The new sewer ditch is being put in pretty good condition. The matters in dispute between the contractor, Mr. Vincent, and the city, are not settled yet, the case still pending, and nothing being done to hasten an adjudication. In the meantime the amount involved grows larger. The matter is an important one, and it seems that some steps should be taken to adjust it. Last night about 10 o'clock Officer Beswick arrested two young men, neither of whom appeared to be over twenty years of age. They had been creating a dis-turbance at Hans Christoolfsen's saloon, turbance at Hans Christoolfsen's saloon, on Broadway. On their arrival in the city jail one of them came to his senses and began to bellow, "I've a young wife at home and shall be disgraced," he cried out as the tears ran down his cheeks. "Please don't lock me up, I did not want to create a disturbance. I tried to get off without having a muss and these men here can prove it," he continued. Officer Beswick returned to the saloon, and after getting returned to the saloon, and after getting the particulars of the disturbance the young married man was allowed to go home to his young wife for the night, while his "pal" was locked up to appear before the police judge this morning.

Who is Mayor?

The election passed off very quietly yesterday, and in some respects was in marked contrast with any election ever held before in this city. Under the new law none could vote who had not already registered, so that there was no swearigg in of votes, or the usual rush of business in that line. Another new feature of the election, a result also of the new law, was that there were no crowds standing about the polling places, all the political workers and ticket distributers being obliged to remain at least one hundred feet away. Many were delighted with this change, as it enabled voters to go up and deposit their votes without being pulled hither and thither at the last moment by those who desire to have the last say. The vote was a light one throughout the city. The contest was between two men, Mayor Evans and Mr. Groneweg, and as both are old citizens of high business and social standing, alike respected and trusted, the voters had no patience with any attempt at mud throwing at either candidate for mayor, and the battle of the ballots was waged in good nature and with no frightful predictions of coming calamity in any event, and no bitter charges against either aspirant to

The guesses on the result ran largely in Mr. Groneweg's favor. Many republicans conceded that he might have a majority of 150, but during the day this was cut down in the minds of many by various indications, until it was claimed by shrewd observers that Evans was winning the day, although all said it was going to be snug, and that there would not be a hundred majority, either way. The result as shown by the count of the ballots surprised all. Mr. Groneweg is elected by 302 majority, the following

Eisman's Brilliant Opening. Chief among the leading events in Council Bluffs each season are the spring and fall openings of Eisman & Co.'s mamoth establishment, known as the People's Store. Their fail opening, now in progress, drew as usual an immense throng of ladies and gentlemen last evening. There was in fact a crush, and the gathering of people, eagerly gazing upon the many new goods so tastilly displayed, gave the appearance of a most fashionable reception. The building had a gala blaze of brilliancy, there being electric lights and locomotive headlights from the entrance to the skylights. There are so many departments, each a complete establishment in its line, that it seems an endless journey to follow out all the lapyrinths, while it is almost impossible at a single visit to take in all the sights of interest. All connected with the estab-lishment have been busily at work night and day preparing the displays, the task being a great one, necessitating the entire suspension of other business. The labor has resulted in a wonderful sight, and no such showing of goods has been seen in this city before. In fact it was an exposition not only in name, but in reality. Without exaggerating the display in extent and variety, in richness of goods and taste in arrangement it is seldom equalled by any in the great cities of the east. Flowers and plants have been placed throughout the different depart-ments, a band filled the great room with music, and every detail is thus carried out without regard to expense or labor.

The show windows, which extend along Broadway for nearly half a block, had crowds of admirers before them last evening. The most elaborate and most attractive of these windows was the one representing the new church organ to be placed in St. Paul's church. The representation is ingeniously made of plushes, velvets and silks. The sides of the organ are of plush, the stops of large imported buttons. The pipes are of varieties of brocaded velvets, and the smaller pipes of satin. It is a rare sight, and excites much admiration.

Another window is filled with rich laces, very gracefully arranged. trimmings are ingeniously arranged in another. There is a pleasing showing of cloaks in another, of blankers in another, while other windows are devoted to gent.'s furnishing goods, to boots and shoes and to hats and caps.

The Broadway frontage is taken with four departments, one being de-voted to dress goods. In this there is a really wonderful display of ruch fabries and of novelty suitings. Next to this comes the notion department, in which there are many novelties. Then the cloth-ing and gents goods take a whole store, and adjoining this is the shoe and hats and caps department. In the rear a grand stairway leads into the ladies' furnishing goods department, where many new goods are dis-played. Below it is the large room where are to be found domestic goods, table linens, etc. Then up stairs in the tront is the cloak room. The display here is remarkable, both as to quantity and variety. The richness of the goods is also noticeable, and it is safe to say that no such display has ever been seen before. Here a lady can make her selection from the cheapest-priced cloaks to those costing $500.

The departments given to children's clothing is also very complete, and children up to twelve years of age can be fitted up here completely, and with satisfaction surely, both as to style, quality and price.

There are many features to this establishment which are worthy of extended description, but they are better seen and can only thus be appreciated. The open-Hats regardless of cost. Closing out that stock of F. E. Stubbs, comprising Knox's, Stetson's and other line brands.

Last summer two boys, Collins and Regan, were arrested near this city for passing counterfeit silver dollars. They had passed one, and on being followed up they managed to slip nine other dollars into a hole, where they were afterwards discovered. Collins plead guilty, and was yesterday sentenced to one year in the penitentiary. Regan plead not guilty, and stood his trial. He claimed with Collins, and that he did not know that the money was counterfeit, or that he had any such money until the officers got after them. His companion took the brunt of the whole affair upon himself, and Regan was acquitted by the kind-
