Victory for the Bluffs. About four hundred and fifty people witnessed the third game of base ball this season between the Red Oak club and the Mueller club company's nine at the fair grounds yesterday afternoon.

The game was a very tame affair from beginning to end, and full of errors by both clubs, but the spectators seemed to pass the time whooping and shouting at the least provocation, and one young man had more than his money's worth by tooting a tin horn to his heart's content whenever a Bluffs' boy scored a run.

They scored so many that it took most of the consumptive's wind from him.

Red Oak came to the bat, having won the toss, and scored four runs, principally on errors of the part of the Mueller club. The Mueller club followed with three runs by Strock, Sadler and Hayes.

Sadler nearly got left by trying to steal home. Oliver was at bat, and as the ball was going back to the pitcher Sadler made a splendid "steal" home, amid much applause.

The second inning was a goose egg for Red Oak, Snedeker, Pomeroy and Moriarity going out, leaving Spry on base, but with no other play.

Hayes had been out for a grounder to Sadler, who set it nicely to first and Hysham retired. Deemer then sent one to Patton who shot it into Strock, by whom much Patterson counted, Fisher and Fort going out.

The third inning was another white wash for Red Oak, on an erring Patterson went to pitch, Deemer to first, and Hysham to short, but without much success, as the game was virtually ended.

Patton took the bat and all of the nine had a strike, but on an erring Patterson went to pitch, Deemer to first, and Hysham to short, but without much success, as the game was virtually ended.

The fourth inning opened with a high fly to Hayes, who on account of the sun shining in his eyes and also being too certain, muffed it. Spry sent a nice one to Bierwein, who by a splendid long throw home prevented a run by Snedeker.

The fifth inning was another white wash for Red Oak, on an erring Patterson went to pitch, Deemer to first, and Hysham to short, but without much success, as the game was virtually ended.

Patton took the bat and all of the nine had a strike, but on an erring Patterson went to pitch, Deemer to first, and Hysham to short, but without much success, as the game was virtually ended.

The seventh and last inning was not of much consequence. Red Oak scored by Patterson, who on an erring Patterson went to pitch, Deemer to first, and Hysham to short, but without much success, as the game was virtually ended.

The following is the runs and outs made by each player:

Table with columns: Player Name, Runs, Outs. Includes Spry, Pomeroy, Moriarity, Patterson, Hysham, Deemer, Fisher, Fort, Snedeker, Mueller, Strock, Sadler, Hayes, Oliver, Brown, Bierwein, Patton.

George's Clover Field. Belle Glover and her George have been furnishing the city with a little star. The pair have of late been having some little disagreements, and Monday night Belle had George arrested for being drunk and disturbing the peace.

On coming into court, he avoided a scene by pleading guilty and taking his dose of $5 and costs without a grimace. Belle was on the warpath, though, and the docility of her George seemed to anger her all the more.

While they were having a brief consultation in the judge's private room and seeking to reach some truce, she flew into a rage and banged George over the head with her parasol. She succeeded in cutting a small gash on his cheek and inflicting a scalp wound.

She then flew to her mansion, where George carried to file an information against her for assault and battery. On returning to the house, George and Belle got into another racket. Belle was wild, and she rushed up to the district telegraph box and began turning the crank as if she were grinding out a war march on a hand organ.

She turned in all four of the calls, twice over, and soon had messenger boys, cops, policemen and expressmen running towards the house, and even sounded the fire alarm, the department turning out at the top of the Belle, and as they went tearing down Broadway the whole city was shaken, or at least it was being dragged around, the messenger boys catching their breath, and the cabmen swearing. Belle was ordering her George to pack up his collar-box and get out of the house. Explanations were given, but no one followed and quiet was restored.

The chief of the fire department threatens to prosecute Belle for turning in a false alarm, and the district telegraph boys and the cabmen will doubtless present their claims for lost time. It had been some time since Belle had created such a sensation as she did yesterday morning over so little, and the press gang has called a meeting for the purpose of preparing a card of thanks for her earnest effort to furnish news on a dry day.

Ripples from the Shore. Manawa lake and Manhattan beach continue to be the cause of a great deal of enthusiastic riding, boating and bathing.

The danger threatened to the popularity of the place by the establishment of a saloon, and the turning of a pleasure resort into a scene of dissipation, rowdyism, has been averted by the sheriff serving notice on the men behind the bar to move on or there would be trouble.

It seems to be the general desire and determination to frown down every feature of disorderliness, and to make the place such as will not offend the most fastidious.

T. L. Smith is making some great improvements about his landing. He has erected a dancing platform 40x25, and has put up an ice cream stand, lemonade and lunch stand, etc. He has also 250 feet of fence for hitching horses and providing a safe place for teams.

Another large bathing house is being erected by a club of thirty-two young men. It will be 16x22 and provided with needed accommodations.

The rush does not seem to abate and crowds are there both day and night. It seems that the popularity of the place is on the gain, rather than decreasing. Many predict that it will not last, but it is lasting and growing.

The danger of getting malaria by bathing has not manifested itself, except in the case of the grandmother, who is having some chills and is very despondent. She still is able to gasp, "No foreigner need apply," but continues to denounce Council Bluffs' favorite summer resort.

The Cory and Thompson boats, seven in number, are furnished and are to be used at Red Oak bath houses, and will carry passengers to and from Marks' landing. They can also be rented for boating parties.

Keatley's History of a Crime. Colonel Keatley was seen coming along the street yesterday with a new book in his hand, not an uncommon sight, as the literary is quite given to extravagance in literary purchases and pursuits.

"There's a remark connected with that book," remarked the colonel. "I'll tell you. While in Des Moines on the 13th of last April I sent an order to a New York house for that book, and enclosed an order for $2.50. I heard nothing from it, and after a while I wrote and received a reply that the house knew nothing about any such letter, had not received it, nor the money. I wrote to the postmaster to have him look it up, and see if there wasn't some fellow about the office who was going wrong. Yesterday I received a letter from the publishing house, stating that they had discovered one of their most trusted clerks opening their letters and purloining money. The young man was locked up in jail, and among the letters found to have been thus gone through by him was one from me dated April 13, ordering this book and stating that there was $2.50 enclosed. The house wrote that they had sent the book, and sure enough, when I went to the office to-day, there it was. The house wrote that the young man whom they had thus found to be crooked was one in whom they had had implicit confidence, in fact, they had never had in their employ one in whom they felt such complete trust."

Would Like to See Him Try It. Washington Critic: The little sketch going the rounds to the effect that Senator Kenma, with two pairs of queens in his hand, gave the pot to Senator Dolph, who held three aces, on the principle that three of a kind beat two pairs, has provoked the soul of the senator from West Virginia to its profoundest depths.

Yesterday, during the executive session, a brother senator approached him cautiously and by easy stages on the subject.

"How is what?" inquired Mr. Kenma, in reply.

"Why, this little story about Dolph's three aces beating your two pairs of queens?"

"Not a word of truth, sir, in it," said the senator, with a snarl in his eyes. "I never played poker with Senator Dolph in my life. I never played poker with anybody. I don't know one card from another. I don't know how play cards of any kind. But, sir," and his face grew determined and sinister, "if Senator Dolph or any other man with three one-pots in his hand thinks he can beat me when I've got four queens, I'll be dogged if I wouldn't like to see him try it once."

Lightning struck a house in Voluntown, Conn., the other night, and, after ripping up things generally, the current divided into two. One went to a house near by, killing a goat on the way; struck a girl, and her stockings and shoes off, and, as she lay on the ground, she was killed.

The other current went off right angles from the first, damaged a pig pen, and knocked down a horse in an adjacent barn.
