General Agent Burns, of the Union Pacific, is having his outworn office fitted up. It is at No. 506 First avenue, and when completed will be a big accommodation to the merchants of this city.

The new Union Pacific bridge is to be completed by the first of May next. It is predicted that if weather is favorable, the public will be surprised by seeing the bridge finished two months earlier than the schedule time.

The big tin in which revival services are to be held has arrived, and now comes the query, who can fill it? There is talk of getting Sam Jones. If he is secured then another and larger tent will be needed. He would draw people for many miles around.

Hans Christofson has returned from Rock Island, where he went for J. L. Burg, who passed a forged check on him for $18.50 recently. He caught his man, but he had worked the forged check business in Rock Island, and he had given him the jail there until the next term of court, after which he will be brought here and tried for the last offense.

The Nonpareil, which howls so much about encouraging home enterprises, is starting a war against the popular resort at Manawa lake. She says that there is danger of getting malaria by bathing there. With the old lady's extreme circulation, and her previous habits in regard to cleanliness, it might be dangerous for her to take a bath there, or anywhere. She ought to let the young folks go on with their fun, though. It don't hurt her.

The late dummy train at night is getting to be almost as uncertain as an election jury. It is supposed to leave Omaha at 11:10 p. m., but when there is any switching to be done the freights have the right of way, and the dummy train with the passengers wait. Saturday night the dummy train did not reach Council Bluffs until after 12 o'clock, and this is said to be a common occurrence. When the new bridge is done with its double track, there will be an end to these delays and uncertainties, it is hoped.

At the regular meeting of Abe Lincoln post, G. A. R., Saturday evening, Rev. Dr. McCreary, pastor of the Broadway Methodist church, and a comrade, made an interesting address, which was listened to closely and warmly applauded. He related in a vivid manner some of the experiences of the war, and revived the memory events of the past. The thanks of the post were given him for his able effort to entertain and enthrall. This series of Saturday night addresses is a very pleasant feature of the meetings, and Dr. McCreary's address takes rank as one of the best.

One of the city papers says travel on the street cars is improving. If the fact could be recalled that the street cars themselves were improved it would be more gratifying. Such rickety, leaky old boxes as are being drawn by consumptive rats over a street of rust about once an hour or so ought to be replaced with something more than a promise of better things. Council Bluffs people have been very patient. With a growing city and a declining street car service there is a lack of harmony. If the company will put on decent cars, extend the track and run a street car line, instead of a broken down bus line, they will find that Council Bluffs will patronize it liberally.

The Union Pacific Investigation. Attorney Poppleton, of the Union Pacific, has completed his brief in the matter of the recent investigation held here by Iowa's railway commissioners. The citizens' attorneys, Sapp & Pusey, will not probably have their brief ready before the first of next month, and a decision by the commissioners can hardly be expected except for winter reading.

THIEVES AND THEIR TRICKS.

The Broadway Depot of the Union Pacific Loses Its Till and Its Cash.

A POOR JOB OF SAFE CRACKING.

Death of Young Pickering—A Coal Man Short in His Cash—The New Fire Alarm—A Narrow Escape.

Robbing the Union Pacific.

Yesterday noon the Broadway depot of the Union Pacific railroad was gone through by thieves. The agent was at dinner, and the waiting room was left open for the accommodation of the public. During his absence someone forced up the window between the waiting room and the office, and crawling through there, got the till and its contents, amounting to over $100, a large portion of which was in silver. The theft was not discovered until the return of the agent. The police then went to work on the case, and they took in charge on suspicion a fellow named Charles Good, who was sitting in the depot waiting to take the train for Omaha. Good denied knowing anything about the affair, and said that when he came to the depot there were four other persons waiting there, and the window of the office was open. He was taken to the police station and searched, but only $1.25 found upon him. Good had a rather unsavory record here, and hence the suspicions of the police were directed to him, and they concluded to hold him for further investigation. He is a white man, but was some time ago arrested here for insisting on visiting the bed of a husky, dusky woman. He promised to leave the city at that time, and was let off easy. This time he went right back to his colored love, and claims that he lost a pocketbook there containing about $20 and a large number of notes, amounting to about $80. He thinks it very hard luck to lose his money, and then be arrested for stealing somebody else's money. An examination of his baggage disclosed the fact that he is in the cane business, running a street stand with rings to be thrown. He had in his valise one pair of socks, two night shirts, no day shirt, two dozen collars and about three dozen pairs of cuffs. His being so short on shirts and so long on collars and cuffs looks queer, and another strange point about his baggage is that his collars and cuffs are marked with so many different names as to make one believe that they are the leaves of a linen photograph album instead of being cuffs. The names of W. A. Ford, Goldwin and various other marks and names appear on the linen. It may be that he is in the laundry business, and makes collars and cuffs a specialty. The rest of his toilet is rather scanty.

Sands on the Beach.

The water in Lake Manawa has gone down some three feet in the week. Booths of every description are being erected on the beach, and it is slowly beginning to look like the eastern resorts minus their large hotels.

Geo. W. Thompson has returned from Chicago, where he purchased seven row boats and a sail boat, which are to be put on the lake as soon as they arrive. The row boats are coming by express and one or two are now arriving daily. C. H. Cory is also interested in the boats with Mr. Thompson.

With the fancy colored bathing suits that are daily arriving the beach now has a gay appearance.

Yesterday morning the crowd began to arrive on the beach, both by the drive and on foot as early as 10 o'clock, one party of about twelve having reached there before 6 o'clock. The crowd was continual until 11 o'clock last night and the beach, as viewed from the north side of the lake yesterday, was a continual black mass.

Life-lines should be run out from the beach for those not knowing how to swim, to hang onto, and some kind of signal or notice erected where the drop-off is so people will not walk off over their head without knowing it.

Cracking the Safe.

It was discovered yesterday morning that during the previous night thieves had entered Sullivan & Fitzgerald's grocery store on Broadway. They had gained an entrance through the transom over the rear door, and were evidently too much bent on cracking the safe to pay any attention to carrying off sugar and soap. They had broken the handle of the safe, and knocked off the dial of the combination lock, this apparently being done with a sledge hammer instead of powder. An eight-pound sledge and two carpenter's chisels were found lying upon the floor of the store. The fellows had apparently been off before they succeeded in getting into the safe and had not stopped to pick up their tools. These tools were identified as being a part of those stolen from Schultz & Hill's wagon shop about a week ago. Sullivan & Fitzgerald's store was burglarized a few months ago, and at that time the thieves used stolen tools, a brace and bit having been taken from Judge Aylesworth's barn for that purpose. At that time the burglar was nabbed, but he escaped afterwards by breaking from the city jail.

The Normal Institute.

The normal institute now in session at the Bloomer building is proving very successful and interesting. There are in attendance nearly two hundred and fifty teachers and those who expect to teach. Professor J. R. Kirk, of Bethany, Mo., is the conductor. He has also charge of the history classes. Professor McNaughton, superintendent of the Council Bluffs schools, has charge of the grammar classes. Professor W. C. Davis, of Avoca, is serving as instructor in arithmetic. Professor Lowry, of Oakland, has charge of the geography classes. Mrs. Ware has charge of the primary work, and the institute as a whole is being managed by County Superintendent Laird.

The sessions will continue until the 26th. The examinations will be on Thursday and Friday of that week.

The public generally is invited, and at any of the sessions, or upon any of the classes, will find much to interest them. The teachers are getting much practical help from this gathering, and the corps of instructors is certainly an excellent one.

Figuring on Fire Alarms.

The council committee held a private meeting Saturday evening to consider the fire alarm propositions now pending before the council. The contest, as most know, is between the Richmond and the Gamewell systems. Mr. Chandler, representing the Gamewell system, and Mr. McCullough, the representative of the Richmond, were before the committee, to give such information as the aldermen desired. Each system has special claims to merit, and the committee was enabled to enlighten itself greatly. The Gamewell is an old system which plants itself largely on its record, but the Richmond has many supporters here among those who have examined the matter. The Richmond claims to furnish not only a perfectly reliable fire alarm, but also a police alarm, the city getting both for what it would cost for either one alone. The advantage of having a system for police calls as well as fire calls is presented by the Richmond as one of its great features. The committee is to make its report at the meeting of the council to-morrow night.

The Sad End Comes.

George F. Pickering, who met with an accident Thursday night, died at the Pacific house Saturday evening. It was seen from the first what the result must be, so that his passing away was no surprise to the sorrowing friends who were in attendance at his bedside. The sadness of the event was no less, however, and the tenderest sympathy is felt for those upon whom the blow comes with such terrible force. The remains were placed in an elegant casket, and yesterday morning were taken to his home in Boone for burial. They were to be met on arrival by a delegation of his school mates and the members of his class in the high school. George was a great favorite with young and old, and in his home he was one of the kindest and most obedient of boys. His father, Phil Pickering, is one of the oldest engineers on the Chicago & Northwestern railway, and widely known in railway circles.

Wanted in Kansas City.

Some three weeks ago the police received word that a young man named W. H. Lozier was wanted at Kansas City and that it was thought he was hiding in this vicinity. The search resulted in locating him in Garner township, where he had his wife and child with him. Chief Matthews and Officer O'Brien went out there Saturday and, finding him, brought him in to the county jail to await the arrival of the officers from Kansas City. The charge is made against him that he is guilty of forgery and of purloining some tickets while he was in the employ of the Topeka, Atchison & Santa Fe railway. Special Agent H. L. Ketchum, of the company, arrived here yesterday morning to take the young man back, but he found that the young man had already begun proceedings to get released on a writ of habeas corpus. The petition was filed soon after the arrest of Lozier, and is to come up before Judge Aylesworth this morning.

A Coal Man Short.

A. C. Andrews, who has been the manager of the Tipton Coal company's business in this city, is said to be in trouble. He left here last week, and has not been heard from since. He was seen by some acquaintance at Shenandoah, after leaving here, but this is as far as he can be traced. His wife and two children are still here, their home being on Fourth street. The company has taken the office of the office, No. 808 Main street, and it is claimed that an examination of the books thus far indicates that Andrews has run behind in his accounts about $2,000. He has been here about two years, and the statements now flying about concerning his transactions here are a surprise to many. It is said that there is a woman in the case.

Narrow Escape From Drowning.

Yesterday morning M. F. Hudson and a gentleman friend came near being drowned in Lake Manawa off Manhattan beach. They were in bathing and after shoving a row boat out into the lake attempted to swim after it. Hudson was exhausted; his friend tried to rescue him and in the attempt also became exhausted and cried for help. William Schickantanz who was standing on the beach went to the rescue without looking off any of his clothes and succeeded in holding them up but not until they had all gone under water. A row boat took them to shore.

A Famous Spiritualist.

London Daily News: Mr. Home, when I first saw him, was at the zenith of his notoriety. He had married into one of the richest families in Russia, was a favorite of the Tsar, and courted by the most brilliant society of every capital perhaps in Europe. He had raised tables to ceilings, waltzed, touched, and danced, and was a favorite of the French with his spirit manifestations at the Tuilleries. The crown prince of Prussia and General Moltke were among his admirers. He was a shrewd old warrior was not satisfied with all that took place when he was by and said he ought to have more to go upon, when the empress cried out, "perpetrate him, as you are touching." Mr. Home's claims, if the spirits loved light rather than darkness. The empress insisted on adopting the medium's sister and placed her in a convent school. Mr. Home told her that his mother was an eerie Scotch woman, and had, before he was born, a vision, in which she saw him seated with as many sovereigns as those who paid court to Napoleon. Mr. Home told her that he had inherited her gift, which he affirmed, showed itself when he was a child in a remarkable way in Scotland, and displayed itself in a greater degree after a vision in which she saw him seated at table with an emperor and empress, a grand duke and grand duchess, and two angels, whom she thought must have symbolized his future wives. She had, he also said, the gift of second sight, which he inherited. Be this as it may, he was admitted to associate with the emperor and empress of the French, King Louis I., the Duke of Hamilton, the king and Queen of Wurtemberg, the Duke of Nassau, etc. M. Sardon believed in him, and I think Professor Bloyed in him, and King Louis I. believed in him. He produced, and thought they were not the effect of jugglery. Home had a tall, slight figure, a fair and freckled face before disease made it the color of yellow wax, keen blue eyes, which, however, looked sometimes dreamy, a rather snub nose, and curly auburn hair. He spoke with a Scotch accent. His manners, though forward, were agreeable and striking effect.
