The Chicago & Rock Island photograph car, with a corps of artists, was here yesterday to take views of Fairmount park and Cut-Off lake. The railway company is gathering up views of interest and beauty all along its line, and will publish them in due time.

Two young men are working the city for a new directory. There is need of a first class directory, none having been issued for years past. A poor directory is not wanted, however, as the city has had enough of these. If the work proves to be of the right kind it will meet a long felt want.

The Railroad Section Foreman is the name of a new paper published at Mount Auburn, Ia., in the interests of the rail-way employes as the name indicates. Its columns are filled with a class of news of peculiar interest to railway men, and the field is a larger one than would seem at first thought.

A number of the Knights Templar went to Harlan to institute a commandery there last night. Among those who went from here were Sir Knights Wade Cary, T. J. Mackey, J. C. Hoffmayer, T. B. Lacy, Ed. It is said that the Omaha Boat club has sent a man over to Manawa lake to inspect the same and make a report to e club with an idea of removing from their Cut-off lake. It is claimed that this committee of one is very favorably impressed with the lake, beach, etc., and his report will be such that no doubt the club will take some action.

The passionist brothers, Charles, John and Alexis, are holding a mission at the Catholic church this week, the meetings being for the men. Last week the meet-ings were for the women. They are earnest, cloquent speakers, and seem to be doing a great work. Last Sunday they were in Weston, and went out yes terday forenoon to finish the work there. The meetings here will be held every evening and all are invited,

A new bath house was erected at Cutoff lake yesterday, the same capacity as that put up last week. The new one will be for gents and the other for ladies. A new boat flouse is being put up at Marks' landing, and is to be used for private feet of railing and posts have been put in Another poor unfortunate has been picked up and taken to the city jail for care. He is evidently suffering from some disease which affects his head, and is so weak as to be unable to stand. He gives his name as James O'Brien, and says the last place he worked in was Fort Riley. He gives a very mixed ac-count of himself, but insists that he was in jail in Omaha for a month and that he was brought across the river yesterday by two officers, who left him here, while they turned back to the big city over the way. A LAKE IN FAIRMOUNT PARK.

A Broadway Saloonkeeper Victimized With a Bogus Check-Base Ball - Minor Mentions and Personals.

A Lake in Fairmount Park. The eraze over Cut-off lake, Manhattan beach, and surrounding bathing and boating places, has demonstrated the fact that Council Bluffs is eager for some such treathing and playing spot. It is evident that a summer resort within easy access of the city will not lack for patronage. There is a general feeling of uncertainty as to Mannattan beach, it not being certain but that another year may bring many changes, by the river changing its course, or by some other of the many causes which render the shores of the Missouri so shifting. This uncertainty make needed improvements there in any permanent form. If it was certain that it would continue to be as favorable a resort as now, it would pay to make easy roads for teams and launch some steamers and sail boats. The enthusiasm already shown has caused considerable discussion about the necesity for some such resort and the best way to supply

A plan is being talked up for making Fairmount park just such a place as is needed. It is located within walking distance from the heart of the city. It is one of the most beautiful natural parks in the whole country. There is abundance of room, a variety of scenery, shady trees, in fact every needed feature for one of the most popular resorts except water. If there can be a water supply water. If there can be a water supply the place will be made complete. It is suggested that the natural basin for a little lake already exists. All that would be needed would be to dam a short dis-tance on the southern end of the "horse-shoe." There would needs be some arrangement made so that the bottom would be made to hold the water, the soil being porous. The expense, as roughly estimated, would not reach the amount necessary to improve almost any other resort within reach of the city. The expense would be trifling in comparison with what is usually ex-pended on providing any such place. With a nice little lake, on which boats could move about, with other water at tractions, the place could be made a favorite resort for thousands, where it is now visited by hundreds.

It is also suggested in connection with the same plan that the privileges could be sold by the park commissioners for quite a sum-enough to go a long ways towards paying the expenses of main taining such a public resort. The boat ing privilege, lee cream and refresh-ment booths, quoiting, bowling alleys, or any other legitimate sports which the commissioners would allow there would pay handsome revenue. In the winter he same lake could be used for skating carnivals, the high banks protecting from the winds. It is thought that the plan can be carried out, and the park made a great resort for the people of this

There has been some question as to how such an artificial lake can be filled. Investigation is to be made as to the ad-visability of making some arrangement with the water works company. Another idea suggested is the sinking of a well. Some way can doubtless be found, as it is done in other cities. Conneil Bluffs has the advantage of all other cities in having a park which is so arranged by nature that little expense is required for fuling or cutting, and with the banks of the lake already made, it seems that ways can certainly be devised for furnishing

The park commissioners are willing to go into the improvement of the park so far as the means would allow. The peo-ple would doubtless see to it that they have all the means necessary if plans can be matured by which all will have free access to a park which will at the same time be a summer resort.

A Trick Turned.

Hans Christoferson, a young German who keeps a saloon on Broadway, thinks he is the victim of misplaced confidence, and others are quite sure he is. A young man who has been at work on the government building, giving his name as J. L. Burg, has been acquainted with him for two or three weeks only. Last Friday Burg had a check for $18.50, signed by J B. Anderson, which he said he had re ceived for his pay, the men being paid off in checks instead of cash. Burg said he had been down to the bank to get it cashed, but the bank refused to cash it, the check being drawn on the First National bank of Omaha, and Burg being a stranger. The bank folks had told him they would eash it if some Council Bluffs man whom they knew would endorse it. Christoferson was willing to accommodate him to this extent and so endorsed the check. The fellow got the cash and disappeared, saying he was going to Davenport but would be back to day. The check was sent over to Omaha, but thrown out there, they knowing no such party as the one whose signature appeared on the check. Christoferson made inquiry and learned that the men were not paid off in checks, but in currency. He also learned that Burg had told the men at the government building that he had to go over to Omaha on account of the death of a brother, and would be back Monday morning to go to work again. An information was filled work again. An information was filed against him before Justice Schurz yesterday, but he has probably put such a dis-tance between himself and Council Bluffs, by this time, that he will hardly be caught and brought back.

FOR THE LAWYER'S SCRAP-BOOK.

Some Recent Legal Decisions on Im-

Notice of loss to express company: The receipt of any express company for articles intrusted to it contained the fol-lowing stipulation: "This company is not to be liable in any manner, or to any extent, for any loss, damage, or detention of such package, or its contents, or of any portion thereof, occasioned by the acts of God" or the public enemy, mobs, riots, and other defined casualties, "unlessispecially insured by this company and so specified in this receipt. In no event is this company to be liable for a greater sum than that above mentioned, nor shall it be liable for any such loss unless the claim therefor shall be made in writin gat this office within thirty days from this date.' A package of money for which the receipt was given was lost, but no notice of the loss was given until six or seven months after the date of the receipt. The trial court ruled that the stipulation for notice of loss in thirty days from date applied only to the case of loss by the act of God or other speci-fied causes. The supreme court, how-ever, reversed this ruling, holding that the words "such loss" had no reference to the means by which the loss was occasloned, but that notice was necessary and proper where the loss was occaioned by means which would not excuse the company. (Southern Express com-pany vs. Glenn et al.; supreme court of Arbitration in building societies: Where the rules of building societies in England provided for the settlement of all disputes between the societies and members by arbitration these included disputes arising out of mortgage deeds between them, and, therefore, suits at law could not be brought upon such disputes. In 1884 the building societies' amendment act was passed, and in this it was declared that the word "disputes" in the rules of a society should only refer o disputes between a society and a member 'in his capacity as a member.'" and should not apply to any dispute "as to the construction and effect of a mortgage deed" made between them. A construction of this definition was recently given by the English court of appeals in a suit brought by the Western Suburban Building society against a member to recover a sum of money alleged to be due him upon a mortgage. The court held that the dispute was not with the member in his capacity as a member, but as a mortgagor, and therefore that the action could brought. Imperfect Incorporation: Certain persons undertook to associate themselves together as a corporation, but the proper steps were not taken. Contracts were made by these persons as a corporation, and the creditors sued them individually and recovered a judgment. On appeal the judgment was affirmed, the court holding that the attempt to become incor-porated but not having been completed was ineffectual to limit the individual liability of the associates, and upon any contract which they may be found to have authorized to be made, or which they may have ratified, although in terms the contract was made as the contract of the association or assumed corporation the members may be held to an individual responsibility. (Johnson vs. Corser, Supreme court of Minnesota.)

Unauthorized Insertion in a Note: A note signed in blank authorizes the party to whom it is delivered to till in the blanks in respects essential to the completeness of the note as a note, such as the date, the amount, the name of the payee, and the place of payment, but this does not authorize the holder to crowd into the body of the note a stipulation in no manner essential to the note as a complete in strument. Thus the insertion of a clause providing that a note would bear after maturity a greater rate of interest than the rate allowed by law was unauthor-ized, and such an unauthorized insertion would release an accommodating indorser from liability on such a note. (Never-hauser vs. Dunn; court of appeals of New

Continuance of Business Under Assignment: Where a deed in trust for the enetit of creditors, conveying a stock of merchandise and a growing crop, con-tained a recital to the effect that the maker wished the business to be carried on for three years or longer by the trustee, authorized the trustee to buy new goods for the purpose of replenish-ing the stock, and provided that the maker should be retained to assist the thority, it was held that such deed was void on its face. (Lowenstein et al. vs. Love et al.; supreme court of Tennessee.)

Limitation of Sureties Liability: The sureties on an agent's bond, given for the faithful performance of his business of selling and leasing sewing machines. Were held not liable for the price of machines sold to the agent nor for the payment of notes taken from the agent in payment of his debt to them. It was pay the notes was not a breach of the bond. (The Weed Sewing Machines Company vs. Winchell, Supreme Court of Indiana.)

Homestead Exemption: When a debtor reserves the right of homestead in a deed of trust for the benefit of creditors a creditor who accepts the provisions of the deed, by sharing in the distribution under it, cannot afterward subject the homestead to the payment of the balance of his debt. (Hasty's Heirs vs. Berry; Court of Appeal of Kentucky.)

Construction of Insurance Policy: An insurance policy on a dwelling house contained a provisjon exempting the insurance company from liability for any loss or damage arising white the premises were "vacant or unoccupied." The premises had been leased to a tenant who moved out, however, three months before the building was destroyed by a tornado On the ground that some articles of furniture were still left in the house a claim was made under the policy, but it was held that the building was "vacant or unoccupied" within the terms of the provision, and judgment was ordered rendered for the company. (Sexton vs. The Hawkeye Insurance Company; Supreme Court of Iowa. Bribery at Primary Elections: An act to prevent bribery and fraud at nominating elections and conventions is a lawful exercise of legislative power. The Pennsylvania act of 1881 is one of the election laws of the commonwealth, and any per son violating it falls under the disqualifi cation imposed by the constitution. It was contended on behalf of the defendant that primary elections are not elections at all within the meaning of the constitution, and that a statute regulating them is not an election law. That they come within the mischief intended to be remedied is too plain for argument. Under our form of government a vast sys-tem of political machinery has grown up by which elections have been for many years practically controlled. It is so farreaching in its effects that the people have, in many instances, little to do at the poils beyond the ratification of what had been already done by nominating conventions. Such conventions have often been controlled by the very influences which the constitution and the act of 1881 seek to strike down. The con-stitution must be construed liberally so as to carry out, and not defeat, the purpose for which it was adopted. If we give it the narrow construction claimed for it a candidate for office might resort to all manner of bribery and fraud in procuring his nomination; yet if he conduct himself properly after his nomina-tion he could wholly evade the constitu-tional prohibition. This applies with special force to cases where a nomination is the equivalent to an election. In such instance the nominee may well be an honest man between his nomination and election, for he has no motive to be a rogue. By the words "any election law" the framers of the constitution and the people who adopted it evidently meant to include any act which the legislature might thereafter enact for the purpose of purifying our elections. The act of 1881 was passed to give effect to this constitutional provision, and it matters little at what stage of the campaign the fraud is committed. It is as much an election law when it strikes at the fraud at the primary election as when it arrests the fraudulent ballot just as it is ready to be dropped into the box at the general election. We would belittle the consti-tution and fritter away one of its best and wisest provisions were we to give it the narrow, technical construction claimed for it by this defendant. (Leonard vs. Commonwealth; Supreme Court of Pennsylvania) Free Pass-Non-Liability of Railroad: The keeper of a restaurant at a railway station employed a lad to sell sandwiches, etc., on trains, and obtained for him : free pass. At the time of his death the deceased was traveling on the pass for his own purposes. The pass stipulated that the company should not be liable under any circumstances for any personal njury sustained while riding upon it, in consequence of the negligence of any of he company's servants, or otherwise Held, that the pass was gratuitous and without consideration, and that the stipulation was valid, although the deceased was a minor, and his death was the result of the negligence of the defendant's servants. (Griswold vs. New York & New England R. Co.; Supreme Court of Errors of Connecticut.) False Imprisonment—Client Responsible for Acts of His Attorney: A., as at-torney for B, brought an action against C., and recovered a judgment. Execu-tion was issued thereon, and A's clerk, seeing the execution in the office of A., and deeming it needed attention, went before a master in chancery for S. county and applied for a certificate, upon which was arrested. The arrest was illegal, C. not being a resident of S. county, and having no place of business there. A.'s in procuring the certificate and causing the arrest acted without the knowledge of or any instructions from A. or B. Held, that B. was liable for the acts of A. or his clerk in making the false arrest. (Shattuck vs. Bill; Mass. San Led Court) Sup. Jud. Court.)

MALARIA

"If people could only know what a splendid medicine Simmons Liver Regulator is there would be many a physician without a patient and many an interminable doctor bill saved. I consider it infallible in malarial infection. I had for many years been a perfect physical wreck from a combination of complaints, all the outgrowth of malaria in my system, and even under the skillful hand of Dr. J. P. Jones, of this city, I had despaired of ever being a well woman again. Sim-mons Liver Regulator was recommended to me. I tried it; it helped me, and it is the only thing that ever did me any good. I persevered in its use and am now in perfect health. I know the medicine cured me, and I always keep it as a
