«AGENT JAMES' SMALL AFFAIR |

The Law and Order League's Agent Arrested For Adultery.

PARIS THROUGH AMERICAN EYES

Mr. George Homan's Death-Figures Won't Lie-The School Board-The Home Team Wins-Other Local.

A Little Out of Order.

"What's the matter now?" asked Marshall Cumming as Agent James of the Law and Order league walked into the jali yesterday evening at 7 o'clock, evidently in charge of a Lincoln policeman.

"I've been arrested," replied James, and when asked on what charge said and when asked on what charge said: "They say I've been sleeping with another man's wife." The officers would hardly credit James' remark until he produced the warrant upon which he had been placed in custody. The war-rant was from Judge Parsons of the Lincoln pollee court and charges that on "Juc 19 John D. James, at Lincoin, Neb., then and there being a married man, did hold unlawlul sexual intercourse with Mrs. Jennie Small, a married woman." Mrs. Jennie Smail, a married woman. The warrant was issued upon a complaint made by J P. Chiperman of Lincoln. The arrest had been made by Officer Malone, of the Lincoln police force, who was accompanied by Bernard Dolan, Esq., a Lincoln attorney. Mr. James was very much excited over the affair and was bitter in his promises of the revenge he would have ont of the man who signed the complaint. He denounced the whole matter as a blackmailing scheme which he alleged had been commenced by the people whom he had been prosecuting at Lincoln under the Law and Order league's direction.

direction. "Do you know Mrs. Jennie Small?" nsked a Bie representative. "Yes, sir. I met her on the train and went as far as Lincoln with her. She has a brother in Lincoln, D. M. Thurston, an insurance man, and I called upon her while I was in the city. She lives at Grand Haven, Mich., and is a perfect lady. I can get her affidavit that the charges are false. That's all there is to it. I will tight it to the bitter end."

Notwithstanding the emphatic assur-ance of Mr. James that there was nothing more to the case, Mr. Dolan, the Lincoln attorney was sought out and asked for a statement of the charges against the representative of the Law and Order league. He made a statement of the alleged facts in the case substantially as follows:

The complaint was made by J. P. Chiperman, a Lincoln butcher and a re-sponsible man, who will back his statements by affidavits. During his stay in Lincoln James occu-pied a room at the residence of Mrs. pied a room at the residence of Mrs. Snow where he gave his name as H. O. Day. In the third week in June he rented a furnished room of Mrs. Chiperman, over her husband's butcher shop giving his name as John A. Logan and saying that he expected his wife to arrive on Saturday. Mr. Chiperman says that on Saturday a woman arrived whom James called Jennie, and repre-sented as his wife. The counte were very sented as his wife. The couple were very affectionate, so much so that Mrs. Chip-erman informed her husband of a suspicon she held that they were not mar-ried. Mr. Chiperman accordingly eyed them and is ready to make an allidavit that he watched them through the keyhole in the door and saw them undress and retire together and afterwards saw them in the performance of the act charged in the information. Afterwards a letter was found in the room addressed to 'Mrs. Jennie Small, Warrenstown, Wyoming,' which confirmed Mrs. Chiperman's first suspicions. Mr. ank Mrs. Chiperman watched them further and claim to have in the course of a casual conversation, "are very indifferently served in the way of French news by the associated press. As a matter of fact, there is no direct serof cases, coming from London. As a consequence, France and French politics are seen by Americans through English spectacles colored by English prejudices and British insular narrowness. Paris is a world in itself, delightful by reason of the varied pleasures it affords, literary and aesthetic, and the activity and color of its current life. There is something in France and the French which is par-ticularly attractive to the American, perhaps their accessibility to ideas, the ab-sence of contracting projudices and their evident enjoyment of life, with so much around them to make life enjoyable. And France too is interested in America and takes kindly to Americans. Ameri-can topics are discussed intelligently in can topics are discussed intelligently in the French journals and American ideas find frequent roots in Parisian soil. The American capacity for work is much re-spected, but the true Parisian feels that an equal amount can be accomplished with less effort. He rises at ten or half past, has his breakfast served in his room and rarely shows himself to the world and rarely shows timsel to the world until noon. From noon till early morn-ing are his working hours, in which he will perhaps, if a journalist write his feullerton, attend the races, stroll into the opera, pass a few moments at the theatre and find at odd intervals time to chat with a dozen friends, dash off a review or fight a duel in the Bois. The ex-pulsion of the princes, O yes, that is quite generally regarded as a mistake whose only effect has been to show the factionalism of the republicans and the weakness of their organization. The reception given by the Comte de Paris was the prime cause, the comments of the press the efficient cause and the rivalry between Clemenceau and De Freycinet the final cause. The count's reception was largely attended and among those present to do him honor were a number of prominent republicans. This fact was taken up and commented on extensively by the republican press with such vigor in fact that Clemenceau who is France's coming man, thought t use it as a lever to over throw De Freycinet. Neither, at heart wished the expulsion. DeFreycinet shrewdly, however, turned the tables on shrewdly, however, turned the tables on Clemenceau by trumping his card and urged the bill through the deputies to save his ministry. France does not ap-prove the mode. A popular vote would prove this conclusively. The Bonapartes are harmlese. The Orleanists have been quiet, cultured citizens of the republic, awakening few consistent and refraining from publical artistical. The whole of from political agitation. The whole af-fair was the result of factional strife, not of public necessity. Mr. Stanton is visiting his sister, Mrs. F. B. Lawrence, in Council Bluffs, and will sail shortly for his home in Paris.

GEORGE W. HOMAN'S DEATH.

An Old Settler of Omaha Passes Peacefully to His Reward.

Thirty years ago the men who comprised the population of Omaha might be enumerated on one's fingers. Some of them were young, tresh and enthusiastic, while others had experienced the trials and viciositddes incidental to a life of business activity, exceeding energy and indomitable perseverance. Among the latter was George W. Homan. Among them he is counted no more, because at about 6 o'cloc last evening, his career which has given him a name in two parts of the country, was brought to a close, by his not unexpected death. He died at the southwest corner of Howard and Fourth streets. Thirty years ago, the business and so-cial features of life in this part of the world, depended upon the risk the immigrant to these parts was disposed to undertake. The city and state were in a formative condition. The evidences of the physical progress were wanted, though the domand for men of intelligence and training was largely in excess of the supply, and yet, uny with free text books were referred to the swered the demand are still within the reach of admiration. But few of them committee on text books. passed away, though as goes by their long-maintained have the committee on supplies. The board then adjourned to meet one time ranks break before the advance of death. To the list of those who have passed from life, the name of Mr. G. W. Homan has at last been added. 'The career of this gentleman has been one which has extended through almost four score

FIGURES WON'T LIE. The Prices at the Chicago and the Omaha Stock Yards. The following is an excellent exhibit of the highest and lowest prices paid for hogs, on the Chicago and Omaha live stock market, on the last for days of the past week. The prices are given per cwt, live weight, and are compiled from the actual sales reported as being transacted on the market:

The highest prices on the Chicago market were for choice, heavy and light weights, where the buyer was allowed to sort up his ho is to a certain extent, and the lower prices were for rough and mixed hogs. On the Omaha market the hogs are all sold mixed: that is, sold by the load just as they are shipped in from the country, which, as will be seen at once, gives Chicago the advantage in once, gives Chicago the advantage in being able to make a show of higher prices. In other words, the Omaha fig-ures represent the prices paid for whole loads, while the Chicago figures represent the prices paid for the best hogs, with some of the worst thrown out, which have to be sold as culls at a low price, and which, if figured in with the rest, would bring down the average considerably lower. It will be seen by the above table that on June 30, hogs were sold on the Omaha market for 20@40c per hundred less than in Chicago. On July 1, Omaha was only 74@35c lower than Chicago, and on the 2d and 3d Omaha was 15@30c and 10@35c below Chicago. When it is taken into consideration that shippers usually figure on 50c per hundred as the average cost of transportation, loss from shrinkage, etc., between Omaha and Chicago, it is evident that hogs are bringing much better prices in Omaha than Chicago. Again, prices in Omaha than Chicago. Again, commission men charge for selling hogs $6.00 per car in Chicago and $5.00 in Omaha. In Chicago the yardage is &c per head and in Omaha 7c. The charges for corn fed to hogs in the yards in Chi-cago is $1.00 per bushel. All these charges have to be taken out of the selling price, which will bring the net price in Chicago still will bring the net price in Chicago still lower in proportion than in Omaha. The whole subject was summed up as follows by an old shipper, who remarked: "I have shipped hogs to Chicago for the past ten years, and have nothing against it as a market, and shall always send my hogs there so long as I am shipping from a country that is tributary to that city, but I want to say right here that western lowa and Nebraska are no longer tributary to Chicago. Every country shipper in Nebraska who sends a load of hogs to Chicago instead of Omaha is, at the present time, losing from 10@25e per cwt. I ought to know for I have tried it about as many times as any of them and would be several hun-dred dollars better off if I had made up my mind to it sooner. They will all learn it after a little and will kick them-selves because they were so slow to learn."

The School Board.

The July meeting of the board of education was held last evening. The meeting was called to order by Mr. H. J Davis in the absence of both the president and vice president of the board. President Points afterwards arrived and assumed the duties of the presiding officer.

Miss Eiden was elected teacher of the Farnam summer school. The committee on claims reported, favorably upon the allowance of bills amounting to $1,600. The report was adopted. The bids for the erection of the Georgia avenue school were referred to the committee on buildings and grounds. The proposals for supplying the school

He was name, however, and while a tter his right shoulder in a fearful manner. Picketts, during the series of games, proved themselve good ball players and clever gentlemen. The only unpleasant occurrence of their visit was the cowardly action of their pretty man, a dude named Girard, in intentionally jumping against Rock-well in yesterday afternoon's game and knocking him down. abundant evidence to substantiate their charges." "Do you know D. M. Thurston, the in-surance man of Lincoln?" asked the reporter. "I don't think there is any such man in Lincoln.

"What interest have you in the case?" "I have been retained by certain Lincoln parties who are interested in the Case

"And are these 'interested parties' the men whom James has been prosecuting?" Mr. Dolan declined to answer the question, but as he proceeded to censure the action of James in closing up Sunday picnics, beer gardens, races, etc., in Lincoln, the inference drawn would warrant an affirmative reply to the question.

After leaving Mr. Dolan the reporter met Agent James at the corner of Doug-las and Fifteenth streets in the act of posting a letter addressed to "Mrs. Jennie Small.

"I met her at the depot. She was going to Lincoln to see her brother and 1 rode out with her. Her brother did not meet her at the train and she had no place to go so I got a furnished room for her and afterwards called upon her there.

With this explanation which does not clear up matters much Mr. James caught a passing car and started for his home.

Marshal Cummings has given the Lincoin officer a guarantee that James will appear in Lincoln to-day to answer to the charge made against him and he was ac-cordingly released.

Officer Mahone, who made the arrest of ames, states in addition to the above, James. that Mr. Chiperman will swear that when he saw James and Mrs. Small in the room together, James drew a revolver and told Mrs. Small he would kill her if she ever said a word about what had occurred between them.

THE AFTERNOON GAME. Over six hundred people witnessed the final game of the series between the Union Pacifies and the Picketts, of Chicago, at Athletic park yesterday after-noon. The Picketts were smarting under the loss of the first two games, and went into the afternoon game with blood in their eye. They found the Union Pacifics ready for them, and the result was that the game was the most hotly contested one of the series. The Whalen brothers formed the Picketts' battery, while Ban-dle and Salisbury held down the boxes for the home team. Both nines played for the game from the first, and made the contest an exciting one. The first mning's result was marked by a goose egg for each nine. The Union Pacifics failed to score in the second while the Picketts got one man across the home plate. In the third inning the home team got in five runs and were followed by the Picketts with four, making a tre at the end of the third. In the fourth the Uniou Pacifies scored twice and shut tha visitors out and repeated the dose in the fifth, making one score themselves.
