

NEW REPORT OF OLD DEBTS.

Amounts owing to Uncle Sam and owed by Him since Birth.

BENEDICT THE PUBLIC PRINTER.

Omaha and Taylor Anxious to Get to Omaha—Indian Movements—Sedgwick's Scandalous Source—Neighboring Postal Pointers.

Governmental "Black List."

WASHINGTON, August 31.—[Special Telegram to the Bee.]—The "black list" of creditors and debtors of the government, which has just been published in response to a request of the house of commons, is an interesting and important document. It was compiled by H. A. Fish, assistant treasurer of the United States, and consumed the best part of six months in its preparation. The book shows that there is owing to the government $25,809,194.40, divided among the following items: Treasury, $1,663,387.40; internal revenue, $3,900,330.80; diplomatic service, $1,104,614.72; sales of public lands, $1,814,342.01; interior department, $904,914.54; judiciary, $486,357.90; captured and abandoned property, $227,683.77. Much of this indebtedness results from embezzlements, defalcations and disbursements. The debts run from a few dollars up to millions.

THE LARGEST AMOUNTS CHARGED.

UP AGAINST ANY ONE MAN is the sum of $1,305,035.69 charged up against Samuel Swartout, who was collector of customs at New York under Van Buren in 1838. Swartout was a defaulter and this is the largest sum appears in Mr. Fish's work. The smallest is a debt of 1 cent due from the government to George J. Abbott, who was vice consul at Sheffield, England, in 1871. This 1 cent has been carried along upon the books all these years. Another credit of 4 cents dates back to 1810. The first 12,000 cases mentioned in the book are amounting to $2,000,000, and back into the treasury under the act of May 4, 1876, the creditors having failed to call for their warrants within the three years prescribed by law. These sums vary from $20,000 to a few cents, and amount to $56,940,581. Then there is a list called the "creditors' trust," due to persons in which the indebtedness of the government, amounting to $50,089,924, is due to persons known to be dead, but whose heirs have not claimed the money. Among the debtors of the government many do not owe it anything, but had book keeping in the department, over which the treasury has no control, and are responsible for it. The largest defalcations are charged to collectors of customs and collectors of internal revenue. The session states of the government charged up against the heaviest being charged against Alabama, $31,928, and Georgia, $477,404. The total amount of the government's debt from this source is $2,430,402. The government suffered heavily from

SEDGWICK AND HIS SPEECH.

Official Confirmation of a Disgraceful Debauch.

New York, August 31.—[Special Telegram to the Bee.]—The "World's" special from the City of Mexico says: Consul General Forch, in an official capacity, sent the following telegram yesterday: "T. E. Bayard, secretary of state, Washington: Our special envoy has disgraced himself. Demand his immediate recall. We feel humiliated and bowed down with shame. Further particulars, if desired, will be furnished. Suffice it to say he was found dead drunk in a house of prostitution, and now is the laughing stock of the Mexicans. (Signed) Forch, Consul."

A meeting of the American colony assembled at the parlor of 1034 Fourth to discuss the atrocious telegram and adopt resolutions. The telegram was indorsed and a committee appointed to wait on Sedgwick. They went up stairs, but could not find him. The committee appointed to adopt resolutions, stating that Sedgwick had disgraced the United States and demanding his immediate recall. The debate was very lively and the resolutions were adopted. It is ascertained there was present a gentleman who had accompanied Sedgwick on the eventful Friday and the meeting at once resolved itself into a court. Consul Forch interrogated the gentleman, and he, in turn, attacking the accusations against Sedgwick to a disreputable habit, but that Sedgwick did not disgrace himself. They did not wait as well known as the gentleman. This gentleman is an American. The meeting adjourned. Towards the close of the meeting Forch, in a very angry mood, and great excitement prevailed, attempts being made to smother and deny the true state of affairs. But the facts, as well known, will not be smothered.

Dusting the White House.

WASHINGTON, August 31.—[Special Telegram to the Bee.]—The reign of the white house and decorators of the white house is rapidly drawing to a close. The painters have already finished the first coat of white paint on the exterior walls and are now engaged on the second. The building in some places is almost as dirty now as before the painting began. The gnats and other insects took to the brush and the painters had to send a messenger for Judge Wylie to protect them from the gnats. The purpose of dusting the white house is to clean it and to prevent the gnats from coming in. The work is being done by a contractor named G. W. Gresham. The work is being done in a very thorough manner. The walls are being cleaned with a solution of lime and water. The work is being done in a very thorough manner. The walls are being cleaned with a solution of lime and water. The work is being done in a very thorough manner. The walls are being cleaned with a solution of lime and water.

Minister Jackson's Successor.

WASHINGTON, August 31.—[Special Telegram to the Bee.]—The name of Alex. Lawson, of Georgia, is prominently mentioned for minister to Mexico to succeed Mr. Jackson. Mr. Lawson was nominated minister to Russia early in Mr. Cleveland's administration, but it was then discovered that his political disabilities had not been removed. Lawson subsequently passed an act restoring Mr. Lawson to citizenship, and he is now to be honored as the successor to his former position. Lawson's resignation is said to have been accepted solely by the dissatisfaction of his wife with her new home.

PREPARING THE POOL.

CHICAGO, August 31.—There was an all-day session today of the general managers' committee of the Chicago & North Western Railway Association, called by J. T. Tucker, of the St. Paul road, to prepare for the pooling of all business, both passenger and freight. The following lines were represented: St. Paul, Northwestern, Burlington, Rock Island, Chicago, Burlington & Northern, Central Iowa, Illinois Central, Minneapolis & St. Louis. The whole day was spent in preliminary discussions, excepting that the subject of territorial limits was brought up. It was decided that the territory should be practically the same as that of the old Northwestern Traffic Association, but with the following exceptions: Between Chicago, Peoria, St. Louis, Burlington, Mississippi river points, St. Paul, Minnesota, Trausler, Minneapolis, and Chicago, St. Paul, and Wisconsin. An adjournment was had until 10 o'clock to-morrow morning.

Still Another Boston Failure.

BOSTON, August 31.—Nichols & Farnsworth, dealers in shoe manufacturers' goods, have suspended. This firm carried on business in this city for many years, and has ranked with the leading houses in the trade. The cause of the failure is attributed to a bad management of Farnsworth, for whom the firm is endorsed. It is said, to a huge extent. The firm dissolved yesterday by the withdrawal of Farnsworth, who filed a voluntary petition for bankruptcy in the United States court. Liabilities heavy, but no estimates given.

Ainsworth's Strides Forward.

AINSWORTH, Neb., August 31.—[Special to the Bee.]—A meeting of business men was held here and the preliminary steps were taken for the organization of a board of trade. John C. Sullivan was chosen president, and F. J. Smith was chosen secretary. The organization will be perfected at once. A one hundred barrel flouring mill is reported and practical miller who builds and operates the mill.

A Village Disaster.

SOUTH RYLANDTON, Vt., August 31.—Nearly the entire business portion of this village and a number of dwellings burned last night. After a fierce fight the flames were kept under control until 3 o'clock this morning. Loss estimated at $75,000. The loss is now found to be much greater than at first supposed. The loss amounts to $100,000, if not more.

The Police Detail.

The police for September will be detailed as follows: Thomas Cornick, captain; John McDonald, deputy marshal; Lawrence Jaspersen, sixteenth, Dodge to Nicholas; John Brady, ninth, Tenth and Eleventh north of Douglas; Jerry O'Grady, Tenth, Howard to depot; John Norman, South Thirtieth; H. T. Heze, Farnam street; Patrick Hinchey, Thirtieth, Harney to bridge; Dan Kennedy, Twelfth, Douglas to Capitol avenue; Andrew Crawford, Douglas street, Thirtieth to Sixteenth; James O'Boyle, Cuming; Richard Burdick, at large; Pat Murphy, Thirtieth, Howard to bridge; John Rowley, streets and alleys; Horrihan, streets and alleys; Michael Whalen, court officer; John Turnbull, city business; Pete Turkelson, patrol driver.

Sedgwick Sends a Denial.

WASHINGTON, August 31.—Secretary of State Bayard received this afternoon a telegram from A. G. Sedgwick, stating that the stories circulated about him are ridiculous, false, and that he had no part in the effect would be produced whenever he was called upon by the secretary of state therefor.

THE NEWS-GATHERER'S FRIEND.

A Natural Disability That Caused the Arrest of the Second Assistant Secretary—Postal Cards on the Decline.

WASHINGTON, August 29.—[Special Correspondence of the Bee.]—The man who above all others is the most respected in the state department is ex-Governor Porter of Tennessee, first assistant secretary of state. While the other high officials, including Secretary Fish, are in the city, Porter is at his home in Nashville, and is a very popular man. He is always ready to answer any reasonable question not in the nature of a diplomatic secret, and never indulges in pretentious or faltering for the purpose of throwing the inquiry of the press. Governor Porter will give a direct answer to every question put to him. If the question is one such as he cannot answer because of its encroachment on the line of diplomacy, he will tell the questioner so frankly. For this reason Governor Porter is more highly esteemed by the people here than any other state department man of any other official there.

AN AWKWARD DILEMMA.

The second assistant secretary, Mr. Ade, is an experienced diplomat. He has been connected with the state department for a number of years, and is a very popular man. He is always ready to answer any reasonable question not in the nature of a diplomatic secret, and never indulges in pretentious or faltering for the purpose of throwing the inquiry of the press. Governor Porter will give a direct answer to every question put to him. If the question is one such as he cannot answer because of its encroachment on the line of diplomacy, he will tell the questioner so frankly. For this reason Governor Porter is more highly esteemed by the people here than any other state department man of any other official there.

RESCUED THEIR LABORERS.

The City Fathers at Work After a Two Week's Vacation.

The first half hour of the council meeting last night was devoted to handshaking, the council chamber being filled with friends of the aldermen who were anxious to meet them. Their return from their western trip. All were present except Alderman Kasper. The mayor's communication, approving certain ordinances adopted at the last meeting, was read, and placed on file. The contract of J. E. Riley for the construction of the north Omaha sewer, was approved. Marshal Cummings reported, in reply to a resolution concerning the finding of the two girls, Belle Gilman and Anna Thompson, that the information that they had been found in the Cosmopolitan hotel had not been given to the police. A motion to place the report on file was opposed by Alderman Schroeder, who wanted the marshal instructed to inform the council where the girls were found. On motion of Alderman Lee the report was placed on file. Leave of absence for ten days was granted J. E. House, chairman of the board of public works. Samuel Stover was appointed inspector of the North Omaha sewer. The inspector's pay-roll for the month of August was allowed. Estimates for a large amount of public work were reported by the board of public works, and placed on file. The estimate of Murphy, Craghton & Co. for the paving of Sixteenth street, amounting to $26,110.95, was approved and placed on file. The proposal of Regan & Co. for the construction of the basement of the city hall was received, and the board of public works instructed to award the contract to them. Captain Monahan petitioned the council to appoint the block watchmen employed by him as special policemen. Referred to the committee on police. A paving contract involving Twenty-fifth street was ordered created. Michael Hatton presented a communication alleging that on the 28th of August, his wife went to the engine houses of the city to secure a water meter, and was assaulted by one Turner, an employe of the company, and severely injured. The petitioner asked Judge Stearns to issue a warrant for Turner's arrest, but he refused to comply with the request. The council was referred to the committee on police. Petitions asking for the opening and extension of Twentieth, Twenty-first, Twenty-second, Twenty-third, Twentieth and Twenty-fifth streets were referred to the committee on grades and grading. The residents of Boggs & Hill's second addition petitioned to have the water works extended on Twenty-ninth avenue. Fire and water works were referred to the committee on grades and grading. A petition asking for the grading of Webster street from Eighteenth to Twenty-third, to a width of 70 feet was referred to the committee on grades and grading. A communication was presented from residents, asking that the nuisance existing in the shanties on Burt street, near Fourteenth street, be abated, was referred to the committee on public nuisances. RESOLUTIONS. By Cheney—That the street commissioner be instructed to cut all of the grass on the city. Public property and improvements. By Bailey—That it is the sense of this council that six of the present members of the police force should be mounted and sent to the country until the first of February, 1887. The next morning, the council adjourned.

TAKEN IN BY A "CON" SHARP.

An Iowa Farmer Robbed by a Bogus United States Marshal.

REUBEN JOHNSON'S FATAL RIDE. Mrs. McKaig Hurt—Horseshoers Happy—The Paving Bonds—Blood at Grand Island—The Council and Other Local.

A Bogus U. S. Marshal. An honest looking elderly gentleman, giving his name as Robert Taylor, walked into the police station at 2 o'clock this morning and gave the particulars of the manner in which he had been made the victim of the nearest confidence game of the season. For thirty years he has been living in Ringgold county, Iowa, but recently he decided to move to Nevada county, Nebraska. With his wife, daughter and son-in-law he passed through Omaha on Sunday evening in a prairie schooner. He reached a point five miles east of Fremont, yesterday and was sleeping at the residence of George Godfrey when a young fellow arrived in a carriage and served papers upon him charging him with having passed counterfeit money at the residence of the man who had been arrested. The young man gave his name as Thomas Kelley and said he was a deputy United States Marshal. He was going to bring the entire party to Omaha, and he decided that he would be satisfied to bring only Mr. and Mrs. Taylor if the entire party would turn over all of their money to him so he could tell whether they had any and was sleeping at the residence of George Godfrey when a young fellow arrived in a carriage and served papers upon him charging him with having passed counterfeit money at the residence of the man who had been arrested. The young man gave his name as Thomas Kelley and said he was a deputy United States Marshal. He was going to bring the entire party to Omaha, and he decided that he would be satisfied to bring only Mr. and Mrs. Taylor if the entire party would turn over all of their money to him so he could tell whether they had any and was sleeping at the residence of George Godfrey when a young fellow arrived in a carriage and served papers upon him charging him with having passed counterfeit money at the residence of the man who had been arrested. The young man gave his name as Thomas Kelley and said he was a deputy United States Marshal. He was going to bring the entire party to Omaha, and he decided that he would be satisfied to bring only Mr. and Mrs. Taylor if the entire party would turn over all of their money to him so he could tell whether they had any and was sleeping at the residence of George Godfrey when a young fellow arrived in a carriage and served papers upon him charging him with having passed counterfeit money at the residence of the man who had been arrested. The young man gave his name as Thomas Kelley and said he was a deputy United States Marshal. He was going to bring the entire party to Omaha, and he decided that he would be satisfied to bring only Mr. and Mrs. Taylor if the entire party would turn over all of their money to him so he could tell whether they had any and was sleeping at the residence of George Godfrey when a young fellow arrived in a carriage and served papers upon him charging him with having passed counterfeit money at the residence of the man who had been arrested. The young man gave his name as Thomas Kelley and said he was a deputy United States Marshal. He was going to bring the entire party to Omaha, and he decided that he would be satisfied to bring only Mr. and Mrs. Taylor if the entire party would turn over all of their money to him so he could tell whether they had any and was sleeping at the residence of George Godfrey when a young fellow arrived in a carriage and served papers upon him charging him with having passed counterfeit money at the residence of the man who had been arrested. The young man gave his name as Thomas Kelley and said he was a deputy United States Marshal. He was going to bring the entire party to Omaha, and he decided that he would be satisfied to bring only Mr. and Mrs. Taylor if the entire party would turn over all of their money to him so he could tell whether they had any and was sleeping at the residence of George Godfrey when a young fellow arrived in a carriage and served papers upon him charging him with having passed counterfeit money at the residence of the man who had been arrested. The young man gave his name as Thomas Kelley and said he was a deputy United States Marshal. He was going to bring the entire party to Omaha, and he decided that he would be satisfied to bring only Mr. and Mrs. Taylor if the entire party would turn over all of their money to him so he could tell whether they had any and was sleeping at the residence of George Godfrey when a young fellow arrived in a carriage and served papers upon him charging him with having passed counterfeit money at the residence of the man who had been arrested. The young man gave his name as Thomas Kelley and said he was a deputy United States Marshal. He was going to bring the entire party to Omaha, and he decided that he would be satisfied to bring only Mr. and Mrs. Taylor if the entire party would turn over all of their money to him so he could tell whether they had any and was sleeping at the residence of George Godfrey when a young fellow arrived in a carriage and served papers upon him charging him with having passed counterfeit money at the residence of the man who had been arrested. The young man gave his name as Thomas Kelley and said he was a deputy United States Marshal. He was going to bring the entire party to Omaha, and he decided that he would be satisfied to bring only Mr. and Mrs. Taylor if the entire party would turn over all of their money to him so he could tell whether they had any and was sleeping at the residence of George Godfrey when a young fellow arrived in a carriage and served papers upon him charging him with having passed counterfeit money at the residence of the man who had been arrested. The young man gave his name as Thomas Kelley and said he was a deputy United States Marshal. He was going to bring the entire party to Omaha, and he decided that he would be satisfied to bring only Mr. and Mrs. Taylor if the entire party would turn over all of their money to him so he could tell whether they had any and was sleeping at the residence of George Godfrey when a young fellow arrived in a carriage and served papers upon him charging him with having passed counterfeit money at the residence of the man who had been arrested. The young man gave his name as Thomas Kelley and said he was a deputy United States Marshal. He was going to bring the entire party to Omaha, and he decided that he would be satisfied to bring only Mr. and Mrs. Taylor if the entire party would turn over all of their money to him so he could tell whether they had any and was sleeping at the residence of George Godfrey when a young fellow arrived in a carriage and served papers upon him charging him with having passed counterfeit money at the residence of the man who had been arrested. The young man gave his name as Thomas Kelley and said he was a deputy United States Marshal. He was going to bring the entire party to Omaha, and he decided that he would be satisfied to bring only Mr. and Mrs. Taylor if the entire party would turn over all of their money to him so he could tell whether they had any and was sleeping at the residence of George Godfrey when a young fellow arrived in a carriage and served papers upon him charging him with having passed counterfeit money at the residence of the man who had been arrested. The young man gave his name as Thomas Kelley and said he was a deputy United States Marshal. He was going to bring the entire party to Omaha, and he decided that he would be satisfied to bring only Mr. and Mrs. Taylor if the entire party would turn over all of their money to him so he could tell whether they had any and was sleeping at the residence of George Godfrey when a young fellow arrived in a carriage and served papers upon him charging him with having passed counterfeit money at the residence of the man who had been arrested. The young man gave his name as Thomas Kelley and said he was a deputy United States Marshal. He was going to bring the entire party to Omaha, and he decided that he would be satisfied to bring only Mr. and Mrs. Taylor if the entire party would turn over all of their money to him so he could tell whether they had any and was sleeping at the residence of George Godfrey when a young fellow arrived in a carriage and served papers upon him charging him with having passed counterfeit money at the residence of the man who had been arrested. The young man gave his name as Thomas Kelley and said he was a deputy United States Marshal. He was going to bring the entire party to Omaha, and he decided that he would be satisfied to bring only Mr. and Mrs. Taylor if the entire party would turn over all of their money to him so he could tell whether they had any and was sleeping at the residence of George Godfrey when a young fellow arrived in a carriage and served papers upon him charging him with having passed counterfeit money at the residence of the man who had been arrested. The young man gave his name as Thomas Kelley and said he was a deputy United States Marshal. He was going to bring the entire party to Omaha, and he decided that he would be satisfied to bring only Mr. and Mrs. Taylor if the entire party would turn over all of their money to him so he could tell whether they had any and was sleeping at the residence of George Godfrey when a young fellow arrived in a carriage and served papers upon him charging him with having passed counterfeit money at the residence of the man who had been arrested. The young man gave his name as Thomas Kelley and said he was a deputy United States Marshal. He was going to bring the entire party to Omaha, and he decided that he would be satisfied to bring only Mr. and Mrs. Taylor if the entire party would turn over all of their money to him so he could tell whether they had any and was sleeping at the residence of George Godfrey when a young fellow arrived in a carriage and served papers upon him charging him with having passed counterfeit money at the residence of the man who had been arrested. The young man gave his name as Thomas Kelley and said he was a deputy United States Marshal. He was going to bring the entire party to Omaha, and he decided that he would be satisfied to bring only Mr. and Mrs. Taylor if the entire party would turn over all of their money to him so he could tell whether they had any and was sleeping at the residence of George Godfrey when a young fellow arrived in a carriage and served papers upon him charging him with having passed counterfeit money at the residence of the man who had been arrested. The young man gave his name as Thomas Kelley and said he was a deputy United States Marshal. He was going to bring the entire party to Omaha, and he decided that he would be satisfied to bring only Mr. and Mrs. Taylor if the entire party would turn over all of their money to him so he could tell whether they had any and was sleeping at the residence of George Godfrey when a young fellow arrived in a carriage and served papers upon him charging him with having passed counterfeit money at the residence of the man who had been arrested. The young man gave his name as Thomas Kelley and said he was a deputy United States Marshal. He was going to bring the entire party to Omaha, and he decided that he would be satisfied to bring only Mr. and Mrs. Taylor if the entire party would turn over all of their money to him so he could tell whether they had any and was sleeping at the residence of George Godfrey when a young fellow arrived in a carriage and served papers upon him charging him with having passed counterfeit money at the residence of the man who had been arrested. The young man gave his name as Thomas Kelley and said he was a deputy United States Marshal. He was going to bring the entire party to Omaha, and he decided that he would be satisfied to bring only Mr. and Mrs. Taylor if the entire party would turn over all of their money to him so he could tell whether they had any and was sleeping at the residence of George Godfrey when a young fellow arrived in a carriage and served papers upon him charging him with having passed counterfeit money at the residence of the man who had been arrested. The young man gave his name as Thomas Kelley and said he was a deputy United States Marshal. He was going to bring the entire party to Omaha, and he decided that he would be satisfied to bring only Mr. and Mrs. Taylor if the entire party would turn over all of their money to him so he could tell whether they had any and was sleeping at the residence of George Godfrey when a young fellow arrived in a carriage and served papers upon him charging him with having passed counterfeit money at the residence of the man who had been arrested. The young man gave his name as Thomas Kelley and said he was a deputy United States Marshal. He was going to bring the entire party to Omaha, and he decided that he would be satisfied to bring only Mr. and Mrs. Taylor if the entire party would turn over all of their money to him so he could tell whether they had any and was sleeping at the residence of George Godfrey when a young fellow arrived in a carriage and served papers upon him charging him with having passed counterfeit money at the residence of the man who had been arrested. The young man gave his name as Thomas Kelley and said he was a deputy United States Marshal. He was going to bring the entire party to Omaha, and he decided that he would be satisfied to bring only Mr. and Mrs. Taylor if the entire party would turn over all of their money to him so he could tell whether they had any and was sleeping at the residence of George Godfrey when a young fellow arrived in a carriage and served papers upon him charging him with having passed counterfeit money at the residence of the man who had been arrested. The young man gave his name as Thomas Kelley and said he was a deputy United States Marshal. He was going to bring the entire party to Omaha, and he decided that he would be satisfied to bring only Mr. and Mrs. Taylor if the entire party would turn over all of their money to him so he could tell whether they had any and was sleeping at the residence of George Godfrey when a young fellow arrived in a carriage and served papers upon him charging him with having passed counterfeit money at the residence of the man who had been arrested. The young man gave his name as Thomas Kelley and said he was a deputy United States Marshal. He was going to bring the entire party to Omaha, and he decided that he would be satisfied to bring only Mr. and Mrs. Taylor if the entire party would turn over all of their money to him so he could tell whether they had any and was sleeping at the residence of George Godfrey when a young fellow arrived in a carriage and served papers upon him charging him with having passed counterfeit money at the residence of the man who had been arrested. The young man gave his name as Thomas Kelley and said he was a deputy United States Marshal. He was going to bring the entire party to Omaha, and he decided that he would be satisfied to bring only Mr. and Mrs. Taylor if the entire party would turn over all of their money to him so he could tell whether they had any and was sleeping at the residence of George Godfrey when a young fellow arrived in a carriage and served papers upon him charging him with having passed counterfeit money at the residence of the man who had been arrested. The young man gave his name as Thomas Kelley and said he was a deputy United States Marshal. He was going to bring the entire party to Omaha, and he decided that he would be satisfied to bring only Mr. and Mrs. Taylor if the entire party would turn over all of their money to him so he could tell whether they had any and was sleeping at the residence of George Godfrey when a young fellow arrived in a carriage and served papers upon him charging him with having passed counterfeit money at the residence of the man who had been arrested. The young man gave his name as Thomas Kelley and said he was a deputy United States Marshal. He was going to bring the entire party to Omaha, and he decided that he would be satisfied to bring only Mr. and Mrs. Taylor if the entire party would turn over all of their money to him so he could tell whether they had any and was sleeping at the residence of George Godfrey when a young fellow arrived in a carriage and served papers upon him charging him with having passed counterfeit money at the residence of the man who had been arrested. The young man gave his name as Thomas Kelley and said he was a deputy United States Marshal. He was going to bring the entire party to Omaha, and he decided that he would be satisfied to bring only Mr. and Mrs. Taylor if the entire party would turn over all of their money to him so he could tell whether they had any and was sleeping at the residence of George Godfrey when a young fellow arrived in a carriage and served papers upon him charging him with having passed counterfeit money at the residence of the man who had been arrested. The young man gave his name as Thomas Kelley and said he was a deputy United States Marshal. He was going to bring the entire party to Omaha, and he decided that he would be satisfied to bring only Mr. and Mrs. Taylor if the entire party would turn over all of their money to him so he could tell whether they had any and was sleeping at the residence of George Godfrey when a young fellow arrived in a carriage and served papers upon him charging him with having passed counterfeit money at the residence of the man who had been arrested. The young man gave his name as Thomas Kelley and said he was a deputy United States Marshal. He was going to bring the entire party to Omaha, and he decided that he would be satisfied to bring only Mr. and Mrs. Taylor if the entire party would turn over all of their money to him so he could tell whether they had any and was sleeping at the residence of George Godfrey when a young fellow arrived in a carriage and served papers upon him charging him with having passed counterfeit money at the residence of the man who had been arrested. The young man gave his name as Thomas Kelley and said he was a deputy United States Marshal. He was going to bring the entire party to Omaha, and he decided that he would be satisfied to bring only Mr. and Mrs. Taylor if the entire party would turn over all of their money to him so he could tell whether they had any and was sleeping at the residence of George Godfrey when a young fellow arrived in a carriage and served papers upon him charging him with having passed counterfeit money at the residence of the man who had been arrested. The young man gave his name as Thomas Kelley and said he was a deputy United States Marshal. He was going to bring the entire party to Omaha, and he decided that he would be satisfied to bring only Mr. and Mrs. Taylor if the entire party would turn over all of their money to him so he could tell whether they had any and was sleeping at the residence of George Godfrey when a young fellow arrived in a carriage and served papers upon him charging him with having passed counterfeit money at the residence of the man who had been arrested. The young man gave his name as Thomas Kelley and said he was a deputy United States Marshal. He was going to bring the entire party to Omaha, and he decided that he would be satisfied to bring only Mr. and Mrs. Taylor if the entire party would turn over all of their money to him so he could tell whether they had any and was sleeping at the residence of George Godfrey when a young fellow arrived in a carriage and served papers upon him charging him with having passed counterfeit money at the residence of the man who had been arrested. The young man gave his name as Thomas Kelley and said he was a deputy United States Marshal. He was going to bring the entire party to Omaha, and he decided that he would be satisfied to bring only Mr. and Mrs. Taylor if the entire party would turn over all of their money to him so he could tell whether they had any and was sleeping at the residence of George Godfrey when a young fellow arrived in a carriage and served papers upon him charging him with having passed counterfeit money at the residence of the man who had been arrested. The young man gave his name as Thomas Kelley and said he was a deputy United States Marshal. He was going to bring the entire party to Omaha, and he decided that he would be satisfied to bring only Mr. and Mrs. Taylor if the entire party would turn over all of their money to him so he could tell whether they had any and was sleeping at the residence of George Godfrey when a young fellow arrived in a carriage and served papers upon him charging him with having passed counterfeit money at the residence of the man who had been arrested. The young man gave his name as Thomas Kelley and said he was a deputy United States Marshal. He was going to bring the entire party to Omaha, and he decided that he would be satisfied to bring only Mr. and Mrs. Taylor if the entire party would turn over all of their money to him so he could tell whether they had any and was sleeping at the residence of George Godfrey when a young fellow arrived in a carriage and served papers upon him charging him with having passed counterfeit money at the residence of the man who had been arrested. The young man gave his name as Thomas Kelley and said he was a deputy United States Marshal. He was going to bring the entire party to Omaha, and he decided that he would be satisfied to bring only Mr. and Mrs. Taylor if the entire party would turn over all of their money to him so he could tell whether they had any and was sleeping at the residence of George Godfrey when a young fellow arrived in a carriage and served papers upon him charging him with having passed counterfeit money at the residence of the man who had been arrested. The young man gave his name as Thomas Kelley and said he was a deputy United States Marshal. He was going to bring the entire party to Omaha, and he decided that he would be satisfied to bring only Mr. and Mrs. Taylor if the entire party would turn over all of their money to him so he could tell whether they had any and was sleeping at the residence of George Godfrey when a young fellow arrived in a carriage and served papers upon him charging him with having passed counterfeit money at the residence of the man who had been arrested. The young man gave his name as Thomas Kelley and said he was a deputy United States Marshal. He was going to bring the entire party to Omaha, and he decided that he would be satisfied to bring only Mr. and Mrs. Taylor if the entire party would turn over all of their money to him so he could tell whether they had any and was sleeping at the residence of George Godfrey when a young fellow arrived in a carriage and served papers upon him charging him with having passed counterfeit money at the residence of the man who had been arrested. The young man gave his name as Thomas Kelley and said he was a deputy United States Marshal. He was going to bring the entire party to Omaha, and he decided that he would be satisfied to bring only Mr. and Mrs. Taylor if the entire party would turn over all of their money to him so he could tell whether they had any and was sleeping at the residence of George Godfrey when a young fellow arrived in a carriage and served papers upon him charging him with having passed counterfeit money at the residence of the man who had been arrested. The young man gave his name as Thomas Kelley and said he was a deputy United States Marshal. He was going to bring the entire party to Omaha, and he decided that he would be satisfied to bring only Mr. and Mrs. Taylor if the entire party would turn over all of their money to him so he could tell whether they had any and was sleeping at the residence of George Godfrey when a young fellow arrived in a carriage and served papers upon him charging him with having passed counterfeit money at the residence of the man who had been arrested. The young man gave his name as Thomas Kelley and said he was a deputy United States Marshal. He was going to bring the entire party to Omaha, and he decided that he would be satisfied to bring only Mr. and Mrs. Taylor if the entire party would turn over all of their money to him so he could tell whether they had any and was sleeping at the residence of George Godfrey when a young fellow arrived in a carriage and served papers upon him charging him with having passed counterfeit money at the residence of the man who had been arrested. The young man gave his name as Thomas Kelley and said he was a deputy United States Marshal. He was going to bring the entire party to Omaha, and he decided that he would be satisfied to bring only Mr. and Mrs. Taylor if the entire party would turn over all of their money to him so he could tell whether they had any and was sleeping at the residence of George Godfrey when a young fellow arrived in a carriage and served papers upon him charging him with having passed counterfeit money at the residence of the man who had been arrested. The young man gave his name as Thomas Kelley and said he was a deputy United States Marshal. He was going to bring the entire party to Omaha, and he decided that he would be satisfied to bring only Mr. and Mrs. Taylor if the entire party would turn over all of their money to him so he could tell whether they had any and was sleeping at the residence of George Godfrey when a young fellow arrived in a carriage and served papers upon him charging him with having passed counterfeit money at the residence of the man who had been arrested. The young man gave his name as Thomas Kelley and said he was a deputy United States Marshal. He was going to bring the entire party to Omaha, and he decided that he would be satisfied to bring only Mr. and Mrs. Taylor if the entire party would turn over all of their money to him so he could tell whether they had any and was sleeping at the residence of George Godfrey when a young fellow arrived in a carriage and served papers upon him charging him with having passed counterfeit money at the residence of the man who had been arrested. The young man gave his name as Thomas Kelley and said he was a deputy United States Marshal. He was going to bring the entire party to Omaha, and he decided that he would be satisfied to bring only Mr. and Mrs. Taylor if the entire party would turn over all of their money to him so he could tell whether they had any and was sleeping at the residence of George Godfrey when a young fellow arrived in a carriage and served papers upon him charging him with having passed counterfeit money at the residence of the man who had been arrested. The young man gave his name as Thomas Kelley and said he was a deputy United States Marshal. He was going to bring the entire party to Omaha, and he decided that he would be satisfied to bring only Mr. and Mrs. Taylor if the entire party would turn over all of their money to him so he could tell whether they had any and was sleeping at the residence of George Godfrey when a young fellow arrived in a carriage and served papers upon him charging him with having passed counterfeit money at the residence of the man who had been arrested. The young man gave his name as Thomas Kelley and said he was a deputy United States Marshal. He was going to bring the entire party to Omaha, and he decided that he would be satisfied to bring only Mr. and Mrs. Taylor if the entire party would turn over all of their money to him so he could tell whether they had any and was sleeping at the residence of George Godfrey when a young fellow arrived in a carriage and served papers upon him charging him with having passed counterfeit money at the residence of the man who had been arrested. The young man gave his name as Thomas Kelley and said he was a deputy United States Marshal. He was going to bring the entire party to Omaha, and he decided that he would be satisfied to bring only Mr. and Mrs. Taylor if the entire party would turn over all of their money to him so he could tell whether they had any and was sleeping at the residence of George Godfrey when a young fellow arrived in a carriage and served papers upon him charging him with having passed counterfeit money at the residence of the man who had been arrested. The young man gave his name as Thomas Kelley and said he was a deputy United States Marshal. He was going to bring the entire party to Omaha, and he decided that he would be satisfied to bring only Mr. and Mrs. Taylor if the entire party would turn over all of their money to him so he could tell whether they had any and was sleeping at the residence of George Godfrey when a young fellow arrived in a carriage and served papers upon him charging him with having passed counterfeit money at the residence of the man who had been arrested. The young man gave his name as Thomas Kelley and said he was a deputy United States Marshal. He was going to bring the entire party to Omaha, and he decided that he would be satisfied to bring only Mr. and Mrs. Taylor if the entire party would turn over all of their money to him so he could tell whether they had any and was sleeping at the residence of George Godfrey when a young fellow arrived in a carriage and served papers upon him charging him with having passed counterfeit money at the residence of the man who had been arrested. The young man gave his name as Thomas Kelley and said he was a deputy United States Marshal. He was going to bring the entire party to Omaha, and he decided that he would be satisfied to bring only Mr. and Mrs. Taylor if the entire party would turn over all of their money to him so he could tell whether they had any and was sleeping at the residence of George Godfrey when a young fellow arrived in a carriage and served papers upon him charging him with having passed counterfeit money at the residence of the man who had been arrested. The young man gave his name as Thomas Kelley and said he was a deputy United States Marshal. He was going to bring the entire party to Omaha, and he decided that he would be satisfied to bring only Mr. and Mrs. Taylor if the entire party would turn over all of their money to him so he could tell whether they had any and was sleeping at the residence of George Godfrey when a young fellow arrived in a carriage and served papers upon him charging him with having passed counterfeit money at the residence of the man who had been arrested. The young man gave his name as Thomas Kelley and said he was a deputy United States Marshal. He was going to bring the entire party to Omaha, and he decided that he would be satisfied to bring only Mr. and Mrs. Taylor if the entire party would turn over all of their money to him so he could tell whether they had any and was sleeping at the residence of George Godfrey when a young fellow arrived in a carriage and served papers upon him charging him with having passed counterfeit money at the residence of the man who had been arrested. The young man gave his name as Thomas Kelley and said he was a deputy United States Marshal. He was going to bring the entire party to Omaha, and he decided that he would be satisfied to bring only Mr. and Mrs. Taylor if the entire party would turn over all of their money to him so he could tell whether they had any and was sleeping at the residence of George Godfrey when a young fellow arrived in a carriage and served papers upon him charging him with having passed counterfeit money at the residence of the man who had been arrested. The young man gave his name as Thomas Kelley and said he was a deputy United States Marshal. He was going to bring the entire party to Omaha, and he decided that he would be satisfied to bring only Mr. and Mrs. Taylor if the entire party would turn over all of their money to him so he could tell whether they had any and was sleeping at the residence of George Godfrey when a young fellow arrived in a carriage and served papers upon him charging him with having passed counterfeit money at the residence of the man who had been arrested. The young man gave his name as Thomas Kelley and said he was a deputy United States Marshal. He was going to bring the entire party to Omaha, and he decided that he would be satisfied to bring only Mr. and Mrs. Taylor if the entire party would turn over all of their money to him so he could tell whether they had any and was sleeping at the residence of George Godfrey when a young fellow arrived in a carriage and served papers upon him charging him with having passed counterfeit money at the residence of the man who had been arrested. The young man gave his name as Thomas Kelley and said he was a deputy United States Marshal. He was going to bring the entire party to Omaha, and he decided that he would be satisfied to bring only Mr. and Mrs. Taylor if the entire party would turn over all of their money to him so he could tell whether they had any and was sleeping at the residence of George Godfrey when a young fellow arrived in a carriage and served papers upon him charging him with having passed counterfeit money at the residence of the man who had been arrested. The young man gave his name as Thomas Kelley and said he was a deputy United States Marshal. He was going to bring the entire party to Omaha, and he decided that he would be satisfied to bring only Mr. and Mrs. Taylor if the entire party would turn over all of their money to him so he could tell whether they had any and was sleeping at the residence of George Godfrey when a young fellow arrived in a carriage and served papers upon him charging him with having passed counterfeit money at the residence of the man who had been arrested. The young man gave his name as Thomas Kelley and said he was a deputy United States Marshal. He was going to bring the entire party to Omaha, and he decided that he would be satisfied to bring only Mr. and Mrs. Taylor if the entire party would turn over all of their money to him so he could tell whether they had any and was sleeping at the residence of George Godfrey when a young fellow arrived in a carriage and served papers upon him charging him with having passed counterfeit money at the residence of the man who had been arrested. The young man gave his name as Thomas Kelley and said he was a deputy United States Marshal. He was going to bring the entire party to Omaha, and he decided that he would be satisfied to bring only Mr. and Mrs. Taylor if the entire party would turn over all of their money to him so he could tell whether they had any and was sleeping at the residence of George Godfrey when a young fellow arrived in a carriage and served papers upon him charging him with having passed counterfeit money at the residence of the man who had been arrested. The young man gave his name as Thomas Kelley and said he was a deputy United States Marshal. He was going to bring the entire party to Omaha, and he decided that he would be satisfied to bring only Mr. and Mrs. Taylor if the entire party would turn over all of their money to him so he could tell whether they had any and was sleeping at the residence of George Godfrey when a young fellow arrived in a carriage and served papers upon him charging him with having passed counterfeit money at the residence of the man who had been arrested. The young man gave his name as Thomas Kelley and said he was a deputy United States Marshal. He was going to bring the entire party to Omaha, and he decided that he would be satisfied to bring only Mr. and Mrs. Taylor if the entire party would turn over all of their money to him so he could tell whether they had any and was sleeping at the residence of George Godfrey when a young fellow arrived in a carriage and served papers upon him charging him with having passed counterfeit money at the residence of the man who had been arrested. The young man gave his name as Thomas Kelley and said he was a deputy United States Marshal. He was going to bring the entire party to Omaha, and he decided that he would be satisfied to bring only Mr. and Mrs. Taylor if the entire party would turn over all of their money to him so he could tell whether they had any and was sleeping at the residence of George Godfrey when a young fellow arrived in a carriage and served papers upon him charging him with having passed counterfeit money at the residence of the man who had been arrested. The young man gave his name as Thomas Kelley and said he was a deputy United States Marshal. He was going to bring the entire party to Omaha, and he decided that he would be satisfied to bring only Mr. and Mrs. Taylor if the entire party would turn over all of their money to him so he could tell whether they had any and was sleeping at the residence of George Godfrey when a young fellow arrived in a carriage and served papers upon him charging him with having passed counterfeit money at the residence of the man who had been arrested. The young man gave his name as Thomas Kelley and said he was a deputy United States Marshal. He was going to bring the entire party to Omaha, and he decided that he would be satisfied to bring only Mr. and Mrs. Taylor if the entire party would turn over all of their money to him so he could tell whether they had any and was sleeping at the residence of George Godfrey when a young fellow arrived in a carriage and served papers upon him charging him with having passed counterfeit money at the residence of the man who had been arrested. The young man gave his name as Thomas Kelley and said he was a deputy United States Marshal. He was going to bring the entire party to Omaha, and he decided that he would be satisfied to bring only Mr. and Mrs. Taylor if the entire