

HIS IMPRISONED BRIDE.

A Young Husband Braves His Father-in-Law's Revolver.

THE MILWAUKEE CUTTING RATES

An Imprisoned Wife.

Yesterday a rather sensational episode in the married life of two young people here was developed in the story of Mr. Geo. Nichols, a young gentleman employed in the dry goods establishment of S. P. Morse, as related to Judge Stenberg. Nichols was married, it seems, to a young lady named Miss Scherb, the daughter of well known people. The marriage was bitterly opposed by the father and mother of the girl, and so was consummated clandestinely, without their knowledge or consent. Since then they have been bitterly opposed to the young man, and have refused to allow him to live with the lady, much to the disgust and disappointment of both young people. Wednesday night he went to his father-in-law's house, and kicked open the door of the room where the young lady was confined. Mrs. Scherb came in and opened up a vigorous assault on her son-in-law. She was soon joined by her husband, who drew a revolver and chased the young man out of the house. Yesterday Nichols appeared before Judge Stenberg and asked for a warrant for the arrest of Mr. and Mrs. Scherb. Judge Stenberg advised him to apply for a writ of habeas corpus for the release of his wife, and the sensational affair will probably be aired in the courts.

A gentleman conversant with the facts says that the marriage took place under peculiar circumstances. The mother of the young woman was opposed to the marriage and resolutely made up her mind that the marriage should not take place. The young lady, however, was determined it should, as were also a number of her friends. Accordingly, the young man was invited to the house one night when the confidential friends were present. The young lady went with him as if to attend the theater and soon after returned with the announcement that she had been married to her male friend. The mother, however, would not be pacified and refused to meet her daughter or son-in-law notwithstanding the interception of her friends. Mr. Nichols finally managed to secure his wife yesterday afternoon, and the two are now living together. The baffled mother and father breathe vows of revenge.

"I met Miss Scherb two years ago," said Mr. Nichols, to a reporter yesterday afternoon, "and during most of that time have been on intimate terms with her. For a while I was treated all right by her parents, but after the engagement, because my ideas did not give with theirs, they turned bitterly against me and opposed the marriage. However, we were married. My wife was sick for a long time, and at the advice of my physician I sent her back to live a while with her parents. Since then they have treated me like a dog, and refused to allow me to see my wife. They have kept her part of the time locked up in a room, so that she could not see me. Last night I went up to the house, broke my way in, and found the girl. The old lady assaulted me, and Scherb, who carried a loaded revolver under my nose, I went away, determined to come back within twenty-four hours. I did come back and have got my wife, and we propose to live together or know the reason why."

It is Quietly Cutting Rates from River Points to Chicago.

It is but a couple of weeks since the trunk lines leading to the Bluffs made an agreement to return to their former freight and passenger rates between this city and Chicago. This was done after a war, in which both were badly slashed, and in which the patrons of the roads had by far the advantage.

It is now learned with considerable certainty that the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul road has again commenced to undermine the passenger rates between western points and Chicago. The cutting is done at Kansas City by the local agents and brokers. It is done, however, on the fly, and thus for the other roads have not been apprised of its commencement.

Yesterday afternoon, a BEE man met a ticket broker of this city in company with an attorney, the C. M. & St. P. The former remarked: "Yes, they are cutting down at Kansas City and you are cutting here too." In reply, the "Milwaukee" man said: "No sir, I come pretty near knowing what is done in our office here, and I know there is nothing of that kind done. If there were, I'd know a little about it. I do believe, however, that they are diving little snipe into Kansas City."

"Yes and at other points," chimed in the broker. "What other points?" asked the reporter. "I couldn't tell," said the broker. "It would cause an injury to those who are engaged in it."

"I do believe," said the railroad man, "that it will be only a few days before we get down to the good old cut of a few weeks ago. It is now working that way, and I hope it will continue. If it does, who knows but it may lead our people, aside of ten days, to co-operate with the Union Pacific in the fast train across the continent."

The broker seemed to be of the same opinion. Later, a Union Pacific official, who was asked to what he thought about the cut, said that he was not surprised at the doings of those trunk lines. To him, keeping them straight was like one man with a single pair of lungs holding half a dozen stallions straight.

OFF TO THE COAST.

Nebraska's Editors on their Annual Excursion.

Yesterday morning a number of members of the Nebraska Editorial association arrived in town on their way to the west on the annual excursion. They all met at the Millard hotel yesterday at 1 o'clock and were received by Messrs. Correll of Hebron, Whitcomb of Fremont, and Morrissey and King of the Herald, Omaha. They were also met by President Meyer of the board of trade, Messrs. Wakefield and J. T. Clark, of the same body. At 2:30 o'clock the delegation took carriages and drove around the city. The carriages were furnished by the board of trade. The excursionists comprise the following ladies and gentlemen: Atie Hart and wife, Dakota City; E. A. Brown, Nebraska City; Press, Bush and mother, Sidney; Telema, W. Hibbard, Cedar Rapids; W. H. Peckert, Franklin County; M. Kohn and wife, Nebraska

LET HER BOOM.

Omaha Real Estate Still Rapidly Increasing in Value.

EVERYBODY WANTS TO BUY.

They All Want a Finger in the Pie, and Are Making a Still Hunt for City Property.

The real estate boom is the principal topic of conversation, these days, on the street, in the shop or in the home. Everybody is talking about real estate and many are making investments. City property is being rapidly picked up and desirable property can be found. In riding over the city probably the very finest property to be seen is "Mayne Place," located on Leavenworth street, just west of Park avenue. It is not more than a mile from the postoffice and the lots are by all odds the finest in the market. Aside from the fact that the location is most desirable, the place is covered with shade and fruit trees, also grape and other small fruit trees, also found in abundance. This property has only been on the market a few days, and is attracting more attention than any other property ever placed on sale in this city. Next to "Mayne Place" comes "Orchard Hill," where lots are going off like hot cakes, and Mr. Mayne's gentlemanly salesmen are not consistently short of property here. One of the beautiful features of this addition is a handsome park, which has been laid out and adds wonderfully to the value of property. Any person looking toward making an investment in inside property should not purchase until they have seen these two additions, for nowhere in the city can be found property which will compare with them.

If you are looking for acre property go to Mr. Mayne's office and take a drive out to "Newport," just west of the barracks, where you will find a veritable garden of Eden. This property is going very fast, and it is no wonder when it is taken into consideration that it is by all odds the best and cheapest acre property in the market. As has been said before, Mr. Mayne sells his property cheap and fast. If you want to invest in real estate see him before making your purchase.

A BAD, BAD BOY.

Arrested for Mailing Obscene Letters—Other Cases.

Henry McGill, a sixteen-year-old boy of Creighton, Neb., is a very depraved, corrupt youth, indeed. At least so the federal authorities say. A warrant has been sworn out for his arrest by United States Marshal Bierbower, at the instance of Assistant District Attorney Bartlett, on a charge of writing obscene letters. These missives the young man sent to different girls and married ladies in and about Creighton. They are inconceivably vulgar, and it is difficult to believe that a boy so young could have evoked such nasty stuff. The boy is too young to send to the penitentiary, but he will probably get a good long term in the reform school. His parents are said to be respectable people, and they take the matter very much to heart. Deputy Marshal Bierbower arrived in the city last evening with the young culprit.

REVEALED THE CATTLE.

Deny United States Marshal Allen left Wednesday for Sidney to replace a large herd of cattle owned by the same party. The company, whose principal place of business and large range are at that place. The action grows out of a suit instituted by Mark M. Coak against the Home Cattle company of this city. The petition of the plaintiff, as filed in the United States court relates the fact that several years ago he loaned the incorporators of the company $10,000 with which to commence business. They have grown and prospered and have apparently been able to pay the debt several times over. Nevertheless they have never taken any steps to liquidate the indebtedness, and Mr. Coak is therefore determined to take the matter before the courts. The principal accumulated interest now amounts to $16,000 and a trifle over. The stock is amply sufficient to cover the indebtedness.

THE SOUTH OMAHA SYNDICATE.

Receiver Herman Kountze, appointed by the United States court, has charge of the property and assets of the South Omaha syndicate, pending the final disposition of the difficulty between John H. Boster and the syndicate directors. Judge Dundy will take up the matter at his earliest possible convenience.

A POSTOFFICE ROBBERY.

Postoffice Inspector Spangler yesterday received a telegram from the postmaster at Oakland, Neb., stating that the postoffice at that point was broken open and robbed Wednesday night. The stolen stamps. The amount of loss is not stated and nothing more of the affair is known.

A MAN OF 1865.

A relic who was supposed to have been a conspirator. Yesterday morning west bound passenger train on the Union Pacific bore a man toward the coast, who had one finger on an exciting crisis during the war of the rebellion. He sat alone in one of the back sections of the sleeper. His hair and beard were almost snowy white, and the broad ample shoulders were slightly bent forward as "with clasped hands" upon the head of his cane he looked stolidly and indifferently from a window of the car. He seemed to seek communion with no one, and when approached by the reporter, his frown was but slightly tempered by a frigid conventional parting of the lips, intended as a smile. All that could be gleaned from him was that he was going to Montana on a search for rest. The man was about sixty-five years of age. His name was Wylie Rowe, and in 1865 resided in Chicago. That year was remarkable for a number of rebel conspiracies, by means of which the south expected secretly to be revenged by the destruction of northern cities and the capture of leading northern citizens. At that time Fort Douglas was written a few miles of the city. It was in charge of Colonel Sweet, whose daughter, Ada, until recently and for many years previously, filled the position of pension agent at the point. Fort Douglas was used in the main as a prison for captured confederates, and of course a host was then confined there. Colonel Sweet accidentally discovered that there was a great conspiracy on foot, the object of which was to set the prisoners at liberty and then sack the town. A number of democratic citizens were said to have been in the plot, and worked in connection with southern emissaries both within and without the city, to that end. Immediately the government was notified of the discovery, and orders were instantaneously given to keep the matter quiet, while a host of governmental detectives were set to work to discover the abominable plot of the crime. This resulted in the unearthing of the secret order of the "Sons of Liberty," a society formed exclusively of men who were known to be of rebel sym-

This resulted in the unearthing of the secret order of the "Sons of Liberty," a society formed exclusively of men who were known to be of rebel sympathy. Before the discovery, however, was made complete, the emissaries had departed and the suspicious documents had all been destroyed. Of the number of those who were called to answer for alleged complicity in this diabolical scheme, nearly every one is dead. Judge Backner Morris died some years after. Charley Walsh, who subsequently purged himself of his alleged disloyalty afterward became a mail contractor and led a few years ago. Others have dropped by the wayside, but few ever regained the respect or confidence of the people. This man Rowe is one of the survivors. He was, it is alleged, to furnish several hundred of the rebel prisoners with suits of clothes, upon their release, to sack and pillage the town. Whether guilty or innocent, the weight of some grave thought is upon his mind as if indeed the specter of that dreadful night in 1865 were ever present to him.

TALKS WITH TRAVELERS.

Short Interviews Gathered in the Hotel Rotundas.

B. J. Hinman, North Platte: "I have just come in from the Black Hills, and I have noticed that the crops out there are in bad condition. The farmers have planted wheat and oats and I don't think they will have more than half a crop. There has been an awful scarcity of rain. The mining prospects of the Black Hills are of the most surprising nature. They have two mines there which are really remarkable in a fissure of 250 feet. These are the ordinary kinds and count by the foot. The first one has about two hundred and fifty stamps and the other about eighty. Business is very brisk up there and the future of the place is entirely most promising."

Ex-Senator Ferry, of Michigan: "I am on my way with Mrs. Ferry to the Pacific coast, principally for pleasure, although I have in my mind some matters that will demand some business attention. I am entirely out of politics so far as making an active part, but of course maintain a great interest in public affairs, as I think all American citizens should. The short time I have been in Omaha convinces me that you have a grand city here, the importance of whose future it is difficult now to determine. You are right, I am not called upon by newspaper men these days so frequently as when I was in the residence at Washington. The difficulties, they gave me considerable and unauthorized attention. Take it all in all, I have been very courteously treated by the press."

There is a great change in the appearance of ex-Senator Ferry since he was a prominent figure in congress and presided for a time over the deliberations of the senate. He has grown very stout, and the long black whiskers that he used to care for so tenderly are streaked with gray. The fashionable garments of Washington have disappeared, and the once popular Michigan politician looks like a well-to-do granger, who does not care much for "looks," but is always supplied with a plethoric wallet.

LOCAL LAONICS.

Brief Interviews Gathered on the Streets.

J. Green: The remarks made by a gentleman in the BEE yesterday about the smoke nuisance were timely and to the point. There is too much smoke here altogether. It is ruining our buildings, ruining our stocks and the same time giving us a low reputation abroad. In winter the nuisance will be of still greater dimensions.

G. T. Walker, President of the Nail Works: We have not settled upon a host with them, several very good ones offered, and one or two that would make us lots of money; there are one or two others I would prefer if we could get the land at a reasonable figure. Yes, it will be of great benefit to the city, and all surrounding property. Now that the fuel question has been successfully solved, we have a splendid business behind the real estate deal. The capital we have is only $100,000 now, but we will increase it to $500,000. I can't go into details now, but will say the outlook warrants us in carrying on a discovery. We are producing from 100 to 100 tons of finished goods daily, of cut nails, merchant bar, wire and wire nails, and employing 400 to 500 hands continually. About Lincoln? Oh, well, we've had a very pressing invitation, to say the least. However, we don't any of us want to leave Omaha.
