Makapee, the lawyer who has gained considerable notoriety in western Iowa, is to have his trial to-morrow at Denison, on the charge of embezzlement.

There were only eight burial permits issued during October. Council Bluffs is probably as safe from disease as undertakers and doctors. The small number includes those who were brought here for burial, and who died elsewhere.

There was a lively row on Pierce street again Sunday night. Some fellows who had more anti-prohibition than they could well handle, raided the street, kicking in the doors of several of the dives, and creating an uproar. They managed to make good their escape before the police arrived to nab them.

While Mr. Squire was looking after some of his property on Third Avenue near the民主 track yesterday, his horse, which was hitched in the street, became frightened by a passing train, and took a run. The horse landed the buggy in Horn's park among the trees, doing some damage to the vehicle, and injuring the animal somewhat.

Andy Neally, who was stabbed by Robinson, has concluded not to prosecute the latter, who is an old citizen, and who probably would not have gone into the law office to do it. He will, however, instead of dying, as it was feared he would, be able to get out and about, and will soon be as good as new. His escape was a narrow one, and the blow which he dealt Robinson was by no means a light one.

The Salvation army is not drawing as large audiences here as in most places, nor creating so much of a stir. The cause is apparently because there is so little opposition to their work. So long as they go along trying to save souls and do good, all the better. They are a little popular in the Council Bluffs, but are inclined to let them work away and pay little attention to them. If some of them could get thrown into jail for parading the streets, and complained of being too noisy, or something of that sort, the audiences would doubtless be larger.

The bridge company has filed with the city clerk its formal acceptance of the ordinance passed by the council, and restricting their rights as desired by the people. With the ordinance as passed, the bridge company are entitled to the agreement of the company to accept the provisions of this ordinance, it seems that every move possible has been made to assure the voters that a square deal, and nothing else, is intended. There can be little argument now brought against voting the proposed aid, and no further pressing of the objections now remedied by the action of the council and agreement of the company.

Attention, U. V. L.

POINTS FROM POLICE COURT.

The Doings of the City Council—Points on To-day's Election—Minor Mention and Personal Paragraphs.

Bluffing On Four.

The board of trustees of the home of the friendless are in a queer position, four of them declaring that the other four are liars, and each quartette standing squarely in opposition to the other. It is evident that the manager, Rev. Mr. Lemen, has got this institution into the same sort of a row as he did the Baptist church when he was pastor of that. He seems to be strangely unfortunate in his management of enterprises. The Bee, in order to be fair, published both statements, it having published one before. It is a little singular that those who are reported to have been under personal obligations to the manager, or who have claims against the institution, seem to stick by the manager, while those who are considered foot loos and hand free hasten to disown themselves from an institution which has gained a little in popularity, name, and fame, manager of which had his name dropped from the list of accredited ministers of the Baptist State association as the effect of the recent resolution.

To the Public: We, as members of the board of trustees of the Home of the Friendless, associate in Council Bluffs, Iowa, desire to call your attention to the following brief statement:

Whereas, Abundant evidence has been made public showing Mr. J. G. Lemen's unfitness for the position of manager, and that he has given up his salary, and has given up his solemn agreement made with the board to resign, we do not believe duty demands of us further sacrifice of time, money and feelings in efforts to compel the manager to resign, and are willing to endorse the man in his management, we do in this public manner notify all that we withdraw our confidence and support, and thus sever our connection with the institution.

WILLIAM E. RANDALL,
Pastor Baptist Church, Dow City, Ia.
W. W. MORRISON,
ARTHUR STOTT,
Pastor Baptist Church, Bedford, Ia.
J. J. CARTER,
Pastor Baptist Church, Grand Junction, Ia.
THE OTHER SIDE.

We, the undersigned, members of the board of trustees of the home of the friendless, associate in Council Bluffs, Iowa, desire to state:

1. That the charge of unfitness on the part of J. G. Lemen for the position of manager has not been substantiated by evidence yet adduced, and we have heard of none.

2. That no agreement to resign has been violated by Mr. Lemen. Such a proposition was made by him voluntarily on conditions, but no conditions were not mentioned.

The institution was in worse condition now than now; and the work being done by Brother Lemen deserves, and is meeting, the hearty support of the best people of Iowa and other states.

President of Board.

Vice President.

From One Bar to Another.

In the police court yesterday there appeared one strange character, who gave his name as Lee Dunlavy. He was up on a charge of vagrancy. It appeared that he had been hanging about town for a day or two, trying to work some of the veterans on the claim that he was a member of the Grand Army in sore distress.

He had no papers or other evidence of his being what he represented, and some of the veterans deemed him an impostor, and called the attention of the officers to him. The man appeared to have been sleeping in bay-stacks, and was certainly in a destitute condition. He explained that he was an attorney, who was admitted in Putnam county, Indiana, and later had been practicing at the bar in Bedford, Ind. He had no money, and was beaten. Lateely he had been out to Rapid City, Dakota, and was on his return, and concluded to rest a few days in Council Bluffs. Judge Aylesworth remarked that it was nothing at all strange for an attorney to be out of money, but it was strange for one to sleep in a haystack. He looked like man of vagrancy. The judge inquired that he was not vagrant, and wanted to receive Col. Sappington to tend to his case. The judge gave him an hour to consult with the colonel, and the fellow started for the well known law office. He either failed to find the office or the colonel, and did not return. The judge did not seem to be disappointed at the failure of the Bedford lawyer to show up again.

John Moore, the swindling prisoner, was found drunk again. He denied that he was not beastly drunk, but admitted having taken a few drinks. He said he had been having fits, which, to tell the truth, had been caused by drink, and an Omaha doctor told him he must not stop short, or he never would go again, but that he must drink a little to keep from having fits. He liked the idea of like drinking, and followed the prescription faithfully. The doctor told him that if he took two or three drinks a day he would be all right in a week. He wanted to be cured in a day, and so took seven times that number. The judge concluded to give him the Guanella treatment to the extent of $7.00, and told the clerk to hunt up the address of the Omaha doctor, and charge the costs to him.

Five others who by a strange coincidence proved to be in the same boat as Lee Dunlavy, were also found drunk again. The colonel told him he must not stop short, or he never would go again, but that he must drink a little to keep from having fits. He liked the idea of like drinking, and followed the prescription faithfully. The doctor told him that if he took two or three drinks a day he would be all right in a week. He wanted to be cured in a day, and so took seven times that number. The judge concluded to give him the Guanella treatment to the extent of $7.00, and told the clerk to hunt up the address of the Omaha doctor, and charge the costs to him.

Wants to Play a Lone Hand.

Justice Frainey expressed a desire yesterday that the BEE should give him some more free advertising, as it did him good and he was certain that he would be elected by an overwhelming majority. If the people can stand it to have such bills run up by him as the records show, and the taxpayers want to pay out their money for having 502 cases begun and 420 dismissed because they amounted to nothing, the BEE can stand it. Yesterday it seemed that John Jay Frainey was not so confident of being elected as he would make the BEE believe. It is stated by responsible parties that he went to some of his supposed friends and told them that he was afraid he would not pull through, and that the only way to succeed was for his friends to vote for him. He did not do this, but rather for the two other democratic candidates. This slushing of his own party for the sake of pulling himself through was being used yesterday by democrats themselves as a reason for going back on him. According to this scheme it appears that Frainey thinks that of the two other democratic candidates are scuttled by his friends, and he alone voted for them and got the second highest number of votes. It is a slick idea, but the two other democratic candidates are onto it, and they will doubtless exert themselves to spoil it.

County Commissioners.

It is amusing to read the eulogistic notices given by the democratic paper to Judge James, who is a candidate for county commissioner. Many good things can be said of him, but he can hardly stand up under the burden of praise which the organ bestows upon him. It will be remembered by many voters that when he was an alderman he helped pass a resolution allowing the aldermen $25 a month for services on committees, and making a back-pay grab of it, the back pay amounting to $100 each. There was such a howl raised that the resolution was rescinded, and Judge James voted with the others for rescinding it. He had in the meantime drawn his $100, he being the only one who had done so, with the exception of Jesse McMahon, and the latter had not cashed his order, but hurriedly returned it. Judge James so far as known never returned his $100, although voting for the rescinding of the resolution. If elected to the county board, with all the aldermen, he might conceive the idea that he ought to draw pay from the time the court house was commenced. The democracy sat aside a good man, and by a slick piece of convention jobbery nominated Judge James in his place. Many democrats protest against this procedure, and the protest will doubtless be reiterated with greater force at the polls.

The reputation having maintained two men in whose utmost integrity and probity the people have the utmost confidence, there can be little room for hesitation as to how the vote should be.

MUNICIPAL MATTERS.

The city council met in regular session last evening, the mayor and all the aldermen being present. A large portion of the session was taken up in the consideration of the monthly batch of bills.

The finishing estimate of Mr. Vincent's creek contract, amounting to $540, was allowed, the work being completed. The ten per cent retained until a final settlement was made in the city's hands for future action.

Mr. Sweeney, the foreman of M. Vincent, notified the council that the upper portion of the creek being done, he wants to proceed with his contract, and that the city engineer should be instructed to cross-section the channel to be followed.

The council decided to reject the awards of damages for opening Fifth avenue from Bluff to Glen avenue, the damages being deemed to heavy.
