Omaha's Progress. The improvement which, for some time back, has given to Omalia a national reputation, is still being carried on in different parts of the city. In the outlying districts the fresh white roofs of cottages everywhere appear. They are going up singly and in twos and threes, and not infrequently they may be found in bunches, extending sometimes from one street to another.

In outlying districts also, in yet more favored localities, beautiful and costly residences may be seen just beginning to peer through the trees, and before long some of the most beautiful homes know to Omaha will be added to the list of our firesides. In the interior of town the activity is not less noticeable. Excavations are being made, and many have already been finished. In others the foundation walls are in progress of construction, while in others still the understructure is completed and the parts ready for the imposition of the building contemplated. Among these may be mentioned Paxton's building, on corner of Sixteenth and Farnam streets, the chamber of commerce on the opposite corner, the Paddock building on the corner of Douglas and Eleventh streets, the Krug and Poppleton buildings on Farnam near Tenth street, the Millard block on Eleventh and Harney, the Moine plow company's warehouse, Ninth and Marcy streets, Koantze's block of stores on St. Mary's avenue, McGav-ock's warehouse, corner of Ninth and Leavenworth streets, the addition to the Windsor hotel and a host of others which it is now impossible to enum-erate. The cost of these buildings ranges from $9,000 to $100,000. The sites have been vacated for the new First National and Merchant' National banks on opposite corners of Thirteenth and Farnam streets. These sites are, at present, in a ghastly condition and the sidewalks in front of them are, in a measure, in an impassible condition. It is known that some delay has been experienced in the arrangement of the details of these buildings, but the unpleasant sight presented by the corners referred to is about the only thing which in any way gives Omana the appearance of having ground for which it seems to have little use

In the real estate marke, the last few weeks have brought about many changes. There is not the insane rush for land that had charac-terized it earlier in the year, by people illy supplied with means to in-The limit of that kind of purchases would seem to have been reached. The sales lately have turned toward who are is a rule better supplied with means, and whose investments, consequently will neither straiten themselves nor deprive the merchants of their customary patron nage. Of this kind of sales, the number has in no way been decreased from that of the preceeding week some days reach ing as high as fifty. On three days of the present week, selected at random, Friday, Phursday and Wednesday, there were no ess than one hundred and fifteen re corded transfers, with an aggregate val-uation of $195,043. It is known, however, that in this list a number of exchanges were not mentioned one of which was he Goodrich property on the corner Farnam and Sixteenth streets. This sold for the sum of $50,000. There were several other sales, each not less than $25,000, one of which was the Richards property on the corner of Farnam and and Eighteenth streets. The property now occupied by the city hall is beginning to attract attention, and though the owner holds it high, it is not improbable that before long, he will be able to command his price. The demand of late has been for what is known as interior property. It has been sought both by home and foreign investors, and the prices have ranged uniformly high. With reference to out-lying property, that part of the city which has been boomed especially, and which attractions recommend increased its attractions to has actually incr e. Lots which formerly sold at $650 are now in demand at $850 and those which rated lower have appreciated in the same proportion. The certainty that the Belt line is to afford the accommodations of suburban trains has in a great measure, been the cause of this increase. The certainty also of the viaducts on Eleventh and Sixteenth streets has had a like effect upon prop-erty in the southern part of the city, so much so that it is now only a man of excellent means who can afford to buy on either thoroughfare.

Foreign speculators and manufactur ing institutions still display an interest in the city, and this fact is well attested by the number of applications which are daily received by the board of trade, as well as by our real estate merchants There is scarcely one of the latter who is not prepared to offer inducements to manufacturers to come here and locate; but are disposed at the same time to use due care in selecting concerns for which there is an assured market in this state. A tour among real estate men taken yesterday by a BEE reporter revealed the hopefulness of the future and the satisfaction with the present on the part of each dealer where they had not been shown as having heavy deals by the transfers, their contract work was as busy as in any week of the year. This estimated at about one-half the transfers recorded, which would give a sale for the three days mentioned of about $290,000.

HE DENIES THE CHARGE. General Manager Callaway Has a Word Concerning Discrimina-

tions. Some weeks ago the board of trade received a communication from R. J. Franklin, a traveling salesman for an Omaha house, charging that the Union Pacific made the same rate to Nebraska points west of Grand Island to Omaha and Kansas City merchants, thus discriminating against Omaha merchants, as the distance from Kansas city from the points named is 200 miles greater than the distance from Omaha. The board of trade referred the com-munication to Mr. Callaway, with an mmunication to Mr. Callaway, with an inquiry concerning the facts in the case. His reply was received by Secretary Nattinger yesterday. He states that the Union Pacific has no Kansas City connection with Nebraska points east of Cheyenne, and that the Missouri Pacific and Burlington rontes must be held responsible for rates made from Kansas City to Nebraska points east of Kansas City to Nebraska points east of Cheyenne, as all connections between the places must be over these roads Mr. Callaway further states and prom ises in his letter that when the Maryville (kas.) & Blue Valley division of the Union Pacific is completed he will see that whatever facility is given Kansas City merchants for reaching Nebraska points east of Cheyenne the same facility will also be extended to Omaha merchants for reaching points on the Kan-sas division east of Denver.

A Colored Thief's Booty Causes Two Lawsuits. Considerable interest attaches to the case of Frank Duval, the colored fellow who was tried before Judge Neville yesterday charged with the larceny of a gold watch chain from Edholm & Erickson. The case has an interesting history, About two months ago Duval was arrested for fighting and when he was searched at the police headquarters a valuable gold watch chain was found in his possession. The police took the chain to several jewelry stores to find an owner When presented to Edhoim Erickson they claimed that from them. They recognized it as being the only one they had purchased of a special pattern, and also strengthened their claim by showing the weight of it and the weight charged them by the wholesalers. Duval was accordingly indicted for larceny and bound over to the district court. In the meantime Mr. A. B. Huberman saw the chain and at once claimed it. He recognized it by the pattern, weight, and also a small private mark the letter "S," which was cut in the swivel of the chain. The case was tried yesterday and will be submitted to the jury to-day, after which Mr. Huberman will commence replevin proceed#### ings to get possession of the chain. ON THE DIAMOND. Two Interesting Contests Between

Crack Nines. Omaha is to have two base ball contests, one to-day and one on Sunday, that promise to be full of interest to lovers of the national sport. The game to-morrow will probably draw the largest crowd, but in point of scientific playing it won't be a marker to the game that is to take place this afternoon. the contestants in which will be the press gang and a chosen nine of "the finest." This game will be called promptly at 3:30 o'clock this afternoon, and will be well worth seeing. The police nine will be decked out in the regulation copper's uniform, while the press will wear their cheek an uniform, while the press gang will wear their cheek and last summer's suits. Both nines have done a good deal of practicing, with their jaws expected. No refreshments will be allowed inside the park. Refreshments must be inside the players. Mosley ..... The Sword Contest To-Night. A BEE reporter had an interview yesterday with Sergeant C. Walsh, the cavairyman, and the ex-champion mounted swordsman of America, who won every match (eleven in number), he entered into in the City of Mexico, won six contests in San Francisco, vanquishing the noted athlete, Duncan C. Ross, winning asleep, and the dream again came to him with all its previous vividness; most clearly and distinctly he heard the voice saying to him: "Arise, without delay, and go to Bodmin." He could no longer rest, and resolved to find for himself whether there was anything more than fancy in it, by immediately setting out for Bodmin. He hurriedly dressed, and then went to the paddock adjoining his house that he might catch and saddle his pony. He had some misgiving that it would be a long and difficult task in the night, but to his surprise when he reached the field he found the pony at the gate, as though waiting for aim. He was soon in the saddle, and at a brisk trot started for Bollmin. Just then another though troubled him. He remembered that between three and four miles from Ply mouth he would have to cross a wide, deep, tidal river. In the daytime a ferryboat was constantly plying there during the night the ferryboat was kept on the opposite shore, and he feared that he might not be able to make himself heard. When, however, he arrived at the river he found the boat waiting for him. Surprised at this, he asked the men why they had waited on that side of the river. They said it appeared to them as if some person called "Boat!" several times; they crossed the river, and not finding any person there, were about to return, when they heard she noise of horse's hoofs on the hard road (it was a clear frosty night) and determined to wait and see if any person wished to cross. This incident tended to confirm his first impression, that there must be a purpose in his dream. In due time he arrived in the town of Bodmin, and after so long a ride was glad to seek some refreshments. the question came to him, "Why am I here? He was a perfect stranger, he had never seen that town before, he had not a friend in the place. On that occa sion Bodmin were an unusually busy appearance for a small market town. reason soon became apparent; what are termed the "spring assizes" were being held. In such towns the holding of "assize" is the notable event of the year. Having nothing else to do he strolled into the court. He there found bimself sur-rounded by those medieval arrangements which are still supposed in England to lend dignity and solemnity to the administration of justice. There was the judge on the bench, with his wig of powdered horse-hair hanging over his shoulders, and gorgeously attired in a robe of scarlet and ermine. There was the burris ters in wigs and silk gowns and the various officers of the court arrayed in their different uniforms. There were also the usual crowd of interested spectators, the whole forming an impressive

In the encounter between Attorneys At the bar there stood the prisoner, a Estelle and O'Brien in Judge Neville's man of pale, anxious face, having nothing of the appearance of the ordinary felon. The charge preferred against him was that of highway robbery, a crime in that day always punished with

Prior to the deacon's arrival witnesses had been examined and cross-examined without the testimony being shaken. The prisoner's case appeared most diffi cult of defense, and it was generally felt that the jury would very speedily arrive at a decision when once it was placed in their hands. The jury was charged by the judge, dismissed to consider the casand after a short absence returned with a verdict of guilty. According to the cus tom, before pronouncing sentence on the prisoner the judge asked what he had to J. C. Davis, two flats 710 South Eighcenth street, $6,775.

In reply to that question the prisoner strongly asserted his innocence; declared that he was not in that part of the country when the crime was committed, but many miles away. He said there was one man who if he could meet with him would be the ball game between the cops and the press gang this trial promises to be the Co. on Sixteenth street was closed up by ceeded thus far with his statement he discovered the presence of the deacon in court, and addressing himself to the being made to effect a compromise with the creditors by which the firm will be alexclaimed: "My lord, the very man of whom I have spoken is here, and if placed in the witness box can, I am

"The deacon gladly assumed the posi-tion of "witness" in this very remarkable the arrest of Marshal Cuming on the trial, and was able to discover the purcharge of contempt of court for failing to pose of his presence in Bodmin that day. He referred to his distinct remembrance appear in response to a summons as a witness in the case of Neligh vs. Nordof the conversation the prisoner had al-luded to, and then related to the judge and court the incident or the past night green. #### FOR THE RIGHT ALWAY. An Iowa Admirer on the Van Wycl

Campaign.

MURRAY, Iowa, June 24 .- To the Edi tor of the BEE: I found one of your BEE flying around our town a few deys since I like the sting of your BEE; I like the way it flaps its wings in the face o wrong doers; I like the honey it gather from the flowers of truth that are scat tered all over the fields where it flies; like the way it distributes the rewards o its labor in strange hives where it is needed; I like it because it likes that American of Americans, that good and faithful servant of servants, Senator Va. Wyck, the representative of the people who is brave enough to speak his thoughts; the man who is clothed with enough honesty of purpose to stand up in in the senate of the United States and speak for the common people; the man who cannot be bought, sold, traded off, nor lured from the path of duty by all the stoien millions of all the thieves of this day and age. I wish I could clothe this letter with infinite power so that my meaning would stand engraved in the soul of every citizen of Nebraska, in order that they might know the anxious solicitude of the people of lows for the re-election of Senator Van Wyck. We feel that in him we have a friend, we know where he stands and we don't know where Allison and Wilson stand for they dam us with faint praises

We like Senator Van Wyck because he stirs up the animals in that national menagerie of millionaires; because he demonstrates the fact that a senator may be honest; because he knows enough know the needs of the people on the prairies of the west. He is right in the Union Pacific relief bill, if the proposed pranches can be built without the assistance of thieving contractors. If they can be built without being drowned in wa-tered stocks it will teach the people that the government can establish highways for the good of the people. It will be one step toward wiping out the five thousand millions of counterfeit dollars which now figure in the watered stocks of our railroads, and these counterfeit stocks and bonds now constitute the chief element used to impoverish the laboring classes in the west. If the roads were "capitalized" at their true cash value grain and stock would be carried from North Platte was a man of strong mind and will, not easily moved by strange fancies. Yet the dream troubled him. After thinking about it for some time, he aroused his wife, and told her what had disturbed stock would be carried a like dis-to Chicago for not over $20 per car, and passengers would be carried a like dis-tance for less than I cent per mile. Citi-zens of Nebraska, stand by Van Wyck, yote for no man for member of the legislature who does not publicly pledge him-self to vote and work for Van Wyck.

CHICAGO GRAIN MARKET.

Circago, June 25 - Special Telegram to he Bre. !- The provision pit was again the center of attraction among the speculative pits on 'Change to-day, 'I don't think,' said a prominent broker, "that this advance is caused by anything more than some frightened shorts, helped by a few country buyers, who have heard that pork is going up, and want to go up with it. I see nothing in the market savoring very strongly of manipulation. The stuff sold comes mainly from local traders who, having bought the product on a lower market, can well afford to sell it." There was no particular excitement in pork, but the tone of the market all day was very strong, and a sympathetic strength to a considerable degree was contributed to lard and ribs. A few and unimportant stops were made by September pork from the time it opened at $9.30 until it reached $9.70. A lesser but proportionate advance was made by other hog products, all closing the morning session firm and steady.

WHEAT-It was more or less of an "off day" with wheat, the market doing hardly enough to dignify it by the name of speculative pit. A heavy tone prevailed at the opening when August wheat stood at 741/c. For an hoar the fluctuations were very close For an hour the fluctuations were very close around this agare, but they gradually picked up to 74% on rumors that Armour was buying. For these, however, there was very little foundation in sight. Later in the day prices settled back to 74% again, but subsequently picked up to 74% where the market stood at 12:30 o clock, later easing back to 74% (274% again, but assuming a sharp strengthen on bullish talk and local buying, spurling up to 75c just prior to 1 o clock, and closing firm at that upper. About all the groundsk was favorable igure. About all the crop talk was favorable, especially throughout the northwest and the winter wheat belt in the southwest. The second installment of new wheat, consisting of 2,000 sacks, reached St. Lonis to-day.

Cons—Corn was quiet but showed more strength owing to the sharp advance in provisions which helped to give operators courage. Shorts were the chief buyers and prices advanced $\frac{1}{2}\ellie{0}\gamma\text{c}\ \text{ and closed steady. July sold at $34\gamma\text{c}\(\text{c}\). August at $\frac{1}{2}\ellie{0}\text{c}\(\text{c}\), and both closed at 1 o'clock at outside figures.

OATS—Oats were quiet and easy early, but closed at outside figures. dosed at outside figures; July sold at 274 (q 27%c and closed at 20%c.

AFTERNOON BOARD—Wheat sold off 38c on the afternoon board on the non-confirmation of the report of a large quantity of wheat being contracted for in New York for ex-port, but subsequently recovered partially and closed at the call price, viz.; 14% c for August. Provisions were again strong and closed at very nearly the best prices of the day. 2:40 p. m.—August wheat puts 74%c, calls

CHICAO LIVE STOCK.

CHICAGO. June 25.-[Special Telegram to the BEE. |- CATTLE-So far as the demand was concerned there was little or no change to note as compared with yesterday. As to prices, some salesmen were of the opinion that they could get nearer to what they were asking than yesterday. Both buyers and sellers agreed that there would be a better clearance than vesterday and fewer carried over than for any day this week.
