can, if the republicans would only turn out and vote. He showed figures to the effect that while at the last election there were only 300 democrats who failed to vote, over one thousand republicans stayed at home. The republicans had not done right by the men they had nominated last fall. He urged that this fall be loyal.

whatever had it not been pretended that they were permitted by the church and pleading to heaven. There were three instruments without which no magician's chamber was completely furnished. They were a sword and a staff, and a magic wand. The sword was the ordinary sword, the staff was the staff of Asclepius, and the wand was the wand of the magician. The one needed retorts and emblems, a fire and bellows to blow it with; long ranges of bottles and jars full of powerful compounds, the fire and bellows, the wand was the wand of the magician, the staff was the staff of Asclepius, and the sword was the sword of the magician.

The Sunday Schools. The move started some months ago for the organizing of a Sunday school assembly to be held here yearly is not stopped, although there has been little said about it publicly of late. Those interested in getting the plans arranged have been holding some meetings lately, and have decided to incorporate and proceed with the scheme. A committee is at work securing subscribers to the stock and there seems no reason why the plan should not work as successfully here as in other large cities. The peculiar advantage of this great railway center makes this a point where such an assembly would draw yearly thousands of people from all parts of the west.

A terrible storm is predicted to take place here to-morrow. It will be known as the democratic county convention. The funeral of William H. Officer is to be held at the residence of his brother, Mr. Thomas Officer, this morning at 10 o'clock. Justice Hendricks yesterday afternoon tied the knot, and tied it tight, uniting J. W. Clark and Jennie Ferguson, both of Omaha.

While the convention raised a cry for Major Lyman, who responded to the unexpected call, briefly. He thanked the republicans for the manner in which his nomination had been given by acclamation, and without opposition. He deemed it an indication or the endorsement of his course in congress. He was thankful, also, for the support thus far given in his campaign. He thought that the great need was to get out the republican vote. If that duty was performed there was no question as to the result in this county. At the last election there were enough republicans who stayed at home to have made a sweeping majority. He urged every republican to see that every vote in his township was cast on the coming election day, and then there could be no doubt as to the result.

Another matter which is interesting the Sunday school workers and church people is the convention of the schools of this county, to be held next week. The officers of the association are: President, Rev. G. W. Crofts; secretary, P. J. Montgomery; committee—Harry Curtis, Mrs. P. C. De Vol; Don A. Judd, M. E. Irons, Mrs. M. A. Gaylord, Mrs. Morgan. The convention will be held at the First Baptist church, commencing Thursday of next week, in the afternoon, and closing Friday afternoon. The speakers will be J. T. Love, Rev. Mr. Bates, Dr. Cooley, Dr. McCreary, Rev. Mr. Reichenbach, Dr. Montgomery, John H. Funk, state secretary, Rev. Elliot Carson, H. M. Stevens, J. P. Stinson, C. A. Rapids, Sunday school missionary, and Mrs. Dr. Montgomery. The programme includes a number of practical and interesting topics, and the convention promises to be largely attended.

The wand was of three forms, according to the purpose for which it was to be used. The first was a wand of iron, the second was a wand of wood, and the third was a wand of silver. The wand of iron was used for the purpose of driving nails, the wand of wood was used for the purpose of driving stakes, and the wand of silver was used for the purpose of driving pins.
