The attorney general yesterday received the brief in the celebrated Marion case, appealed on error from the Gage county district court. #### EXPATRIATED AMERICANS.

A Woman's Gossip About Noted New-Yorkers in Parisian Exite.

Paris Letter: Many Americans have lived in Paris so long that we scarcely see or hear anything of them; their children have married among the French nobility, and their children have even lost our language. First among this class we may remember Mr. and Mrs. Phalen, formerly of New York. They resided in West Fourth street, just out of Broadway, and beside Mrs. Cornelius W. Roosevelt, and both houses were renowned for an elegant hospitality. Mrs. Phalen's great beauty of mind as well as of person made her a central object of much admiration at home as she continued to be in the French Capital. Mrs. Phalen's two daughters are the Countess Galriac, a widow—who has a charming daughter just married—and the Countess de Marbonnie Lasa, whose husband is highly esteemed, and her only son, James, is married to a charming Russian lady. They all reside under one roof, or, rather, in three elegant hotels communicating, which Mrs. Phalen wisely over twenty years ago. A beautiful garden is in the rear, shared in common by the three households.

The daughters of Charles Ring, formerly president of Columbia College, yet reside at No. 9 Rue des Ecuries d'Artois, where their brother died some five years ago. Mrs. King left two married daughters, Mrs. Waddington, wife of the present French Ambassador at London, and Mrs. Eugene Schuyler, whose husband is so favorably known in both diplomacy and literature.

Mr. and Mrs. Harrison Ritchies and their charming daughter soon hope to make their home entirely on this side of the water. Mrs. Ritchies was Mary Sheldon, a sister of Mr. Fred Sheldon, who married Miss Fearing, and is especially known for excellent dinners, both in New York and in Newport.

Mrs. Frank Hutchins, a widow but a few months of a former New York Broadway clothier, is to marry early this month a London lawer named Sharp, who did business for her dead husband. A nice business truly, when she marries A nice business truly, when she marries him before a year has closed over the dead man's grave. There is a pretty daughter who, I am told, the lawyer of Park lane is to adopt, and a son of whom one need say but little. Mrs. Hutchins has the lease of a pretty hold in a remote part of Paris. The marriage is to take place at the English Embassy.

Dr. Evans, the friend and "confidente" of all the grayed heads of English embassy. of all the crowned heads of Europe, yet

Mrs. Momsey, an American widow with three children, has leased an apart-ment at No. 83 Rue Montayne for several years. Who is she? But little is known in America, where she passed scarcely more than her childhood at Rochester, where her mother, then a fine-looking ambitious widow, captured HenryBradhurst of New York, who adopted her two pretty daughters, and with his niece and her infant son came abroad and resided in Berlin. Here the Marquis of Lorne saw her and was supposed to be madly in love with the American beauty, until he surrendered her to marry the queen's fairest daughter.

DEPARTMENT CLERKS.

The Great Differences in Personal Style Among the Different Sets of Employes.

Washington Letter to Philadelphia Telegraph: Speaking of the departments, it is noticeable that there are decided lifferences of personal style among the different sets of clerks. The treasury clerks are the least spruce in appearance and most spiritless in manner of all the government employes. This is due in a great measure to the really unhealthy condition of the treasury building, which ought to be attended to at once. The most independent, nonchalant, and cos-The mopolition set of clerks are those of the interior department, especially in the patent-office. They dress as they please, act pretty much as they please, and look happy and prosperous as a class. There is a fine esprit de corps among them. They have jolly times together of noons, funching and walking through the corridors. The girls laugh and hum tunes as they trip along, and the men whistle and sing extracts from the "Mikado" or exchange stories and jokes. On the contrary, the postoffice department people are a serious folk, and have a crushed aspect. The department building is as stil as a cemetery, and no levity is allowed within it. A visitor walks into the patent-office as if he owned it, but there is something about the general postoffice that makes him falter and stammer at the entrance. The army and navy clerks are a fine looking, well-dressed crowd, rather exclusive towards strangers, polite, but whithal somewhat abrupt in their intercourse with them-in fact, there is a sayor of the martinet about the corresponding services. The force in the department of justice is so small that it cannot be said to have much individuality in any way. Finally the state department furnishes us with perfect specimens of the aristocratic genus of clerk. The clerks of this department have no interceurse with the clerks of other departments. They are far removed above the vulgar herd. All of them are "dudes" of the most exquisit brand. Not one of them would think of

CHICAGO GRAIN MARKET.

Chicago, July 31 .- Special Telegram to the Ber. ]-About the usual Saturday market prevailed to-day, which is equivalent to the statement that prices were easier and average rather lower in a general way. The wheat crowd, the same as the corn traders, are 'long" more or less stuff, which they do not feel disposed, under the circumstances, to earry over Sunday. In corn the situation would have been more bullish if there had not been a little rain recently. This has weakened holders a little and induced the belief that the backbone of the drouth may be broken. Reports to-day, however, agree that no rain in any great quantity has fallen in the corn belt since yesterday. General Manager Chappell, of the Chicago & Alton, just back from a critical examination of the country along the line of the road, says: "The corn crop cannot be over half a yield this year-not even with plenty of rain from this on. Without rain the damage will be worse than that." The signal service report this morning: Local rains in the upper M issouri valley and g iff states, and there is considerable cloudy weather generally. During the past twenty-four hours light local rains have fallen in Dakota, Iowa, Missouri and some other states, but no heavy rains have fallen in any of the districts. Local rains are indicated for the northwest and some of the states embraced in the corn belt."

Conn-The top of to day's corn market was at the opening session. On the open board it is said to have sold all the way between 41%c and 44%c. The curb was 44%c. The regular market was ovened at 44% and soon sold at 45c. Counselman was taking in about all the corn he could get early in the day, and Crosby, Morton, Worthington, Lester, Pickering and others gave him lots varying in size from 10,000 bu to 45,000 bu. Then the market reacted to 4414c, again strengthened and sold at 451/4c, then broke to 44%c, and during the latter part of the session ruled rather slow and featureless. The receipts here were 381 cars, which was con-

While one load of fancy hors brought $4.85, it would not be safe to quote the mar

OMAHA WHOLESALE MARKETS General Produce,

Saturday Evening, July 31, The following prices are for round lots of produce, as sold on the market to-day. The quotations on fruits represent the prices at which outside orders are filled.

which outside orders are filled.

Butter.—There are no especially new features in the butter market. The scarcity of good butter continues and dealers find it impossible to supply their trade with such butter as they want. Strictly sweet, solid and uniform color, packed in new clean tubs, will command 12½@15c, or even more, in the market, but there is little or none coming in that can be graded as such. Small packages of fresh butter shipped in stone jars have commanded grood prices. The great bulk of commanded good prices. The great bulls of the so-called choice butter is selling at 10@11e and fair to good 6@8c. EGGs—The great bulk of stock is going at 10c with an occasional case, very closely candled, at 15c more. Candling has to be done close and shippers will and it to their interest to do it before shipping, instead of paying freight on rotten eggs. Cracked eggs should also be left out, as in this hot weather they are generally entirely worthless,

POULTRY—The receipts for the past few days have been very liberal and prices are not quite as strong as last week. A good many old fowls have been coming in that were in very poor condition. # A Fallen Woman Loses Her Reason on Account of the Death of Frank Stark, Her Lover.

Cincinnati Enquirer: Yesterday in the probate court Josephine Woods filed an affidavit of lunacy against Lelia Stark. There is an interesting and at the same time pathetic history of this case, illustrating as it does, the depth of woman's affection and their devotion to those they love, however low their position in soci ety may be. Three years ago, "Miss Lelia," as she was known among her companions, an attractive brunetic of petite figure, was an inmate of Joe Wood's house of ill-fame. About that time Frank Stark, the grandson of the late Captain Eckert, came to Cincinnati. He was a handsome fellow, of pleasing address, and quickly made him-self popular. He had recently fallen heir to a goodly sum of money, and this greatly assisted him in making friends. It was not long before he met Lelia, and became deeply enamored. His affection was returned by the girl, and every at-tention was lavished upon her. Together they went east to spend the summer and visited many resorts as man and wife. Stark drifted into the theatrical business, and, with others, organized a company to travel through the south, he going ahead as the advance agent.

The attachment between him and the girl, who had assumed his name, had even become stronger, and she accompa-nied him on his trip, traveling as Mrs. Stark. The tragedy is familiar to the reading public. Stark joined his com-pany there, and becoming involved in an altercation with the business manager, Allen by name, shot him in the dressingroom of the theater. Allen's wound was fatal, and Stark was arrested on the charge of murder. Cincinnati lawyers were sent to defend him, and at the trial, which was a long and interesting one, he was acquitted on the ground of self-defense. During his trouble his pre-tended wife clung as close to him as she could, and did all that she could to aid him. After he was acquitted he returned to this city much broken in both health and fortune. The expenses of his trial had consumed all his resources, and, being too ill to work, he went to the home of a sister in Detroit to recuperate.

Meanwhile Lelia had returned permanently to the Woods house, where she anxiously awaited the letter which came to her from Stark. During the year or more of his illness he was able to come to Cincinnati several times to visit her, and once his stay was prolonged several months, but finally he succumbed to the ravages of the disease, and last fall he died. During his illness Lelia had grown morose and absent-minded on account of the separation from him she loved, and it was thought the news of his death would kill her. Her grief was of the most vio-lent and consuming kind, and she never seemed herself after the day she received the sad intelligence. His body was brought from Detroit to be buried in Spring Grove. She was one of the mourners, and her actions were so pecu her and her appeals so pitiful that the casket was opened at Spring Grove chapel, and she was permitted to look up on the face of the dead. It was with difficulty she could be drawn away from the coffin. Since that day she has been an object of pity and concern to the other imates of the house. She has had a word for no one unless they would talk about Frank, and she made continual references and allusions to him. At times she would sit for hours with folded hands, thinking of the one she had jost. Everything possible was done for her, but she soon grew worse, and it was soon evident that her reason was dethroned. She appeared oblivious to all surroundings, but she appeared so harmless and inoffensive that she was allowed to wander from one room to another, and do just as she pleased. Recently, however, her malaly assumed a more serious form, and twice she was detected in attempting to jump out of the window of her room, which is on the third floor. This trightened the landlady, and an earnest search was made for relatives of the girl. She had once said that she came from Columbus: that her name was Molhe Collins, and that room, the expense being paid by Miss Woods. She had not been there but a week, however, when the superintendent learned her previous history and refused to allow her to remain.

It is probable that an inquest of lunacy will be held by the court to-day or to-morrow, when she will be committed to Longview. Continual thinking and repining for the dead have created in her a desire to take her evan life, in order that a desire to take her own life in order that she may join her lover in another world. Shortly after Stark's funeral she ob-tained a permit to visit Spring Grove cemetery, and since that time has gone her mother had died in the state asylum for the insane, but no trace of her folks could be discovered. Finally about ten days ago she was sent out to the Sani tarium, where she occupied a private weekly to shed tears over his grave.

J. C. Hopewell, proprietor of the New York chop house on Douglas street, has returned from Kansas City, where he was married on Thursday to a young lady of that city. The county commissioners spent the day yesterday examining the bills pre-sented during the month of August.

C. Green, who was sent to the county jail a couple of weeks ago for assaulting Joseph James, was released by Judge McCulloch yesterday on a writ of habitas corpus, Judges Wakeley and Neville met yesterday morning and disposed of a num-ber of minor motions. An adjournment was then taken until Saturday, when the final business of the term will be disposed of.
