A new boat, the Annie C. Brenneck, has been placed on the lake by Mr. Brenneck. It is a large row boat, holding fifteen persons.

Two young fellows, W. A. Brown and G. H. Adams, got to quarrelling on Broadway yesterday afternoon and Officer O'Brien had them in.

Dan Carrigg is planning to invest more money in Atlantic. He owns the building to be occupied in part by the new bank, and is to build a row of office buildings, the frontage to be sixty feet.

There was an early breakfast, boating and bathing party each train from the east bringing many excursionists to the G. A. R. meeting in California. As all the excursionists have to exchange their tickets at the depot here, it makes plenty of work for all.

The young man Bartlett, nabbed by Officer Anderson while going through Judge James' house in the night, has been held to await the action of the grand jury on two charges of burglary, the other being for his bringing open a trunk at Wells Cook's house.

On next Thursday a brunette young lady living on North Sixth street, it is said, is to be united in marriage in this city to a young man now book-keeper in a large coffee mill, at Omaha, but formerly the junior partner in a Council Bluffs commission house.

An effort is being made to compromise the case of Frank W. Hutchins, arrested for a crooked horse deal. It is said that young Hutchins, who is said to have in fact belonged to his father, and that he blew in the money trying to learn how to play Faro. The horse was replevied, and the young man disappeared. Marshall Gunnella, who had a warrant for his arrest for obtaining money under false pretenses, at last found him near Logan working in a field, and brought him back to this city.

The Christian pavilion, situated on Fourth street, on a half block south of the Masonic temple, will be formally dedicated next Sunday night. The service will begin at 7:45 o'clock. In view of this service there will be no service at either the Baptist, Scandinavian, Congregational, Methodist or Presbyterian churches in the evening. Let everybody go to the pavilion and take with them their gospel hymns that they may unite in the singing. C. Hover, secretary.

When the so-called Home of the Friendless is owned and controlled by an association, in fact as well as in name, and when such association places in charge a manager in whom the people have confidence, and who will properly care for the children; when the home is made one in fact and not a prison house, then there will be no difficulty in getting the people of Council Bluffs to support it liberally.

The idea of a man gathering around him a lot of children and refusing to let any of them be taken into private homes for adoption, and then saying that if any one comments upon the way he treats or mistreats them, he is guilty of cold-heartedness, is simply preposterous. The public has never called upon any man to house up all the children he can get hold of, and he in turn has no right to demand big donations from the people for that purpose. When the institution is properly conducted, and is in the hands of an association, the BEE will give as much to it in cash and space as the other newspapers of the city.

Substantial abstracts of titles and real estate loans. J. W. & E. L. Squires, 19 Pearl street, Council Bluffs. A Horse Epidemic. Numerous complaints are heard from horse owners that many of the steeds are suffering from what appears to be a disease, which is becoming quite an epidemic in the city. The horses run at the nostril, cough and appear weak, the trouble lasting about two weeks, with no apparent cause for the coming or the going of the disease. Thus far no deaths are reported.

Trouble at Tabor. The people at Tabor are greatly exercised about the financial troubles of one of their prominent merchants, Al Bagley, who has been in business there for about a year and a half, but who has lived in that vicinity for many years, and has been looked upon as one of the most wealthy and enterprising citizens. Bagley bought out the establishment of M. L. Carpenter, and began enlarging the business, and causing quite a stir, and no little envy among the rival dealers. He kept a general stock, and also dealt largely in agricultural implements. He traded a good deal, and when a farmer had stock or produce of any kind Bagley would make some sort of a dicker, paying a fair price for the stock, horse, cow, or produce which the farmer might want to dispose of, and selling him machinery or goods. He has built up a large business, and has also branched out in a still larger business at Colorado, Neb., where he had a large store, and claimed to own about four hundred acres of land. Bagley was estimated as worth forty thousand dollars or so.

There was considerable surprise on Saturday night when Sheriff Jones seized upon the establishment, on a writ of attachment for about two hundred dollars, and other attachments followed quickly. Mr. Bagley was in Chicago, and returned from there the next day to find that the creditors had possession of his property. He tried to effect some settlement, and then left for Nebraska, saying he would be back in a short time. He did not return as soon as expected, and the alarm of creditors was increased, until the report is quite common that he has skipped out. His friends claim that this is a base slander, and that he has been most unfairly dealt with. It is said that the claims are not due and that he has always paid his bills promptly, and that the attempt to close him up is really started by rival concerns whose trade he has interfered with. Tabor people seem to have the utmost confidence in him and predict that he has more than enough to meet all bills as fast as due, and that he will make good when he closed him up pay heavy damages for the action. There is much sympathy felt for him and a feeling among many that the creditors have acted harshly and will be made to regret it.

Among the attaching creditors are several Council Bluffs houses. Deere, Wells & Co. are the heaviest, their claim being for $7,614. Shugart, Waite & Wiese, Deere, Bradley & Co., Gronow & Schoontgen, Stewart Bros., and other Council Bluffs houses have claims much smaller amounts. Among other claims are J. Johnson & Co., $330; R. Calver, $285; Reed, Jones & Co. of Omaha, $700. The attachments are estimated to reach a total of $22,000, and the total liabilities are thought to not fall far short of $30,000. The assets are estimated as low as $60,000. Al Bagley has acted so far as to have made a written statement, in which he placed his worldly possessions as equal to $23,000 cash over and above all liabilities. The creditors seem to have no fear of having to pay any damages, and are confident that the concern is financially wrecked.

Mr. Lucius Wells, of Deere, Wells & Co., informed the BEE man yesterday that Bagley, as he understood, had quite a number of bills standing against him around his home, and that there are numerous bills unpaid which are past due. One judgment is unsatisfied, and several drafts are reported as being returned unpaid. It is also claimed that Bagley bought goods from different houses, and on receipt of the same would sell them at a lower figure than he had agreed to pay for them.

Mr. Green, of the Iowa Barb Steel Wire company, of Marshalltown, Iowa, is in the city, and states that his company was about to close Bagley up when Deere, Wells & Co. got the start with their attachment. It seems, therefore, that while the friends of Mr. Bagley are urging that he has been most unjustly treated, and his property wrongfully and his credit ruined, and that, rather than be left in debt, they would try and protect themselves. As these houses are financially responsible, if there has been any injustice done Bagley, he has a chance to get legal recourse.

Imogene Items. It is still very dry, and farmers are getting very much discouraged. Some think the corn crop is already damaged one half. It is just at the time when corn must have rain to make it shoot and start the growth of the kernels. Farmers have begun threshing their small grains, which turn out well. Early potatoes are about half a crop. A. E. Milligan has gone to attend the congressional convention which meets at Council Bluffs. Some of the democrats feel jubilant. The merchants of Imogene are hopeful for a good fall trade.

Imogene is a town of 350 inhabitants, three general stores, one hardware, three grocery stores, two drug stores, two blacksmith shops and one livery stable, and don't you think Major A. R. Anderson selected it as the place to start his independent boom for congress?

Lawing It Over a Boat. The White Swan, the 12-horse wheel which is one of the recent additions to the lake, is now the cause of litigation. It seems that John Bohn, about two weeks ago, bought the boat, others joining with him as partners, he having purchased it of a man in whose name the boat had been left for sale. A few days ago Tom Skinner went to Neola and bought the boat of a man who owned an interest in it, and who did not know that the man having possession of the boat had sold it. Skinner got a bill of sale and recorded it. He then went to the lake and took possession of the boat. Bohn then replevied it, and commenced suit for damages for the detention of the boat. The case has been set for a hearing two weeks hence.

Personal Paragraphs. E. K. Burch, of Denison, was in the city yesterday. J. W. Perry, of Chariton, Ia., was at the Ogdens yesterday. J. C. Lange, the revenue collector, is leaving for Colfax. Simon Eiseeman, wife and children left last evening for New York City. Henry Hathaway, of Ohio, father of Captain J. J. Hathaway, is in the city. J. H. Minnick, of Villisca, has been chosen principal of the Maivern schools. John N. Baldwin returned from Spirit Lake yesterday and left last evening for Chicago. Captain J. J. Who Kills Seventy-Two Soldiers on the Other Side in One Fight. Atlanta (Ga.) Fair-Press: A brave coward! In Company E of the Thirty-first Louisiana there was a man named Green. The boys went into service in the spring of '62, and for some time had very little to do. Green soon made himself one of the most popular men in the camp. He was something of a humorist, and his talents as a story-teller made him always entertaining.

When the Thirty-first snuffed powder for the first time Green turned up missing. He had a fit and was unable to handle a gun. In the second engagement the poor fellow had a spasmodic attack, and again kept away from the front. The soldiers began to have their suspicions, and when their unfortunate comrade fell a victim to rheumatism on the eve of another fight, they spoke in pretty plain terms.

Green was so deviled by the boys that he was driven nearly crazy. Just about that time there was a call for volunteers to go up the Yazoo river on a gunboat expedition. Every soldier had to do his chronic invalid volunteered. The expedition lasted about six weeks and no fighting occurred. Green, however, swelled with pride at the thought of his solitary conduct, and bragged so intently that his companions nicknamed him "Gunboat" Green. By degrees it began to dawn upon him that he was the butt of the regiment, and then he became sulky and disagreeable.

But the time came when the gallant Louisianians had something more important to think of than "Gunboat" Green. They were driven into the "bulpen" at Vicksburg by Grant's swarming legions, and every soldier had to do his duty like a little man. The corps to which Green belonged was stationed behind a crescent-shaped breastwork seven miles in length. The land in front for some distance was level, and the sloping down a ravine and up a steep hill. The timber had all been cut down, so there was a clean sweep.

One afternoon the federals charged the breastworks. They placed their sharpshooters on the hill to shoot the confederates when they showed their heads. The federals charged in four columns, four deep. The confederates remained in the pits, four deep, and held their fire until the federals were within sixty yards. Then the front rank opened fire and fell back, and the second, and so on until every gun had been emptied with terrible execution. Finally the assaulting party fell back, and the timber that had been cut down, and was lying down a ravine and up a steep hill, the timber had all been cut down, so there was a clean sweep.

"Never mind about my looks," said Green. "I have a presentiment that I am going to be killed." "By a nervous shock?" suggested a corporal, and then there was a laugh. "The object of all this ridicule grieved his teeth, and his eyes flashed fire. "I'll swear, boys," said one of the company, "that if a bullet is found in 'Gunboat' Green after his death it will be one that he swallowed."

Stung beyond endurance at these taunts, Green seized his musket and ran to the front until he reached the top of the breastworks. Here he had the federals behind the fallen timber in full view and easy range. For a moment both armies looked on in breathless wonder. Then, at seven o'clock, the order was given. Green was the only man to be seen. Then the sharpshooters commenced firing at him. But nothing could move him. With a white face, blazing eyes, and nerves stretched to their utmost tension, he took aim and fired. Time and again he reloaded and pulled the trigger, each time hitting his man. By this time the sharpshooters were firing a thousand shots per minute at him. He was not hit, but the confederates begged him to come down, but an officer said: "Let the blanked fool alone; they can't hit him!"

The men in the pits threw up a lot of cartridges, and Green continued to fire at regular intervals. Bullets flew past him thick as hail, but not a hair of his was harmed. Finally the brigade that he was slaughtering in the merciless fashion could stand it no longer. They broke and ran up the hill, losing several men on the way up under the fire of the solitary soldier on the breastworks.

"Gunboat" Green was the hero of the hour. "slicers and privates surged around him, shaking him by the hand and applauding him for his bravery. Just before the federals retired and a party of Louisianians went out to look at the result of Green's bloody marksmanship. It was found by actual count that his musket had killed seventy-two federals. Green insisted that he had killed more, but it is thought that some of them were only wounded, and their friends had dragged them off. About the seventy-two dead men there was no doubt. They were there, and as their bodies lay in a place where there was not a single corpse before Green commenced firing, it was plain enough that he had brought them down.

A special report concerning Green was sent to the commanding General that night. The result would doubtless have been promotion but for the fact that the following morning "Gunboat" Green was nowhere to be found. Last night it was ascertained that he had deserted and joined Grant's army. Nothing further was heard of him.
