

GATHERED ABOUT THE CITY

Edward Rosewater the Nominee of the Floated Senatorial Convention.

MICHAEL DAVITT'S ARRIVAL

He is Received by a Committee—Took Off His Clothes—Mr. Murphy's Death—Other Local Matters.

Floated Senatorial Convention.

The floated senatorial convention of Sarpy and Douglas counties was held yesterday afternoon at Justice Helseys office.

On motion of J. J. Brown, W. A. Redek was called temporarily to the chair.

The chairman read the list of delegates from Douglas county as follows: C. C. Thrane, Frank Kaspar, Lee Helseys, W. A. Redek, J. J. Brown, A. R. Hoel, represented by J. J. Brown, W. G. Whitmore, by C. C. Thrane, Peter Glandt, by Seth Cole, and O. A. Wolcott, by the same gentleman.

Judge Helseys was elected secretary. The chair read the list of delegates from Sarpy county as follows: E. L. Hileman, by Michael Dunn; Geo. Becker, J. E. Hoover, by Wm. Smith; and A. Fricke.

Both counties moved the temporary organization be made permanent. The motion prevailed.

C. C. Thrane nominated E. Rosewater for floated senator. The nomination was seconded by Michael Dunn from Sarpy county.

Will Gurley, although not a delegate, requested to be permitted to ask a few questions. Judge Helseys moved that the required permission be granted. The motion was seconded by J. J. Brown.

Mr. Dunn of Sarpy county objected, and Mr. Thrane said that if Mr. Gurley were a delegate, he would not object to having questions answered, but as Mr. Gurley was not a delegate, he did not have time to sit there to listen to a political speech.

A vote was taken on the motion, and was lost. Judge Helseys alone voting in the affirmative.

There being no other nominations, on motion of Concilman Kaspar, Mr. E. Rosewater was nominated by acclamation.

Messrs. Thrane and J. J. Brown were appointed a committee to escort Mr. Rosewater to the room.

Mr. Rosewater was introduced and advised of his nomination by the chair. He spoke as follows:

Gentlemen of the Convention:—In returning my grateful acknowledgments for the honor you have conferred upon me, it may be proper also to say a few words explanatory of my position and of the conditions under which I desire to accept this nomination.

First and foremost, I take it that this nomination is not so much intended to be personal as it is to be a compliment. It may be an endorsement of the great principles which the republican party has advocated during the last thirty years.

That, but as an endorsement of the principles of good government and of honest administration of state and national affairs as it has been advocated by myself through the paper of which I am editor. You are all aware that it is no honor to me to be nominated for an office of any character.

The office of editor is sufficiently high, if it is well conducted, and sufficiently gratifying in the exercise of its powers to suit any man; and as to the honor which may be derived from the start, since I have been editing a paper, never to accept any office within the gift of the people, or to be nominated for an office at this time which I have not entirely unreserved, and which have in a great measure controlled my action.

Now, gentlemen, if the republican party and the people of Douglas county elect me to the position for which you have nominated me, and I believe they will, it will be my earnest desire to give you a more economical and better administration of our state affairs; to investigate the standing of the farmer and place them within the line of duty; to break up penitentiary rings and to bring the penitentiary to an economical and efficient expense of the people of $100 per day; to see that the labor of this state is recognized as well as capital; to see that the vested rights in capital are protected in their proper sphere, and that their powers shall be limited to the sphere and within the sphere of action for which they have been chartered.

It will be my endeavor to have a charter framed for Omaha which will give the government and a larger sphere for the city with its rapid development. It will be my endeavor, as far as possible, to see to it that laws shall be enacted to protect the farmer, the mechanic and the merchant and to give our people such government as the fathers of our republic intended them to have—a government for the people and by the people.

Again thanking you for the honor, I will now retire.

fellows dago with the somewhat Americanized name of Jim Lanz. The two men became involved in some dispute yesterday afternoon, and in the course of the row Lanz was hit on the back with a hatchet. Motteno's friends did their best to induce Lanz to withdraw his complaint, but he was stubborn.

"You no make me busha, my mouth," he said emphatically. "No showa de judge what he have done."

He proceeded forthwith to dress himself of his garment. First he took off his coat, then his vest, and was just about to throw off his shirt when one of his fellow Italians seized him and tried to make put on his clothes. His efforts were unavailing, however, for Lanz obstinately struggled out of his shirt. A lady who was sitting in the lobby, waiting to prefer a complaint before Judge Stenberg, beat a hasty retreat, doubtless not caring to see the Italian carried his process of disrobing. The wound inflicted by the hatchet was hardly more than a bruise, and as Lanz displayed it with an air of indifference, a physician was brought around the court room. Motteno pleaded guilty and was fined $10 and costs.

Five drunks were arraigned. Out of this number three, W. J. Corlinsky, Mike Fitz and John O'Connell were fined $5 and costs.

RELEASED ON BAIL

Berry Sour is Allowed to Go Free on $500 Bonds.

Berry Sour, the driver for the Merchants' Express company, who ran over John Collins Monday afternoon, was arraigned in police court this morning, after having spent the night in jail.

"You are charged with reckless driving," said the judge. "It depends upon what you mean by reckless driving," replied Sour sullenly. He was not ready to go on with the trial, and Judge Stenberg set the trial for next week, fixing his bail at $500. His bond was signed by Carlos Woodworth.

"I propose to break up this reckless driving which is becoming more common every day," remarked the judge, as he signed the bond. "It is becoming an every day affair for some accident to happen on account of fast driving. A man takes his life in his hand every time he goes on the street. The worst feature of your case," he continued, addressing himself to Sour, "is that after you ran over Collins you didn't stop to see whether you had injured him or not, but whipped up your horses and tried to escape arrest. That is what makes the case look suspicious."

Collins, the injured man, is now at the poor farm, and is doing well.

Twice Captured.

As already mentioned in the BEE, A. J. Blade and John Roberts, two crooks, were arrested in Omaha some days ago, charged with being fugitives from justice. They had cracked a safe in Shelby county, Ia., and stolen $1,000. They were turned over to the sheriff from Iowa and taken back. In some manner as yet unknown, they contrived to make their escape before being locked up. They came back to Omaha and were again arrested by the police.

One of them, Blade, was turned loose by Judge Stenberg Monday and the other, John Roberts, was held. Yesterday morning the sheriff again arrived in the city, only to find that one of his prisoners was gone. He was considerably incensed. Blade is now supposed to be in either Omaha or Sioux City and it is believed he will be made to recapture him. When last seen he was crossing the river in company with a woman whom he called his wife. Roberts will be taken back at once to Iowa.

Will Reunite.

A meeting of former students of Wyman's commercial college for the purpose of holding a grand reunion of the same, was held Monday night at the office of R. M. Patterson. B. J. Scannell was elected president, E. E. Zimmerman, secretary, and Gustave Kroeger, treasurer of the association formed to make the necessary arrangements. The general managing committee consists of R. M. Patterson, E. E. Zimmerman, George Holmes and N. Parsons, while the committee on finances, which will be presided over by the treasurer already mentioned, consists of Messrs. N. Parsons, G. P. Felton and George Holmes. Another meeting of the same young men will be held at the same place on next Monday evening for the purpose, on the day of reunion, to have a literary programme in the afternoon with a banquet and a dance in the evening.

Met Him at the Train.

In response to a telegram from Lincoln, Officer Matza, yesterday morning arrested Lou Lewis, a negro who is charged with complicity in the robbery of a saloon in that place. Lewis professes all ignorance of the affair and insists that he is innocent. The telegram from Lincoln says that the negro was accompanied by a white man, also implicated in the affair, but the latter could not be found. It is probable that he jumped off the train at some point between Lincoln and Omaha. He was turned over to the district attorney, who is now in the city. Lewis is one of Will Visser's colored quartette, and came here to sing at the opera house. He was released.

Mack and Inlo Reinstated.

Mention was made in the BEE Monday of the temporary retirement of Conductors Mack and Inlo, who run the dummy between this city and the Bluffs. The cause of the removal was an alleged unfavorable criticism of the management of the bridge dispatching. It was stated, however, by this paper, that Monday would bring about the reinstatement of Mack and Inlo, when both of the men returned yesterday afternoon, the gentlemen resumed their runs. The objectionable words were put in writing and submitted to Mr. Kouss. They were found to be unworthy of attention, and Messrs. Mack and Inlo were again ordered to their trains.

Another Glove Contest.

Clow and McDonald have signed articles of agreement for a six-round glove contest to take place in this city on Thursday, November 4. According to the terms of the agreement the contest is to be for $250 a side, the winner to take 75 and the loser 25 per cent of the receipts. Marquis of Queensbury rules will govern. Each man has deposited $50 forfeit money with T. J. Foley, of the Phoenix billiard hall.

Slugged.

Monday night about 10 o'clock, W. J. Jardine, bookkeeper for W. S. Jardine, proprietor of the express line while coming home from a visit to the southern part of the city, was set upon by a couple of foot-pads, and beaten badly. He was taken to the hospital, where he received a painful slash from a knife in the arm. The fellows met with considerable opposition and finally were frightened away.

Didn't Appear.

Charley Ramsey, the bartender for Hibben & King, who cut Pat McKenna with a beer glass last week, appeared before Judge Stenberg for trial yesterday morning. The plaintiff was not on hand to prosecute, and the judge released Ramsey. The latter agreed to pay the bill of the city physician for dressing McKenna's wounds.

REGISTER AT ONCE.

Every Qualified Voter Must Have His Name On the List.

The registrars are now sitting with open books waiting for the voters to come and place their names on the list. Don't put it off until to-morrow.

AT A RIFE OLD AGE.

Mr. Thomas Murphy, a Well-Known Citizen, Passes Away.

Monday afternoon Thomas Murphy, one of the older and most respected Irish citizens of Omaha, died at his residence, 1811 California street, at the advanced age of seventy-three years and nine months. His illness was short and painless, and his life came to a close with the same serenity which had characterized it for many years. Mr. Murphy had been feeble for some time, yet suffered only those physical annoyances which are inseparable from old age.

On Sunday last in his accustomed manner he went to the Holy Family church, on Eighteenth street, to attend religious services. When he neared the church, he was suddenly stricken with paralysis. He was carried within and physical aid summoned to his relief. He was soon after carried to his home, where at 8 o'clock Monday afternoon, his death took place.

Mr. Murphy leaves a widow, also advanced in years and an estimable family of six children, present in the city, when his death occurred. All the latter are well known and esteemed in this community. They comprise Messrs. John, Thomas and Edward, all of whom are employed by the Pacific coast company in various capacities, and the following daughters: Mrs. O'Rourke, of this city; Mrs. Colonel J. O'Keefe, of Creston, Ia.; and Misses Lizzie, Katie and Jennie, who reside in Omaha.

SHE BIT.

A Young Lady Who Was Sold but Once in Her Life.

She was a bright young lady—resident, say, on North Nineteenth street. Her name, well no matter about that. She is a girl who is fond of joking and excessively fond of selling her friends. The other night a small company of people were gathered in her mother's parlor. The conversation turned on the subject of sells. The young lady aforesaid remarked that she thought some people were so easily sold. "If a person will only mind the p's and q's," she continued, a genteel smile wreathing her lips, "there is no need of his or her being sold. Now I should like to see any one try to sell me!"

A deadly silence pervaded the atmosphere. Finally a small boy in one corner of the room spoke up. "By the way, Miss—, I heard of something to-day that would tickle you."

"Oh, dear me!" ejaculated the young lady who was so bold. "What was it? Oh, do tell me, please do."

"A feather," returned the small boy solemnly. "The young lady hasn't recovered yet. She may in time."

In the suit of the Omaha Medical college vs. John Rush and Truman Buck, the appeal bond of plaintiff was filed with Drs. R. C. Moore, J. C. Denise and F. M. McKenna, as sureties. This is to appeal from the decision of the district court refusing to enjoin the collection of taxes upon one and two in block 280, upon which the Medical college of the association was formerly located.

The Laundry Secret—The Patent Gloss

Chicago Inter-Ocean. The question how the brilliant gloss on linen done up in laundries is obtained is often asked, and the general impression is that this shining surface is owing to some peculiar substance put into the starch. But a skilled laundryman, who was asked what was the secret of this work, replied: "The secret is pressure, nothing more." The pressure of moving hot cylinders is used in steam laundries. It must be admitted, however, that this pressure, combined with heat, is very hard upon the texture of the linen, and every woman who for convenience in the city sends her husband's shirts and collars, and cuffs to a laundry, knows how well her own sooner they are worn out than when of old she had them done up by her servant maid, or by her own busy hands.

A correspondent of the Chicago Inter-Ocean, on the subject of laundry work has some suggestions we fancy our readers will find of interest, and we quote at length: In a recent visit to a steam laundry we were much interested in the division of labor for laundering cuffs and collars to make them look like new, and we found that the linen was passed between two moving hot cylinders under a pressure of 120 pounds and thus receives the high polish.

The laundry work of the Chinaman is unsurpassed, and he seems to gain the result by suitable irons and the expenditure of physical strength. The ordinary ironer will succeed well if, after being sure the articles are washed thoroughly, rinsed free from all traces of soap, and dipped in pure, clean starch, she will use an ironing board with a broad, smooth surface, with fewer edges and seams to turn yellow if the iron is too hot. There are starches of various kinds, patent glosses and dyes, and ironers said to produce a polish upon linen; but the better way is to depend upon the common starch bought in the bulk and of the best grade. You can add the other ingredients to suit yourself.

Some handresses stir the hot starch once or twice round with a spermaceti candle kept for the purpose, and others add a bit of clean mutton tallow; but foreign substances like wax, gum arabic, salt, or sugar, must be avoided. The best quality of nice laundry work is done by the aid of pure starch alone, with no additions. Whatever may be the preparation used in large laundries, we know they do not clean the starch from the starch to produce the coveted gloss.
