dear brother, what can I do to induce you to join our church. There you can not strongly resist the temptations of the wicked and aid you in leading the life of a Christian man."

Jeff, looked puzzled for a moment, then remarked, his eyes snapping maliciously:

"I'll join your church upon one condition, Dan."

"And what is that?" inquired Dan, eagerly.

"That you'll quit mixin' turnips with your horseshad," was the dry answer.

"A good skeleton," said an Omaha physician the other day, "is an indispensable part of a doctor's outfit. No physician who claims to be thoroughly equipped for his business, can afford to be without one."

"What are the prices asked for skeletons?" queried a reporter.

Well, that depends a good deal. A mounted skeleton can be purchased for as low as $25 or $30. From these figures the price ranges up to $150. What makes the difference? Simply the fact that one skeleton is finely mounted and thoroughly finished, while another is hastily strung together and not half cleaned. The best specimens have every single bone jointed by means of brass wires. Get out your physiology, find out how many bones you have in your body and you can then form some conception of the value of such a skeleton. The French skeletons are by far the finest in the market, costing all the way from $125 to $150 or more. The French seem to have a knack of cleaning their skeletons, by some mysterious process, so as to leave them white and bleached, at the same time that the bone substance is not at all impaired.

The surface of the bone is covered with a greasy and dirty to the touch, as is the case with most of the cheaper skeletons put upon the market. Yes, the lower priced article is American, where the act of mounting is not nearly so thoroughly understood as in France."

"Most of these skeletons are obtained from the dissecting rooms. Of course body snatchers contribute largely to the market supply. The hospitals and poor houses furnish a goodly number. No, there is not much choice between the male and female skeletons, though physicians as a rule prefer that of a man."

"You had better buy some real estate in Omaha before you return to the east," said a friend yesterday to a gentleman from Chicago. "No," said the latter, "not this time. At least I do, I'll keep the matter pretty quiet for a while, but I can give you the history of a piece of my ground in this city, which has frightened me away from buying. It was first sold for $35,000. The owner backed out and asked $40,000. The price was sought, the owner declined to turn over the goods without $45,000. Some delay took place, and eventually $45,000 was paid, and with complacency declined, $50,000 and nothing but $50,000 the owner said would now buy the land. Well, every body who wanted the property, but as you may imagine, about this time I feel like the shepherds who responded to the lying cries of the lad who claimed to be in danger of the wolf. They were led by a man who was being led by a 'sold,' and the leaders claimed they would have nothing more to do with the property in question, or its owner, unless they should get an agreement from the owner, white to sell the ground for a given price. Well, a young attorney succeeded in getting a power of attorney from the owner to sell the property at $50,000, and of course, sold it in a twinkling. But will you believe it, the owner had scarcely signed the documents giving the attorney power to sell, when the same individual, on the lawyer's part, was released from the agreement. The lot was 65x133 feet, and what the owner aimed at was to get just $1,000 per front foot for it, and the more that owner was offered, the more the owner wanted to get. Will you tell me how a man can find encouragement to buy here under such circumstances. I'll tell you, Mr. Omaha, you people are being led by the title of 'Omaha,' which has long been given to you by rivals."

As will be noted in a special telegram to the Bee from Chicago, Parsons, the anarchist, confesses to having spent a portion of his time, when eluding pursuit, in Omaha. This confirms the statement first made in the Bee some weeks ago. As then noted, officers of the law were on the trail of Parsons, but unfortunately, before their clues had been thoroughly worked up, Parsons had fled. Rule's road house, which was designated as his hiding place while in the city, is a well-known socialist resort west of the city limits near Leavenworth street.

"There goes another one to her 'long home,' said a depot official, yesterday, to a Bee reporter. The serbe followed the direction of the official's eyes and finally saw them rest on an oblong box which lay on the front of the platform of the foremost express car. It had once been white, but battling with the elements and furies and subjected to enveloping volumes of coal smoke, had sadly destroyed its creamy purity. It was stretched lengthwise across the platform, and was tied with ropes to the iron guards. Separated from the busy interior of the train, out of sight of everybody except when the train stood at a station, the box presented a singular and ominous feature where there was so much energy noise and vigor.

But the box was not more lonely than its occupant—a dead lady on her way to an eastern home of intelligence and refinement.

"It's the old, old story with such people. She had lost her health, rushed too quickly to the mountains and died. There, you see that sad featured young man walking down the platform?" asked the depot man.

The reporter remarked he did, suggesting that the gentleman in question was the young lady's brother.

"No, sir," was the reply. "He's the young lady's lover. Beside him is her mother. Her heart is wrung with grief. When it became certain that the young lady could not live, the mother, who had the young man the information, and requesting him to come if he wished to see Ella alive."

The next train was whirling him to Colorado. But he was late. Ella's gentle spirit it had fled two hours before the young man's arrival. The conductor who brought him over says he's since been acting like a crazy man. "Poor fellow," sympathetically sighed the reporter. "Poor fiddlestick," exclaimed a strong-minded female at elbow, who had perhaps been loved when she was a baby and hated ever since, "he'll have another girl in a month."

Opel's Hotel, Lincoln, Neb., opened March 15th, first class in every respect.

Crosby Bailed.

Benjamin Crosby, the young man charged with perjury in the Leslie murder case, was yesterday admitted to bail in the sum of $500. The bond was signed by David Shipley, and immediately Crosby was taken to Florence, where he is at work upon Shipley's farm.

Walsh Arrives.

Sergeant Walsh, who is to contest with Ross, a broad-sword combat, on next Saturday night, in the Exposition building arrived from St. Louis yesterday. He is the champion of the west, and is expected to win the medal from his competitor if earnest work will enable him to do so.

A Burglary.

H. H. Marboff reported at police headquarters yesterday that his house, 2430 Seward street had been burglarized Tuesday. The only thing of value taken was a silver watch.

Brevities.

The barber shop in the Arcade is beginning to show up a number of beauty spots.

The annual commencement of St. Catherine's academy, on the corner of Eighteenth and Cass streets, will take place on Friday evening, the most important of all its trainings, and the most important of all its trainings, and the most important of all its trainings.

A large force of men are working in excavating for the foundation of McGivock's new warehouse on the corner of Ninth and Leavenworth streets.

The contractors have completed the new roof to the amphitheater building, and the fair grounds, blown off in last November's heavy wind storm.

Dexter L. Thomas commenced suit in Justice Healey's court yesterday to evict John McNeill from the premises on the northwest corner of Eleventh and Capitol avenue.

Dr. S.D. Mercer yesterday purchased for $25,000 the house and lot of Capt. Richard, on the northeast corner of the corner of Eighteenth and Farnam. The property is held for speculation.

A large baby carriage is now at the central station, awaiting a claimant. It was found on the corner of the station, and no owner could be found. It will be turned over to Police Court Clerk Pentzel.

All members of the Plasterers' union are requested to be present at their meeting on Friday evening, as business of importance is to be transacted. Order of Secretary.

In the case of William Scott vs. Marion Scott, Judge Wakely decided, to save the property of plaintiff from destruction, that Mary Scott, wife of the first mentioned, act as receiver of the same and take charge of the management of the business and give bond for the faithful performance of the same in the amount of $1,500. The bond was given.

Judge Neville, in the matter of the injunction sought by William Alstadt to restrain Matthias New from selling property belonging to the former, issued an order this morning to the effect that the restraining order already granted should remain in force until further directions from the court.

There are weeds that can be eaten by people in distress, but salt is indispensable to make them palatable. There is, however, a government monopoly and a costly luxury to the poor East Indians. England sells for $15 to $20 salt which costs value is $1. Next to water, salt is a necessity of Indian diet. Many used to make "earth salt" by washing saline earth found on the surface, and to boil the food in the liquid. For this they were punished. The salt was found to lie right to lie it up from the earth in the dark, and then the police destroyed the "salt licks."

Wahoo, Wahoo Waho. [Correspondence of the Bee.]—In the absence of anything of general interest, local politicians are coming to light. Wire pullers are quietly at work putting up their fences to carry out their schemes. Probable candidates are being discussed, but as yet there is very little that is definite. The republicans will probably re-nominate

Hon. F. J. Hall and F. A. Scoville to succeed themselves in the lower house of the state legislature. For the other candidate (Saunders county is entitled to three members in the lower house) not much has been said. John Steen is strongly talked of as a candidate for state senator. If nominated he will make a strong run, for he is very popular and Saunders county could not select a more energetic legislator or a man of more polish, culture and brains than John Steen to represent her in the upper house of the coming legislature. Hall and Scoville are both popular men, and their past record in the legislature is above reproach.

The democrats have as yet kept their schemes and machinations beneath the surface and little is known of their intentions, if they have any.

According to the election returns of '85 on state officers the republicans have a plurality of about two hundred and twenty-five, which makes a good working majority.

For the past week there has been an abundance of rain and what the farmers want now is some good settled weather that will permit them to finish working their corn.

Messrs. Clarkson, Duell and Sharp went to Moline, Ills., Tuesday where they will witness the sculling match of Connor and Brown, of this city, to-morrow, with two other double sculling teams, on the Mississippi river. All of them were enthusiastic in the belief that the Omaha team would make an excellent showing and possibly win the race.
