THE TWIN-FEATURED SUCCESS

The Great Omaha Fair and the Inter-State Exposition.

CHILDREN'S DAY AT THE FAIR.

Young America Storms the Grounds —The Races—The Awards—New Features of the Exposition— To-Day's Programme.

Yesterday Morning.

Yesterday morning the liveliest aspect while Sherman avenue has presented in years, was imparted to it by the presence of thousands of children plodding along to the fair. They took the road before eight o'clock, and before nine there were several thousands of Little Toddlekins and his sister on the grounds. The park looked fresh and inviting as a rural scene on a morning in May. The children were in their glory. They wandered everywhere, among the booths, among the horses, among the hucksters, and on the swings and merry-go-rounds. The air was resonant with their shouts, it was also freighted with the mercenary cry of the vender of lemonade, pop-corn and peanuts. The active nickel did not remain long in the childish pocket, but went to enrich the wary individual who had temptingly arranged his sweetmeats to capture the youthful treasure.

The race course was alive with foaming, dashing racers, and in delightful watch of these as they made the circuit, hundreds of American embryo citizens took noisy possession of the grand stand. The reporters' desks, which only yesterday were consecrated to the use of the profession, were soon occupied by young gentlemen who seemed wonderfully proficient in beating their sides with the devil's tattoo. It was the day for the youth of the city, in which the authority of the gentle school teacher had been cast aside, and in its stead had been substituted right royal enjoyment.

Sherman avenue was in the morning sprinkled, as were also the streets on the grounds. This was done, both by the rain from heaven which had fallen in the night, as well as by the terrestrial engines used for that purpose.

Exhibitors were again engaged in putting their displays in place, and it was regretfully announced that some of the most responsible of these would not be able to appear because of the detention of their wares by the railroads and the absolute impossibility of getting them out in time.

AGRICULTURAL.

In the floral hall nearly all the exhibits had been arranged. Douglas county occupied about one-quarter of the structure with a display which, notwithstanding the recent drought, had never been equaled in this county before. The corn was, in some instances, fifteen feet high, with heavy and solid ears that seemed to have experienced little trouble from the dry spell. Then there was a world of vegetables, pumpkins as big as the globe, beats the size of a lion, and potatoes with but half a dozen to the peck. The wheat, rye, millet and oats looked excellent, and all were arranged in a large pile in the middle and both sides of the wing. The display of fruit and flowers was also excellent, and over these Mr. C. J. Ryan exercised supervision. He showed a reporter for the BEE some magnificent Miner plums, which he claims stand the ravages of insects which prove destructive to others of different grades.

CHEYENNE COUNTY.

This county was formally a desert. It would now seem to give promise of soon blossoming like a rose. The appearance of the desert has gradually been destroyed by the introduction of irrigation, and now, even irrigation has disappeared and crops are being raised subject only to the natural water fall from the heavens. The exhibit which is now being made here by the county, under these circumstances, is somewhat remarkable. It is complete in everything except Buffalo grass, no sample of which has been brought along. There is a good specimen of sugar cane now in its second year of cultivation, which is still a venture. The corn was good, the pumpkins, squashes large and hardy, the rye, wheat, oats, millet and clover seemed to compare favorably with that of some of the other exhibits, while the natural grasses were both luxuriant and juicy. The display is made under the direction of E. O. Lee and Henry Donor.

CAPTAIN CRAWFORD'S CURIOSITIES.

In the Art hall Captain Crawford's collection of Indian curiosities attracts great attention. They show the devotion of this gallant soldier to his profession, and the studiousness with which he sought among the savages for a means of giving civilized people a knowledge of their lives. His collection contains hundreds of rare and curious things. There is a lance made out of an old U. S. cavalry sabre, made in 1821, and captured in some way by the Apaches. This was re-taken by Captain Crawford when he destroyed several Indian villages in 1883, and captured 380 Apaches. There is also a collection of Mexican saperos, or floor mats, on which they loll and roll about together and Navajo blankets, woven so closely as to be impervious to water. These are variegated and rich in color, and seem strong enough to last a lifetime. There is a photograph of Charlie McComas, the little boy who three years ago became so mixed up with the Apache troubles. It shows him to have been a most promising little fellow, and his tate, only known by conjecture, to have been indeed unfortunate. There is also a great variety of Apache, Chiricahua arrows, the former with steel heads and the latter with those of flint. One of the strange features of these deadly missiles is a number of canes, with jagged edges, intended, when striking a victim, to inflict a broken and torn wound. Among the photographs are those of all the leading Indians of the times, including the treacherous Geronimo, and Dutchy, the scout who was with Captain Crawford, when the latter was killed. This brave Indian killed the Mexican who fired Crawford's fatal shot, and then followed it up by shooting another member of the same company as also its commander. He subsequently met his fate, however, at the hands of marauding greasers and was sent to the Happy Hunting Grounds. There are stone hammers, moccasins, wampum belts, saddle bags, pipes, papoose cradles, war bonnets and Apache female dresses. The war bonnets are decorated with turkey feathers and present a really handsome appearance. This is so unusual that there is no doubt that when they are seen by some enterprising millinery artiste they will be used to ornament the bonnets of our ladies. The Apache female dress is also an attractive garment, which looks as if it might have been fashioned after some of our modern designs. One of these is on exhibition and attracts much attention with its decoration of deer's blood.

Yesterday Afternoon.

BUTCHER'S GYMNASIUM.

This is a novel contrivance consisting of a high wooden frame supported on wheels. It is drawn around the track at a lively rate, and, while thus in motion a daring athlete, performs some excellent gymnastic feats suspended from the sapporting frames. The feature was a great novelty.

HOUND RACE.

Mr. Walker's hound race, which took place yesterday afternoon and is to take place to-day again, is a novelty which is bound to take a front rank in sporting circles. The hounds are of the tan breed, imported, and five in number the mother and father costing Mr. Walker over $500 each. They are the sleekest and trimmest specimens of the animal kingdom that have ever visited Omaha. The exhibition given by these dumb brutes consists of best two in three heats quarter mile dash. The hounds to chase a horse ridden by a man, the man and horse having about one-third the distance the start. With this advantage the horse ough to win, but as a rule two or three of the hounds are in the lead coming under the wire.

From an artistic stand point the dog race is a success. There is no jockeying among Mr. Evans Walker's tan hounds. They start in the race as though they all meant to win and keep up the clip without a skip or a break the entire heat. They are amusing racers, and exhibit a wonderful amount of good sense. The hounds, yesterday, made the distance in twenty-eight seconds.

The first horse race was the trotting match, three minute class, for a purse of $500. The following were entered: Jennie Cobb, by Ed Pyle, of Humboldt; St. Nicholas, James Vail; Victor Sprague, L. D. Groome, Cedar Rapids, Neb.; Bob Ridley, Theo Van Alst, Elkorn, Neb.; Sleepy Dave, E. J. Lawes, Elkhorn; Nellie G. George Grimes; C. T. C., North Platte; Gladys, R. S. Maloney, ir.; Daisy Vanderbilt, F. G. Bruner, Omaha; Bay Dick, H. Whitaker; Billy Shipman, John D. Creighton, Omaha; Joker, N. Leach, Fairbury, Neb.; George R., Fred Shank; General Schuyler, V. H. Sheely. The last four and Ridley were withdrawn before the first heat. In that Daisy Vanderbilt was distanced. St. Nicholas in it, in 2:35¾. Victor second, Jennie Cobb third, Sleepy Dave fourth.

In the second heat Jennie Cobb, Nicholas and Sprague went under the wire so well together that it required some time to determine to which horse the heat belonged. It was finally decided in favor of Jennie Cobb, St. Nicholas second, Victor Sprague third, Sleepy Dane fourth and Gladys fifth. C. P. C. was distanced. Time—2:35½.

In the third heat St. Nicholas came in first, Jennie Cobb second, Sprague third, Dave fourth and Gladys fifth. The victory of St. Nicholas was a strange achievement, inasmuch as the horse had not distinguished himself through the heat, and seemed to go under the wire in a fatigued condition. Time—2:37.

In the fourth Victor Sprague began to attract attention, and deservedly so, because he won the fourth and fifth heats, in 2:36 and 2:35¾ respectively, thus tying St. Nicholas, and rendering a sixth heat necessary, which he also won in excellent style. Time—2:35½.

The rain commenced to fall just before the third heat, and the other heats and races were carried out under a light shower.

The pacing race, 2:25 class, with a purse of $500 then took place, with the following entries:

Annie J., D. D. Johnson, Weeping Water, Neb.; Flora Temple, W. B. Ford; Mattie Stipp, John S. Wolf, jr., Cedar Rapids, Neb.; Magnolia Maid, C. E. Mayne, Omaha, Neb.; Lady Latta, D. C. Langford, Tekamah, Neb.; Warren Dailey, Cal Dailey & Co., Council Bluffs, Ia.

The last two were withdrawn and Magnolia Maid was distanced in the first heat, Flora Temple winning in 2:28¾, Mattie Stipp second, and Annie J. third. The last two reversed their positions in the second heat, which they allowed Flora to win in 2:28¼. The horses came in in the same order in the last heat, Temple making the double circle in 2:30½, and doing steady work throughout all the heats.

The last race was for three-year-old colt stakes, the association to add $150. The following horses were entered, but only Tramp and Black Oak ran: Saturn, jr., J. G. Weibe, Fairbury, Neb.; Lorette, M. O. Riley, Kearney, Neb.; Tramp S. L. J. Starbuck, McCook; Black Oak, J. G. Graham, Biggsville, Ill.; Winbleton, R. G. Brooks & Co., Brimfield, Ills.

Black Oak won the first heat in 3:05¼, while Tramp took the other two in 2:56 and 2:54¾ respectively.

PHYLLIS AND WILKES.

Mr. Charles Wagner, owner of Phyllis, and Frank Van Ness, owner of Harry Wilkes, arrived with their trotters yesterday noon. The latter trots in to-morrow.

Exposition.

YESTERDAY MORNING.

Yesterday morning the first visitors from the country made their appearance at the exposition. They were in goodly number and walked the building, gazing upon everything as if it were a revelation. They had never seen anything of the kind even in the best of the state fairs we have thus far held. At every turn was found some novelty upon which they lingered with greedy eyes. These people were but the advance couriers of the big excursions which are to follow, and which will no doubt cause the undertaking to prove a first class success. It is somewhat to be regretted that the citizens are not taking the advantage which these early days of the exposition afford to visit it without the annoyance of the great crowds from abroad. They will be sure to be present when those from abroad come, and then they will be compelled to surge around in the packed isles, much to their discomfort and that of the visitors.

Yesterday morning there were several entries made and some of them were assigned to the vacant spaces which were confiscated by the management at the last moment. Of these spaces there are a few left which, however, do not appear to the average visitor, so thoroughly well filled and disposed are the multitudinous exhibits. Mr. Lininger will be pleased to receive application for this vacant space, and as the largest crowds are yet to come, it will be to the advantage of merchants to make immediate application.

There is one feature of this exhibition which is especially commendable, and that is the fact that in it, nearly every manufactory in the city is represented. The same cannot be said of some leading merchants, whose absence, however, is scarcely noticeable in the magnificent displays which are made by some of their younger and more enterprising rivals.

The art catalogue, which has been delayed by several circumstances, will make its appearance to-morrow. Its failure to appear before this has been occasioned by the disappointment which Manager Lininger sustained from certain citizens who had promised to loan features for the art gallery and then failed to keep their promise. Besides, the amount of work which has devolved upon the manager has kept him busy both night and day in this and other matters, so much so, indeed, that he labored at the building until 4 o'clock yesterday morning.

Monday night Professor Steudel gave the first of his unique electrical exhibitions in the room immediately opposite that containing the exhibit of Creighton college. It was witnessed by a host of visitors, each of whom pronounced it a most interesting and beautiful show.

Professor Rigge of Creighton college, Monday night, for the second time, entertained a vast audience on the Fifteenth street front of the exposition building, with a series of his wonderful stereoptican pictures. He will continue these nightly, at the same place, commencing as soon as dark sets in.

Last evening a new attraction in the shape of a lightning calculator, who added up columns of figures with the celerity of a lightning flash, was added to the exposition.

Henry Lehman's exhibit of a decorated room was yesterday morning thrown open for inspection. It is situated immediately west of Mergell & Rosenweig's, and is finished in the finest of gold paper. He also displays on a revolving frame sixteen of the richest styles of decoration for all the departments of a first class mansion.

T. Rozenbaum's display of birds and small animals, in the western end of the building, is the most complete ever exhibited west of the Missouri. It is one worthy of attention.

LAST NIGHT.

Some years ago, in this city, there was held in the Christian church, then on Seventeenth street, an art loan for the benefit of Trinity guild. It was composed of many rare and interesting articles, which for years had lain in private houses, known only to those by whom they were owned. For a number of nights people of all religious denominations thronged the limited apartments, many being in attendance every evening during the loan. The affair finally assumed the appearance of a great nightly social gathering in which the visitors, while viewing what to many was strange yet instructive, also experienced the pleasure of congenial intercourse.

Last night's attendance at the exposition strongly recalled the ancient art loan. It was larger than any that had preceded it, and while thoroughly appreciating the beauty of the display, engaged also in that delightful social converse which is characteristic of so many of the popular gatherings of this city. That several thousand people could be induced to venture from their homes on such a threatening occasion as last night, argues well that our people have at length come to appreciate the entertainment which home enterprise has established. The attendance, while gratefully large, was not by any means as large as will be had before the close of the exposition. Such as it was, however, it showed the advisability of home people visiting the place in advance of the crowds from abroad. The aisles were pretty full last night, and when the country people enter them there will not be much room to spare. The attendance seemed to make everybody happy, and from the Stephen Mealto at the gate to the gentleman in blue who guarded the place against fire and who had been presented with a plate of biscuits by one of the baking-powder cooks, everybody seemed decidedly happy. It also inspired the musicians with the happy effect that they rendered such music and with such excellent style as would reasonably been worth the price of admission. As a consequence of this cheerful disposition the bell for closing did not ring until fifteen minutes past the time.

On the south gallery there is a number of displays, which merit more than passing attention. It is to be regretted that they have not been marked as well as they should have been, because many of the beautiful contributions must be passed without proper acknowledgement.

The first booth, upon reaching the gallery, is that of Max Meyer & Bro., which occupies the angle of both west and south galleries. In several cases, and upon the walls, there is a collection of musical instruments, ranging from a mouth harp to a base drum. In the corner is their array of pianos, upon which somebody is playing nearly all the time. Last night they gave away about $300 of sheet music to passers-by.

Adjoining is the musical display of the Crap brothers, who have on hand a quadrangle of organs and Solmo's pianos, with a wall hung with smaller instruments of various kinds. These gentlemen also contribute their quota to the incidental music of the place.

The Omaha Business college adjoins, with a large display of specimens of pen work and ink sketches.

Lyon & Healy's selection of pianos is next in the row. It comprises a number of square pianos of both the Lyon & Healy and Fisher manufacture, together with parlor grand of the latter make. Each of these instruments attracts considerable attention.

The Omaha Commercial college shows a number of designs in penmanship with half a dozen young men showing how easily the work may be done.

Potter & Mezeath have on exhibition several unique specimens of type writing fashioned into jugs and other designs, with metrical lines of peculiar significance. They have also several typewriters, one of which has a patent means of disappearing without effort beneath a desk lid when so required.

G. W. Baker exhibits his stenograph, a little contrivance, upon which Mr. B. B. Deems works with lightning rapidity.

Adjoining is a case filled with crochet work and embroidery of beautiful design, all the pieces of which are for sale for the benefit of the Child's hospital.

Miss Mellona Butterfield, of Hastings, displays a cabinet of hand-painted china, the artistic delicacy with which the work is done commanding much admiration.

Master Victor Rosewater contributes several cases containing 408 insects, symmetrically arranged and labelled. They are catalogued under six orders, as lepidoptera, coleoptera, hymenoptera, diptora, neuroptera and hemiptera. The collection is as beautiful as it is unique and displays both exceeding taste for and devotion to a study of a scientific nature.

The textile fabric department comes next, a number of cases being filled with garments fancifully and elegantly wrought, but too numerous to be detailed.

Miss Meyer's display of Indian curiosities, comprising a host of things which are used only among the savages, is large and varied and attracts a great deal of attention. Hoopla, the Omaha Indian chief, with Lou Hamilton, the agency policeman, are in charge, the latter being decorated with a magnificent head dress of eight feathers.

St. Catharine's academy contributes several cases of most elaborately embroidered cushions, ottomans together with a nutuber of sketches and other artistic work.

Mrs. P. E. Iler has an extensive collection of rare and beautiful East India curiosities and articles of domestic use, but so highly finished and unique in workmanship as to be more valued as curiosities than as articles of use. The collection is one of the gems of the exposition.

Last night the Musical Union orchestra gave another delightful concert with the following programme:

THE LUCKY MAN.

The Holder of Ticket No. 81,375, That Drew the Capital Prize in the Louisiana State Lottery.

Since it was announced that one-fifth of the ticket No. 81,375 won the capital prize in the last drawing of the Louisiana State Lottery was held in our city, excitement has run high. The lucky man is the young bookkeeper in the wholesale grocery house of Comer & Trapp, and yesterday he was met with hundreds of congratulations. "When I saw that I was the possessor of the right number my joy knew no bounds. I at once determined to go to New Orleans myself and get the money. This I did. I presented my ticket to the Lottery Company, received a check on the New Orleans National Bank and secured my money and returned home via Montgomery. The money, $15,000, is now on deposit in the bank of Cooper & Co. I am still with the house of Comer & Trapp, and have not yet decided as to my course in the future." Mr. Jones is an excellent young man, a first-class business fellow, and has numerous friends who are gratified at his good fortune.—Anniston (Ala.) Watchman, July 22.

Capt. J. W. Williamson's Luck Again.

As there have been various rumors, etc. about Capt. J. W. Williamson drawing $15,000 in The Louisiana State Lottery, we again accosted the good-natured captain on the subject while on our streets last Saturday. The captain is a prosperous farmer of Willow Grove, this county, and before the June drawing of this well-known Lottery, something seemed to tell him that he should make a small investment, which he did by handing Johnny Roedel, the clerk of the str. Valley Belle, a couple of dollars, with instructions as above, not knowing any other living man in the transaction. When Roedel got to Middleport, Ohio, he added three dollars to the above amount and forwarded it to the Company, and in due time received five tickets, two of which he handed to Capt. Williamson, one of these being No. 19145, which entitled him to one-tenth of the capital prize of $150,000, and which amount he has received through the Bank of Ravenswood, W. Va., from M. A. Dauphin, New Orleans, La.—[Ravenswood (W. Va.) News, July 31.

Burgled a Barber Shop.

The barber shop of J. M. Parke, at the corner of Eigth and Leavenworth streets, was visited last night by burglars, who secured twenty-one razors, two clippers and $1.50 in cash. Two men were seen coming out of a window of the shop about midnight. James Rice and George Decker have been arrested on suspicion of having committed the burglary.

A Bursted University.

CHICAGO, Sept. 7.—The Chicago university is a thing of the past. At a meeting of the trustees held to-day it was formally resolved to terminate the corporate existence of the institution. After a great many efforts it was found that the claim of the Union Mutual Life Insurance company, of Maine, amounting to $800,000 and interest, could not be raised.

Recently there was exhibited in Maycnce a richly carved wine cask, holding over six hundred litres, made entirely from the wood of the old Roman bridge built across the Rhine by the emperors Trajar and Maximaaim. The ruins of the bridge were fished out of the river in 1880. Several smaller casks, to be made of the wood that is left, have been ordered by Americans.
