ERIN'S TRIALS AND TRIUMPH

Michael Davitt's Lecture at the Exposition Building Last Night.

"SIXTY MINUTES IN THE WAR."

The Council Meeting-The Officers of the Election-Court Notes-Police Matters-Brevities -Other Local News.

Mr. Davitt's Lecture. Last night Mr. Michael Davitt ap-position building. His auditors were about fifteen hundred in number and represented every phase of life, every degree of intelligence in the community. It was one of the most studious, thoughtful and intelligent gatherings that has ever assembled in this city. There was no claque, no unwarranted attempt at appreciation and no disposition to substitute sentiment for sense. The audience listened patiently, even painfully so, to every word of the lecturer. It seemed disposed to hear and weigh everything the speaker said, and while some of the audience had previously been committed to more severe remedies for Ireland's wrongs, the tolerance of the feelings of another man was something which they did not hesitate to appreciate. No audi-ence which has assembled in Omaha ever displayed so much interest in any speaker whom it assembled to hear. It literally hung upon his every word. And yet the speaker used not the periods of Phillips or the flowery passages of Inger-soll. His words were those of a man versed in what he believed, honest in the expression of his opinions, what he thought might be the outcome of the agitation which the Irish question has thus far occasioned.

When the audience had assembled, Mayor Boyd, addressing the the people

Ladies and gentlemen: We have with us this evening one of Ireland's most illustrious and patriotic sons, a man whose life is devoted to the welfare of his countrymen, whose wise counsels, if followed, will surely result in good and win for the people of that beautiful and fertile little island which so many of these new present are ground to all many of those now present are proud to call "their native land" the God-given right of self-government.

I now have the honor as well as the pleasure of introducing Mr. Mic ael Davitt.

The mayor retired to his seat, which was associated of Bishop O'Connor, John A. McShane, Michael Donovan, Judge Wakeley, Judge Savage, Rev. J. Jean-nette, Thomas Brennan, and a number of

When the applause which greeted Mr. Davitt had subsided, he said in sub-

When I was here last I was an advocate of a cause which much of the civilized world at that time thought hopeless. Soon after leaving I was, I think, for the third time entertained by her majesty in one of England's

Now I am here, I am proud to say, as the Now I am here, I am proud to say, as the representative of a cause which is on the eve of success. The man who, live years ago, imprisoned Mr. Parnell and myself for our utterances in favor of Irish freedom is now the foremost champion of home rule. I am commissioned by the people of Ireland to thank Irish-Americans and Americans who thank Irish-Americans and Americans who sympathize with Ireland wherever I meet them for the generous assistance they have given us for the last ten years, and I thank them also in the name of the able and faith-ful band of representatives who have been fighting for home rule in the Westminster house of parliament under the command of the great leader of our cause, Mr. Parnell. (Applause.)

But my second duty is the more important one of the two. It is to try and deepen the sympaty which the American people not of our race, have extended to us. I do not know ony more powerful factor in the growth of our cause in Great Britain that the sympathy of 50,000,000 people on their side of the Atlantic. (Applause.) There has been a great (Applause.) There has been a great change from the days when Ameribans were taught to look upon their country, but as a younger Britain; to still hold to the traditions and customs and ideas of the old world; to the day when Americans recognize for Ireland the right to pull down Dublin castle, and to manage their own affairs at home. (Applause.)

HOME RULE NOT A NEW THING.

I think it therefore my best plan to address the American sentiment represented here to-night and those Americans who, if ot here, will read and hear what I have sale first, I want to explain what we want in this he rule movement in Ireland. What we want in this home rule movement is the right to as distinctive a nationality as will allow us to rule ourselves in our own way, (Applause.) This is not a new nor a revolu-tionary demand. For centuries previous to the union, eighty-six years ago, our country had a parliament of her own. New for a restoration of that right. and Australia and many ather colonies have the exercise of the same home govern-ment which we had before the union. We have endeavored and shall endeavor, in one way and another, to demand Irish self-government. Whether you consider Ireland in her geographical position or whether you consider her in her checkered history, her consider her in her checkered history, her great and long struggle for national existance, you will, I think, a ree with me that Ireland has the same right to govern herself as either Belgium or Holland or Switzerland. It is a fair presentation of this argument that has won for Ireland English sympathy in her struggle. (Applause). But I maintain, ladies and gentlemen, that there is a large and more important reason why home rule should be restored to Ireland in the complete and disastrous failure of all the promises made by Castlereagh and others, who, eightysix years, ago, conspired against the existence of Grattan's parliament.

The UNION A FAILURE.

THE UNION A FAILURE.

The UNION A FAILURE.

It was claimed that a closer legislation with England would give Irishmen larger rights and freland larger prosperity. The Catholics of Ireland then, as now, the larger part of the population, were told that a union with England would result in immediate emancipation. The people were told that the manufacturing industries would be taken in hand and encouraged, and that there would be a tettir condition of rents for farmers. What has been the record of this Dublin Castle government for eighty-six years? What has been the result of a movement which resembled, as Byron said, a union between a shark and its prey? The resources of Ireland were not only not developed but systematically crushed out of existence. The land of Ireland which Englishmen had acknowledged before the union to be capable knowledged before the union to be capable of supporting a population of 15,000,000 of people, now holds only 6,000,000 in a semi-pamerized condition. Trade and commerce are all but dead to-day in Ireland, and taxaare all but dead to-day in Ireland, and taxa-ton from $12,000,000 to $14,000,000 has in-creased to $35,000,000. Under our union taxes have increased $15,000,000 annually. And yet these are the men that have been thought well-qualitied to rule a country hav-ing a population of 50,000,000 of people. Those who administer of the law of the land, those who decide as to rents and land tenures, are practically appointed by this En lishman. Let me bring these things home to the people of Colorado. Suppose a Canadian or a Mexican or any other foreigner, utterly unacquainted with American institutions, came to rule your rights, to to rule your state, to arbitrate your rights, to make and enforce your laws, what would you as Americans do under such circum-stances? Would you not feel yourseives ull down such an infamous system of rule Great applause.]

THE SOURCE OF AGRARIAN CRIME. The more you Americans are acquainted with the real system of government of Ireland the more I am sure will your generous sympathy be extended to a movement to radically reform such a condition of affairs. The facts I have stated are not the only ones to be arged against English government in Ireland. The social evils of landlordism. absenteeism, rack renting and evictions, have to be added. These evils have largely grown up since the abolition of the Irish parliament eighty-six years ago. Under the old system the landlords usually spent much time in Ireland. Their style of living in Dublin was comparatively economic. Dublin was comparatively economic. They resided more or less among their tenantry. A kinder feeling existed between landlord and tenant than has unfortunately been obtainable since. Since the union landlords have come to reside in London and the larger European apitals they have lived extravagants.

In order to enable them to do this they fell back upon the system of rack-renting and the oppression of tenants begot, naturally, outrage, turmoil and violence. We mainoutrage, turmoil and violence. We main-tain, ladies and gentleman, that the seat and source of agrarian crime in Ireland lies in the miserable government and the miserable the miserable government and the miserable landlord system. (Applause.)

Having sketched the condition of Ireland under English rule, Mr. Davitt turned to explain how the Irish leaders hoped to bring about a change. They hoped by their representatives in parliament to offer a just obstruction to all laws against Irish freedom and Irish interest and to foster and agitate political education of the masses in Great Britain. That these efforts have accomplished something is shown to-day in the universal attention of the civilized world on this contest waged between us and England. peared before a large audience in the ex-

PRACEPUL PLANS OF PARNELLITES. Mr. Parnell has done more to advance the cause of Ireland than all the previous efforts of the past eighty-six years. (Great applause.) I know it is natural for Irishmen enjoying the liberties and privileges of free America to grumble at the slowness of the means and to think it would be better to settle things with England in a more martial way. Irishmen are of a martial race. In all their troubled history they have never tamely submitted to tyranny, and they have readily given their lives and fortunes in wars in every country where liberty was to be strug-gled for and despotism to be put down, gled for and despotism to be put down, (Great applause.) Previous to this movement it was always easy to put North of Ireland against South of Ireland and to appeal to prejudice of religion arainst religion and class against class. Well, we have learned a lesson from our enemies. We have turned the tables upon our opponents and the democracy of England are now in sympathy with Ireland. (Applause.) We have sent to the English parliament representatives commissioned by Ireland to oppose unjust wars upon Afghanistan or crimmal expeditions to the Soudan and to obstruct all legislation that might be infurious to the people of Ireland. (Great and to obstruct all legislation that might be infurious to the people of Ireland. (Great aralause.) And we have tound friends and allies among the English masses from Plymouth in the South of England to Aberdeen in the North of Scotland. (Applause.) Instead of preaching a war of extermination against Englishmen we have come to ald them in just measures of reform. (Applause.) We have endeavored by our deeds and words to convince them that we, instead of being their enemies are their friends in lighting a common foe. (Applause.)

ENGLISH, SCOTCH AND WELSH ALLIES.
The same iniquitous system of land tenure prevails to some extent in all Great Britain that prevails in Ireland. The farmers of England and Scotland are almost as badly hampered by landlordism as we are. Under these circumstances we have made friends with the larmers of England, Wales and Scotland. Mr. Davitt said thu, as the result of such teaching he believed that to-day more than one-half or the people of England, Scotland and Wales were in hearty sympathy land and Wales were in hearty sympathy with Mr. Gladstone and his demand for home rule. (Applause.) We have excited the Scotch and Welsh people to make similar demanns to her own. Scotchmen are coming to understand that they wanted parliament to legislate upon land questions and Scottish affairs. (Applause.)

Then we have callant little Wales now demanding some form of home rule, and again we have the English masses gratified at the prospect of having someshing done for their own benefit by parliament without the in-terference of Scotch, Welch and Irish members. (Laughter and applause.) Thus the agitation of Mr. Parnell and the efforts of the Irish members of parliament, and of Irish patriots everywhere, has in the short space of five years changed everything.

CATHOLICS AND PROTESTANTS UNITED.

Mr. Davitt proceeded to speak of the Belfast riots. These riots were organized at the instigation of Lord Randolph Churchill and others, in an attempt to show that the Irish people were at war among themselves and incapable of self government. But the tory leaders were unable to control the Frankenleaders were unable to control the Frankenstein they had called into existence. These riots are not representative of the Protestant feeling of Ireland on the national question, as he has proved by the triumphant election of Justin McCarthy (applause) as member for the most Protestant city in the north of Ireland, (Great applause and cheers, and when the most Protestant province and when the most Protestant province of Ireland actually elects a majority of its representatives on the home rule ticket. Grattan and Flood and Wolfe Town Function of the protestants of the part of the protestants. Tone and Emmet and others of the most cherished patriots of Irish history were

Mr. Davitt spoke forcibly of the unity and ympathy of Irish Protestants and Irish atholics in the present strug-le. He closed by saying: Sore tribulation may still be in store for Ireland, but as sure as to-morrow's sun will rise, so sure from trial and defeat, from suffering and sorrowing Ireland will rise to the patrimony and privilege, the right and recognition of a nation. (Tremendous applause.)

SIXTY MINUTES IN THE WAR." Colonel W. L. Visscher's Lecture at

Boyd's Last Night. The appearance of Will L. Visscher and his quartette of jubilee singers called a good sized audience to the opera house last night. The entertainment afforded by the quintette was heartily enjoyed. The gentleman who claims the distinction of being the homliest man on earth (except six who are in the gorilla business) made his appearance after a series of songs by the colored quartette. He proceeded to entertain his audience with a talk, which was a mixture of humor, pathos, eloquence and plain cold facts.

Mr. Visscher explained that he thought sixty minutes of the war were long enough to drag the average audience through. They would have to go through southern cotton fields, pine forests, lis-ten to the shot and shell and the whistle of cannon balls as big as copper kettles, etc., etc. He proposed to draw his pictures from his own stand-point.

"I was a union soldier from Ken tucky," said the speaker. "one of many from that state who fought under the stars and stripes. Some one has said that Kentucky sent as many soldiers to the union army as any state of its population in the country. I don't know whether this is true and I won't vouch for it. But I got it from a good reliable authority."

Mr. Visscher told how the boys of the south drilled for the great war-some for one side and some for the other. Brothers cousins and neighbors were armed against each other. One day two companies of soldiers were drilling in the south-one in gray and one in blue. The parting be tween them was very sad, but they shook hands, such expressions as these were very common: Jim, if we meet you in battle, I'll stick my bayonet in the ground,' or 'George, if I have to fight against you on the same field, I'll shoot n another direction.' A few months later these same two companies did meet, and all these protestations of friendship were forgotten. There was no time to think such things then,"

The hardships of war were very humorously portrayed by Mr. V. "Why, when we got home," he said, "after sleeping on the ground and hard floors we hardly dared go to bed on a feather mattress. Afraid we migat drown if we jumped in all at once, you know. We had to be on the floor and kind o' edge in by degrees. And hard tack, why our teeth were so ground down that I doubt if any veterinary surgeon could have told our age by oking at our molars,' After portraying further some of the humorous incidents of the opening cam-paign, Mr. V. excused himself and allowed the quartette to once more make its appearance. Three songs were very acceptably rendered.

Mr. Visscher entertained his hearers air. Visscher entertained his hearers with a number of stories about soldier life, the colored people and matters connected with the war, all of which were received with roars of laughter. He paid an elequent tribute to George D. Prentice, the ante-bellum editor of the Louisville Journal, who he said had done more they are stories. nd tenant than than than any other man in kentucky to pre-ive come to re-iver European extravagantly, such a manner as to delight the scholar by his diction, the thinker by his logic, in such a way as to awe his opponents and delight the masses. A number of characteristic stories about Mr. Prentiss, gotten off in the speaker's about nimitable style, convulsed the audience After an eloquent peroration, Mr. Viss-cher gave way to his jubilee singers, who closed the entertainment with vocal

DYSPEPSIA

Causes its victims to be miserable, hopeless, confused, and depressed in mind, very irritable, languid, and drowsy. It is a disease which does not get well or itself. It requires careful, persistent attention, and a remedy to throw off the causes and tone up the digestive organs till they perform their duties willingly. Hood's Sarsaparilla has proven just the required remedy in hundreds of cases. "I have taken Hood's Sarsaparilla for dyspepsia, from which I have suffered two years, I tried many other medicines, but none proved so satisfactory as Hood's Sarsaparilla."

WIRE GAUZE OVEN DOOR IB THE LATEST IMPROVEMENT ON THE

It produces Practical Results in Baking and Rousting never before attained in any Cooking Apparatus, and will Revolutionize the Present Methods of Cooking

ITS THEORY

Is, that all Food Baked or Roasted, should be cocked in fresh air freely admitted to the oven. This is done by discarding the close oven door heretofter used, and substituting for it a door containing a sheet of Wire Gauze nearly as large as the door itself.

Through this Gauze Door the air freely circulates, facilitating the process of cooking, and producing food that is unequalled in flavor and muritien, and actually cooked with less consumption of fuel than in an oven with a closed door.

It makes an enormous saving in the weight of meat. It also produces larger Loaves of Bread.

requires less attention from the cook, and promotes the health of the family by the SUPERIOR QUALITY OF THE FOOD COOKED IN IT. OPINION OF AN EXPERT. MRS. MANY B. WELCH. Teacher Domestic Ecohomy. Iowa State University, says: "My deliberate judgment is that the oven of the Hange, as compared with others, is not only more equally heated in every part—front as well as rear—but as a result of its superior ventilation the food placed therein is better cooked, while retaining a sweeter flavor, and a larger proportion of its best vices. I find, also, that the consumption of fuel in this Range is much less than any other for same work."
