Phil McShane's Crazy Freak. Last evening at ten minutes past 7 o'clock there was a violent collision of a single and double buggy at the corner of of five minutes the unfortunate meeting was followed by a series of accidents, which, in a less civilized town, would have been attended by a lynching. A few minutes before the time mentioned, Phil McShane, well known in this city, lrove in a phacton south on Fifteenth street past the postoffice. He was lashhis horse at almost every The attention of everybody attracted to his cruelty and the reckless speed at which he was urging his too willing horse. He turned west on Douglas street, and, a minute later, was seen flying east on the same with his whip. Buggies ran hither and thither out of his way, and nothing serious occurred until the corner of Fourteenth and Douglas streets was reached. Around that corner came a spirited team, a bay and a gray, driven by a Dr. Hamlin, a traveling veterinary surgeon, who makes his headquarters at Omaha. He was accompanied by Miss Carrie Mason, a young lady who acts as bookkeeper for P. M. Back, at the corner of Seventh and Pierce streets. The horses had just faced west in front of Fleming's grocery when suddenly the mad career of McShane's horse was brought to a temporary close by running into the pole of the team, breaking it off abruptly and driving one of the large splinters into one of the fore right legs of the bay horse, inflicting a severe cut and causing he blood to flow in a steady stream until ater staunched at the stable. One of the shafts of McShane's phacton was broken into three pieces by the collision. Before any of the occupants of the vehicle could realize the extent of the damage, Hamlin's spirited team turned toward the north, ran up Fourteenth, and with their broken pole soon collided with a hitching post in front of Connelly's liquor house. This contact overturned the vehicle and Dr. Hamlin and Miss Mason were thrown upon the pavement. The team rounded the corner of the alley and dashed madly up that opening to Fif-teenth street. There they turned south and drove every conveyance rapidly before them. When they reached the front of Kuhn's drug store, they suddenly turned east and crossed the street in the directon of McCaffrey's saloon. At this juncture, Mr. Scip Dundy, son of Judge Dundy, with his wife, rounded the corner, going north on Fifteenth street. Into their buggy the maddened team dashed. In an instant Dundy's buggy was over turned, and both his wife and himself thrown violently to the ground. Strange to say, the Dundy horse, at the moment of the accident stood stone will be the strength of the streng still, while the team ran slightly forward,

In an instant there were a thousand people on Douglas street making inquir-ies about the accident. Among them was Phil McShane, the man who was responsible for the trouble. He had scarcely ran into Hamlin's team before he turued his horse's head, and drove up in front of the Grand Union Tea company, where he left the rig in charge of a boy. He then started to Mc-Caffrey's corner, where, by this time, all the damage above outlined had taken place. In his haste to see the result of his folly, he reached a baby carriage containing the child of W. T. Burbridge. It taining the child of W. I. Burbridge. It stood in his way and was being pushed by the father of the child. He kicked the little wagon once or twice, and by this time a six-year-old boy, Benny Moore, son of a gentleman by the same name who has recently come to reside here, also got in his way and was rewarded for his pains by a kick in the mouth. Two of the little fellow's teeth were knocked out and his jaw was badly bruised. Burbridge immediately set upon McShane and dealt him several heavy blows on the nose and face, which caused the blood to flow. McShane was about to return Burbridge's blows when he was seized by a dozen hands, and blows rained upon him from all sides, until the blood ran in streams. What might ran in streams. What might have befallen him would be difficult to tell, had not the arrival of the police brought the matter to a close by taking him to the police station. On the way he attacked the officer and was clubbed for

The first victims of the collision, Dr. Hamlin and Miss Mason, were carried to Dr. Rutherford's office, right at the scene of the occurrence. The doctor's cheek bone was laid bare and Miss Mason's right shoulder bone was broken. The latter was taken to her bone, on the corner of Eighth and Pierce streets, where she was attended by the family physician. Mr. and Mrs. Dundy were badly shaken up and bruised, but it is not now known that either was seriously injured. McShane was drunk. He has been on a prolongd spree. He will have to pay, it is presumed, for the broken buggy he drove, the broken double buggy of Dr. Hamlin, the injured horse belonging to the same, the injury to Mr. Dundy's buggy and horse, and finally for being drunk and disorderly.

After the roll call, the first matter dis-

After the roll call, the first matter disposed of was the selection of apportion-ment basis for delegates to the coming convention. Several different proposi-tions were made and discussed, but finally it was decided that the different counties should be allowed one delegate for every 150 votes east for Regent of University Burnham at the last election, and one for every major fraction thereof, together with one delegate at large. Messrs, Wil-liam Seely, J. T. Clark and E. W. Peterson were appointed a committee to de termine the apportionment of delegates on this basis. A ten minute's recess was taken, after which the committee re-

The question of the place for holding the convention then scame up for decision. The fight was between the extreme eastern county delegates, who wanted Omaha, and the delegates from the middle and western counties who didn't. The latter were successful. The western delegates argued for Lincoln, because it was nearer to their homes. The Douglas delegates argued for Omaha, because it had the exposition building, and because its saloons didn't close at 10 o'clock at night. Neither of these were potent reasons in Omaha's favor and Lincoln walked away with the prize. The question was de-cided by a standing vote, which resulted largely in favor of the capital city. After deciding to call the convention on September 29, 1886, at 7 o'clock p. m., the committee adjourned.

CLOSING THE TERM. St. Philomena's School Ends It's

Summer Session. A large audience, including all the Catholic clergy of the city, assembled at St. Philomena's hall, corner of Ninth and Howard streets, to witness the closing exercises of the school. They were well repaid for attendance. Everything on the programme passed off in pleasing and perfect style. Each selection on the programme was rendered so as to bring forth encores that if all repeated would have continued the exercises for days instead of hours. The Rev. Father Carroll, of the cathedral, had the main charge of affairs, but of course the good Sisters of Mercy had "taught the young ideas how to shoot" and they hit the center of the target every time if last night's exhibition was a true specimen of their educational marksmanship. Miss McNaughton presided at the piano with her well-

TABOR COLLEGE.

Commencement Exercises of This Well Known Educational

Institution. Tabon, Ia., June 28 .- [Correspondence of the BEE.]-Among our western institutions of higher education Tabor college has won a deserved reputation as standing well in the front, and as its name and fame is not only local, but also popular throughout the whole interior, a few lines relative to its finishing touches this year may be acceptable to the readers of the BEE.

The annual feast of good things for the intellect comes a little later this year than usual, owing to a change in the college calendar.

The graduating exercises of the Phi Delta Literary society, at which it con-ferred diplomas upon six of its members, they being a majority of the senior class this year, while not considered a regular part of the commencement programme, provoked considerable interest, and the society's assembly room was well fiiled on Saturday evening in honor of this event.

Ed D. Brooks, '87, the outgoing president, being in the chair, the following programme was rendered:

The whole course was one of connected and studied thought, and an excellent and impressive advisory lesson for those soon to answer to the world the interrogatory, "What is Your Life."

Sabbath evening Rev. Williston, of Davenport, addressed the Young Men's and Young Woman's Christian associa-tions in an able and decidedly original paper, "What is The Special Force of Modern Christianity?" He reviewed the growth of the church, and its progress in knowledge he summed up by declaring that during the first three centuries the church was creeping or but just learning to walk; that at the time of the crusade it had discovered a little strength, and was accordingly using it. But that now, after sixty generations of study upon its anatomy, it had found the heart, and its present peculiar force could be described by two words, "concentrated human-itarianism."

MRS, CLEVELAND'S FORTUNE. How the President's Bride is Pro vided For By Her Grandfather.

Wans Aw, N. Y., June 29.—The will of the late Colonel J. B. Folsom, grandfather of President Cleveland's wife, was offered for probate to-day. None of the beirs were in attendance. "Cousin Ben" Folsom, of Buffalo, was here as attorney, and Dr. W. N Martin, of Folsomdale, was also present. Judge Healy received the affidavits of Lorin M. Kittsly and wife as the witnesses to the M. Kittsly and wife as the witnesses to the will and appointed Liovd. A. Hayward special guardian and Dr. W. N. Martin and L. M. Kittsly appraisers. The property amounts to $150,000, of which $25,000 is personal. The real estate lies in Omsha, Tekamah and Lincoln. Neb., and Attica and Folsomdale, N. Y. The home-stead of 200 acres is to be reserved intact with its appurtenances until the grandchildren who are minors reach their majority. The western property is to remain intact, as requested by Colonel Folsom's late brother, until ten years shall have clapsed, four hayuntil ten years shall have einseed, four hav-tog already expired. The will divides the property among his eight grandchildren share and share alike. Thus it will be seen that unless the western property increases, as it is expected to do, the president's wife will only receive about $20,000, instead of $50,000 as reported.

Funeral of Judge Davis.

BLOOMINGTON, III., June 29.-The obse-quies of David Davis occurred here this afternoon. The services were arranged by the family in strict accord with the quiet, family in strict accord with the quiet, modest tastes of the deceased. Nevertheless so general was the mourning and so universal the desire to accord to the distinguished dead the last poor honors of the earth, that the funeral assumed imposing proportions. The day was perfect, with bright sunshine and a cold breeze and the city was thronged with people. Business was practically suspended all day and entirely during the funeral service hours. A special train at noon brought Gov, Oglesby and staff and one hundred lawvers from Springfield, Decatur and Clinton. This morning Judge Gresham telegraphed from Indianapolis that he could not come owing to serious illness of his wife, and Col. R. B. Latham of Lincoln, was substituted. The remains lay in state in the west parlor of the Davis mansion from 9 a. m. to 2, p. m., and there was a constant stream of visitors to take a last look at the dead. The features were calm and peaceful and much less wasted than had been generally expected. The casket was of cedar, draped with black cloth and fringe. There were eight heavy silver handles and a massive plate bearing the inscription, "David David, born March 9, 1815; died June 26, 1886."

Resting on the casket were a wreath and star from the family, and at the head a floral star from the family, and at the head a floral star from the family, and at the head a floral star from the family, and at the head a floral star from the family, and at the head a floral star from the family, and at the head a floral star from the family, and at the head a floral star from the family, and at the head a floral star from the family, and at the head a floral star from the family, and at the head a floral star from the family, and at the head a floral star from the family, and at the head a floral star from the family, and at the head a floral star from the family, and at the head a floral star from the family, and at the head a floral star from the family, and at the head a floral star from the family and at the head a floral star from the f modest tastes of the deceased. There were many other beautiful offeribus, including a lovely combination of feather balms from Mrs. Justice Hunt, and a basket from the children of the State Soldier Orphans' home. At 3 o'clock the services commenced at the house. The officiating elergyman was Rey, W. G. Pierce, of Champaign, cousin of the first Mrs. Davis, who read episcobal service. Rev. F. S. Brush, of Bloomington, offered prayer, and a quartette sang "Abide with Me," and "Lead, Kindly Light." The procession to the grave was the most imposing ever witnessed here,

In the first carriage along with the honorary pail bearers were Judge Scott, Jesse W. Fell, Leonard Swett, Judge Blodgett, Judge Eaton, Judge Weldon, General McNulta, General Singleton, of Quincy, Robt, T. Lincoln, E. A, Stevenson and D. T. Littlie.

RING DUT THE OLD. Gladstone's Appeal to the People of

The time is not distant when I shall years. The time is not distant when I shall nay my debt to nature and these possibly are the last words I shall speak in Liverpool." Gladstone quoted from the ballad of "Chivy Chase." "The child unborn shall rue the opening of that day," and exclaimed: If idle and shallow pretexts bewilder the mind of the people, or if the power of wealth and rank overbear the national sense, the child unborn shall rue the voting of that day. I entreat you to resolve that the civilized world land's Poland. She has had it long enough.
