The poles and wires for the new fire alarm will be all in place by next Tuesday. Then the work of putting in the boxes will not be a long one. There is to be a camp fire at Macedonia this evening, at which Colonel Daily, J. J. Steadman, Colonel Keatley, L. T. Genung and others are to speak. An apparently innocent German, giving his name as Matt Bower, was arrested last night, found wandering about the streets with a revolver in his pocket. The board of supervisors were engaged yesterday in settling with the su-pervisor of the poor, and attending to bridge matters. There was little in the proceedings of general public interest. Deputy Sheriff Allen, of Red Oak, was in the city yesterday. He says that Dr. Cross, who is in jail there now, is well and hearty. The doctor is very quiet and says but little about his personal matters Last evening Rev. T. J. Mackey, of St. Pauls's church, gave an excellent sermon in Captain Overton's mission. It was listened to closely, and at the close an old-fashioned revival class meeting was Next Sunday afternoon there is to be a meeting held of telegraphers to form a union here. Most of the operators now belong to the Omaha union, but it is thought that this city should have one of its own.

While W. C. Beard, of Omaha, was at the residence of L. C. Baidwin Tuesday evening he discovered a colored man sneaking his overcoat from the hallway. He collared the fellow and marched him to the police station. L. C. Brackett is showing up some novelties for the holiday trade, which have upon them a perfect picture of the new masonic temple. This is a good way to advertise the city, and at the same time furnishes the purchaser with a very pleasing novelty. They need be seen to be appreciated.

Judge Loofbourow has issued three perpetual injunctions against Crawford county saloonists, John Frahm, P. P. Maloney and Henry Meyers. Meyers was fined $600 for violating the temporary injunction. Temporary injunctions were issued against Claus Pepper and Richard Daniels, of Astor.

There are more inquiries for bargains in real estate than for years past. The real activity has not shown up as yet very much, but it is surely coming, as all indications indicate. One real estate man says that yesterday he was applied to by three new families moving into the city, who wanted to find houses, and this is now an every day occurrence.

George Proper and Frank Peterson. two hot-headed youths, were yesterday ent to the county jail for assaulting two Johnson boys. One of the boys was hit on the back of his head with a brick, and it seems that it was no fault of their assailants that serious injuries were not inflicted. The judge has not decided how long he will keep the boys in jail, their sentence not having been pronounced, the circumstances to be inquired into

"Comanche Bill's" Unsuccessful Endeavor to Regain His Liberty.

FOILED BY A VIGILANT OFFICER.

Queer Election Returns On the Vote For Justices-Arranging For a Meeting of the Iowa Newspaper Toilers.

Attempted Jall Break. W. R. Lloyd, better known as "Comanche Bill," who was arrested last Sunday night for turning a confidence trick at the transfer, attempted to escape from the city jail in this city last night by digging through the wall. It has been the custom for the marshal to allow the prisoners to remain out of the cells durng the day, not locking them up until 10 or 11 o'clock at night. Last night he was a little late in coming to the jail, and about 11:30 o'clock Charles White, the deputy marshal, began to lock the prisoners in their cells. When he came to the cell occupied by "Comanche Bill" he noticed something peculiar on the floor, but owing to the darkness he could not see what it was, He immediately secured a lantern and discovered that what had attracted his attention was a pile of dirt. Upon investigation it was found that a hole had been dug in the concrete two and a haif feet wide and three feet down. The cell is situated alongside the west wall of the jail, and in order to escape Bill would have been obliged to dig through three feet of concrete and six feet of broken stone. The instruments used in making the hole were two railroad spikes seven inches long.

When Bill was asked how he had accomplished the work he said that it was none of his doing and the first he knew of it was when he entered the cell and fell into the hole.

Captain O'Brien, who went on duty at 8:30 o'clock, said he visited Bill's cell, and that he had a talk with him at the front of the cell. Bill seemed to be rather cautious in his movements, and O'Brien thinks that he was endeavoring to hide the dirt which he had dug up to the floor of the

In his effort Bill was aided by an ac complice, who was also engaged in the work of cutting out a channel of escape, and but for the vigilance of the officers the attempt might have proved successful. This is the third attempt of the kind that has been made in the new jail. Although after 1 o'clock this morning when the occurrence became known, the BEE was on the ground and secured the item.

Pinching "Con." Men. Yesterday afternoon William Lloyd, etter known as "Camanche Bill," was before Juage Aylesworth on the charge of confidencing an old man By his attorney, Colonel Daily, he asked for another continuance, and the case was put off for a week, with the agreement that the witnesses who corroborate portions of the old man's statement, need not appear, the attorney for the prosecution, J. N. Baldwin, to state what they would swear to if they were present, and the defense to admit that they would so testify if present. The old man, who was the victim of the trick, lives near Kansas City, was very anxious to go home, and the chances seem that he will not be present to testify when the case comes up again. This is the common practice of these sharpers to wear out a complaining witness, and get so many continuances as to cause a final dropping of the case. The chances are that the old man will be given back his money, and perhaps something besides, if he will fail to appear. About the only way to make a successful pinch of these confidence men is to place the victim under guard day and night, until his testimony can be heard in court, otherwise the chances are that he will be tampered with by one of

In the case of Edwards, the other crook, who turned a trick on an old man named Louer, the court required the vic-tim to give bond of $500 to appear when wanted. His son-in-law, Mr. Rausch, of Ida Grove, went on the bond, and the old gentleman's appearance is thus assured, when the case is reached by the grand

The Press Meeting. Next Tuesday the fall session of the Southern Iowa Press association is to be held in this city. Arrangements are made for a business session at 10 o'clock in the morning of that day, and closing with an evening session. Arrangements should be made at once for giving these visitors a hearty reception and hospitable treatment. No class of people appreciate courtesies more than the hard working newspaper men, and none are more entitled to receive them. These visitors should be given a favorable impression of Council Bluffs and its advantages, and should be warmed into friendliness rather than allowed to go home chilled with neglect and inhospitality. Cities, like individuals, gain by the kindly treatment of such visitors, and Council Bluffs should not be so engrossed with its boom as to neglect making full arrangements for this visitation. Even those among these visiting newspaper men who know more or less about Council Bluffs, are not as familiar as they should be with the many points of interest and commercial advantages possessed by it. They shall be given a happy opportunity of noting these points and advantages. The programme sent out by the secretary is as follows:

THE DAILY BEE. AN ATTEMPTED JAIL BREAK Bluffs. He regrets that he has no money to invest here, but he shouts continually about "patronizing home industries," 'shun the Omaha spy," etc. His real friendliness for Council Bluffs is evidenced by his sending to papers elsewhere, of which he is correspondent, slanderous statements to injure the city's reputation, and prevent, if possible, people from coming here. His latest effusion appears in the Des Moines Register, under flaming headlines of 'Coun-cil Biuffs Under a Reign of Terror From Thugs," and "A Thug Paradise," the body of his infamous article reading as Cot NCH BLUFFS, Nov. 8.—[Special to the State Register.]—The number of burglaries committed here nightly is creating serious apprehension and r demand for better police protection. Within a fortnight no less than twenty bold and successful burglaries have twenty boin and successful billigiaries have occurred. Last night seven more raids were made upon residences of prominent citizens. I reporty of considerable value was taken. The residence of Spencer Smith, editor of the Nonparell, was among those visited and robbed. The town is overrun with thugs and robbed. The town is overrun with thugs and thieves, whose boldness seem to paralyze the police. Since the advent of a new democratic municipal administration, the old efficient force has been retired and new men have been put in their places as a reward for political services. All gambling houses and many saloons are open all night and serve as a rendezyous for things and burglars. The citizens will organize a vigilance committee it relief is not obtained and the scenes of Cottonwood Jail time will be re-enacted.

As all nitizens know the shore, is a

As all citizens know, the above is "black eye" for Council Bluffs, and no cause for the blow. The only grain of foundation for the above is that a few petty house breakings have taken place here, such as occur in every city, and of which little is thought. The young man whose imagination has so outgrown his conscience ought not to have his greed for notoriety gratified by the publication of his name, but the concern which gives him employment should choke him off or cease appealing for patronage.

Hendricks' Vote.

The discovery made by the BEE in regard to the votes received by Justice Hendricks has been followed up by a further revelation in regard to the First precinct of the Fourth ward. According to the returns he received no votes in that precinet, which was so palpably a mis take, that a further examination has been made. It discloses the fact that he received in that precinct at least 119 votes The tally was kept on a page by itself, and in an obscure place where it was overlooked, and the clerks in making up the returns followed the example set by the First precinct of the First ward, and omitted his name entirely. Besides these two omitted precincts there should be counted fifteen votes cast for him in the precinct lying outside of the city, the only votes east for a democratic candi-date. Taking these together makes his total vote 816, instead of a little over five hundred as shown by the official returns Such blundering would have resulted seriously had the difference been sufficient to have changed the result, as in most cases it would. As it is it is very annoying to be represented as having received 270 less votes than were actually cast.

JIM SWAIN'S REMAINS FOUND.

"Jack Sheppard" of the Old

Middleton Gang. Cheyenne Leader: Intelligence was received here yesterday of the finding of the skeleton of a man in the foothills at the junction of Gooseberry creek and the Big Horn river, which have been identified by surrounding proofs as the remains of Jim Swain, alias "Jack Sheppard," a prominent member of the old "Doe" Middleton gang of outlaws While riding the country in the vicinity of where the remains were found, two cowboys, by the names of Wm. Welch and James Armour came across the bleached bones of a man, on the side of the bluffs towards the river. The average passerby would never have noticed them, as they lay behind some rocks and bushes which com-pletely bid them, which probably accounts for the lateness of the discovery. Pieces of shackles and handcuff were found in the vicinity, as well as a rusty six shotter on which were engraved the initials "J. S." and an old bowie knife with "Sheppard" roughly engraved in the haudle. A pocket knife and a few dollars in silver were also found. Jim Swain was one of the most prom-inent members of the Middleton gang, and went by several aliases, his best known being that of "Jack Sneppard." under which name he was arrested four times for murder and once for highway ropbery, the latter in the year 1871. He was found guilty and sentenced, but suc-ceeded in breaking jail after being con-fined three days. In the year 1872 he was captured twice by parties who knew that there were charges of murder against him, but in both cases succeeded in escaping from his captors before they had taken him to where assistance could be procured. In the spring of the year of 1873 he was once more captured, but again made his escape, killing one of his captors in order to do so. In the month of July in the same year he was captured and last seen salive. On the evening following his cap-ture he managed to get away, although it was never known how he managed to free himself from his shackles and handcuffs. His two captors scoured the country for many days, but never suc-ceeded in finding any trace of their prisoner. When he made his escape the anywhere else, a young man who pre-tends to be a great friend of Council ern portion of the territory, about fifty miles from where the remains were found. Jim Swain's career was certainly a checkered one, having placed to his record some of the most cold-blooded murders and most daring robberies which were ever committed in the west, chief among them being the killing of a woman and baby, the family of a ranchman living on the Little Yellowstone river in Montana, and the killing of a colored woman who was cooking for a hunting party, near the Yellowstone park. The most daring and heaviest robbery which heads his long list is that of the holding Jim Swain's career was certainly a heads his long list is that of the holding up of a party of eight miners near Fre-mont's peak in the year 1871. Making four of them get out of the wagon in which they were riding, and the other four dismount from their horses, he ordered them to lay down their arms, while he stood behind a rock and leveled his gun at the crowd. Then, marching them off to a distance, he took possession of everything and drove away, capturing over sixty thousand dollars in gold. A list of his many other crimes would make a large book, and hence the principal ones only are given.

It is presumed that after being bounded over the country until he was completely tired out, he took refuge in the place where he was found, and from the consequences which generally follow fatigue and exposure he was probably taken sick. dying therefrom in a few days. His remains were interred on the bank of the Big Horn near where he died, and a sympathizing cowpuncher has placed a head-board over his grave on which is inscribed: "Here lies Jack Sheppard, a prince among outlaws, but a fee to all others who lived in his time."
