MURDER!!

Diphtheria is again making its annual visita-tion. Ten years' trial of DR THOS, JEFFERIS' REMEDY for that fatal melady has demon-strated the fact that it is infallible as a prevent-ive and cure. If you permit your children to die with diphtheria, "Their blood be upon your head." For sale only at the office, No. 23 South 8th street, Council Bluffs, Ia., or sent by express on receipt of price, $2.

From the Council Bluffs Daily Herald:

Mrs. E. M. Gerard, wife of Engineer Gerard, of the Union Pacific, this city, has been a great sufferer for many years, with what was supposed to be cancer of the throat. It was so bad that she was threatened with starvation. Here general health was completely broken down. She could only swallow liquid food, and even that her stomach could not digost or assimilate. Physicians of Council Bluffs and Omaha attended her for three years and gave no relief. Dr. Jefferis, of this city, was called. In four weeks' time he cured her throat, and completely restored her general health. Had Mrs. Gerard not obtained relief soon she would have died from blood poison, the same condition that destroyed the life of Gen. Grant.

From the Council Bluffs Daily Globe:
M. A. McPike, editor of the Cambria (Ebensburg, Pa.) Freeman, has been the personal friend of the editor of the Globe for more than twenty years, and is known wherever he is known as one of the best men living. He is also an intimate friend of Mr. Clark of the Nonparell. He has been unfortunate in the fact that his family will ravaged with diphtheria, and greatly distressed. Mr. Clark having heard of his calamity seat him some of Dr. Jefferis Diphtheria Cure, it was used at once, and the lives of the rest of his children saved. Letters from Mr. McPike are unbounded in their expressions of gratifude for finding some means of averting the loss of his whole group of little and tender ones. Five of Mr. McPike's children out of eight died from diphtheria before he had an opportunity of using Dr. Jefferis' remedy.

The Conference.

Yesterday morning Bishop Bowman called the conference to order, and after devotional exercises, led by Rev. N. P. Galliday, D. D., the presiding eiders of the Des Moines dietriet, Atlantic district, Boone district, Chariton district, and Corning district made their reports, the elders in each district reported.

Presiding Elder Blodgett, of the Atlantic district, reported: There is not to my knowledge a single official member in the district in whose home card playing and dancing are practiced, and I am tempted to say or in the home of any other member. This is attributed to the faithother member. This is attributed to the faithful preaching of the pastors and the moral backing given them by the church. The result of such preaching is over a thousand conversions. The net increase of membership will not figure up to its real status, as careful attention has been given to the church records. Within the district there are but two towns where open saloons are found, The ministers and people have been fearliess in the fight for home and law. Some have suffered by it—others have endangered their lives. The prayer and class meetings are exceptionally well attended. The membership of the district will figure to 4,000 and beyond. Five churches have been erected and dedicated and paid for. Indebtedness on churches and parsonages have been so far liquidated, that there is now nothing owing liquidated, that there is now nothing owing on twenty of the twenty-one parsonages-and but a small amount on four of the thirty-eight churches.

Total expenditure in paying odd debts improving and building new churches and parsonages will exceed $14,000. There has also been a creditable increase in periodicals taken, but here there is room for improve-ment. Our Sunday schools take Methodist literature.

The total increase in salary allowed aggre-gates $1,000—per centage paid not as good as t should be.

it should be.

The various benevolent societies have not been slighted. Six conventions were held in February and March. The district was assessed 50 cents per member for missions, or $1,950. We raise $2,170, going beyond a million dollar line $220. This has been done not at the expense of the other collections for they are generally full.

J. W. Wohle, D. D. presiding elder of J. W. Weble, D. D., presiding elder of the Des Moines district, reported that:

The district this year has had a divinely human uplift. Our special lines of effort have been: 1. For their spiritual life and conversion of sinners. 2. Benevolence. 3. The dissemination of our literature and intellectual culture. 4. Material improvements, seeking "first the kingdom," the others have been added, as bloom and foliage follow the dawn of spring. follow the dawn of spring.

To our own surprise there have been 1,226 To our own surprise there have been 1,225 conversions and accessions this year in the Des Moines district. Perhaps the like was never known in its history, almost wholly the results on the human side of our own pastors' labors.

Simpson college, after a successful year, was deprived of her president by resignation, but we believe the reports from trustees and faculty will omen great and good things for the future.

As to salaries and benevolences we fully expect the largest collections in the district's listory. Rev. Joel A. Smith did noble service in helping us, and we believe ourselues beyond the gelden line. It has been quite hard work, never harder in my life. I have done my best for 365 days, and that is all an archangel can do in a year.

Clark's New Venture. C. S. Clark, city editor of the Council Bluffs Herald, is about to launch a new journalistic craft to be known as "Krale's Rustler." It is to be a society and dramatic weekly, and promises to spring into demand at every fireside. Clark is fully capable of getting out a sheet which will be readable and newsy, and as the field is open for just such a sheet as he proposes to issue, he will have no difficulty in making it a success. The new venture will not interfere with his regular daily duties, and he will retain his position with the Heraid. He has secured a number of popular contributors, among them Lu B. Cake, whose name is so familiar to all in this locality. The new paper is to appear the first of next month, and will be a six-column folio. An attractive be a six-column folio. An attractive heading is being made, and the appearance of the paper will be made as attractive as possible.

Ministers Mourning. The ministers of the Methodist conference were greatly shocked and saddened on reading in yesterday's BEE a special telegram announcing the death of Rev. E. W. Brady, post chaplain of Fort D. A. Russell, Wyo. Chaplain Brady was a member of this conference, and well known to most of its members. He went out from here about ten years ago, from near Chariton. For a time he was editor of the Press at Indianola.

As the conference was assembling here it was a matter of congratulation that there were no deaths to report, but on the opening day came the news of the death of Rev. Wm. R. Douglass, and on the second day came the death of this second brother.

Rev. Wm. R. Douglass was born in North Carolina in 1831- and died on his farm near Bayard, Guthrie county. He joined the conference in 1875, and was sent to the Bear Grove circuit. Since then he has been at Lewis, Exira, Mis-souri Valley, Woodbine, Fremont City, Astor and Coon Rapids.

gotten. San Francisco Wasn: "Going over to the Oakland jamboree, comrade?" said a much-decorated committeeman to an old codger on the boat.

"Yes, sir," said the gray haired party, who looked as if he might have been a veteran from way back. "In the war, ch?" said the committee-

All through," replied the visitor, with "Of course you were with Grant?" said our citizen with a humorous wink.
"Part of the time."

"Well, I was with Sherman, 'Atlanta to the sea, 'you know. Many's the jolly night I've spent playing poker with old Tecump. He couldn't play worth a dern,

"Couldn't, ch?" "Couldn't, ch?"
"No. By the way, I've a great mind to tell the boys to-night of a little incident that occurred during the great march, but as the 'old man' is to be there him self, you know, I guess it wouldn't do."
"I shouldn't mind that."
"Well, I dunno. You see it was like this. Just after we struck the Weldon road we had a devil of a fight. About noon it let up a little and Sherman and I borrowed a drum from the band and went into the bushes for a little game of

"Queer time for poker."
"Oh, you see, fighting was nothing to us in those days, while poker was a good deal. Well, I horsed him pretty bad and when he opened a big jack pot at last he was almost cleaned out, so he drew out his pay-roll for the pext month and threw it on the pot. I raised him two handred. Just then a couple of bullets zipped through the drum and the action was under way again. The old man jumped up. 'Pete,' says he—Tecump called me up. 'Pete,' says he—Tecump called me Pete—'Pete, we can't play this hand just now, but we'll finish it after the scrimmage. Here, I'll put my hand under this stone and you put yours in that hollow log.' We did so and rushed for our horses,"
"Hot fight that," said the eastern veteran reflectively.

"You bet. Every time I got near the general he'd stand up in his stirrups, wave his sword and yell, "A hundred better, Pete!" and I'd shout, 'A hundred better nor you!" It was most night before he called!" me and then the not was a 'called' me, and then the pot was a couple of thousand. After supper we went out and hunted up the hands and showed 'em down, I had three aces and two kings and the general had four kings and an ace. Sing lar, wasn't it'.

"Extraordinary. How do you account for its'."

for it?".

"Account for it? Why, somebody had been monkeying with those cards. I don't insinuate anything, mind, but you can bet your boots I never played with old Tecump again. But let's go down and let's have a drink. What might your name be, comrade?"

"W. T. Sherman."

Neat Replies.

Pittsburg Dispatch: Andrew Jackson, it is related, was at one time entertained at a dinner by a gentleman, and among those present was one of those people who often find their way into story books, etc., as the type of that offensive class of Americans who are always trailing their nationality in the dust in the effort to exalt their individual independence. This particular gentleman, over the wine and walnuts after dinner, in order to emphasize his own independence of disposition, of which he was loudly boastful, remarked with a rare exhibition of self-complacence to General Jackson "I always voted against you, sir." The company was naturally rendered speech company was naturally rendered speech-less by this unexpected disclosure, and the scene actually looked squally; but General Jackson put a stopper on the boastful individual, and avoided further trouble by smilingly remarking: "And I, sir, have always fought the battles of my country that you might enjoy that privilege." privilege.

Another instance of a happy response is that of an old southern judge—but whether judge by courtesy or in fact; the writer cannot state—who must have had the faculty of quick and appropriate reply pretty well developed, if the story re-lated of him be true. He had been a fierce secessionist, and the fact was not forgotten when, after the war, he re-entered the political arena of his native state. Speaking at a certain place one evening in the interest of his own can didacy for congress someone in the audience, who evidently had a good memory inquired: "Didn't you speak here just before the war?"

"I did," proudly responded the judge.
"And didn't you say we could whip the durned Yankees with pop-guns?"
"I did," replied the unabashed judge but, confound 'em, they wouldn't light
